Medical Student Training

The Department of Surgery offers courses that provide a unique combination of experience oriented toward patient care, with basic surgical research designed to promote student awareness of surgery's place among the physician's skills. Surgery courses are open only to M.D. students and qualified students in associated health sciences.

Students develop awareness of surgical therapy's place in the treatment of disease. Emphasis is placed on basic emergency techniques, trauma, oncology, burns, gastrointestinal and biliary tract disease, endocrine disease, transplantation, plastic surgery and reconstruction, and peripheral vascular surgery.

The majority of surgery courses involve patient-centered discussions and practical exercises interwoven with operating room experience. Lectures and conferences are scheduled regularly on specific topics.

Independent study courses in selected surgery topics and clinical experiences are available to fourth-year M.D. students by arrangement with the faculty.

Faculty

The faculty's strengths center in pathophysiology and problems of severe burns, organ transplantation, surgical control of morbid obesity, inflammatory bowel disease, biliary tract disease, pediatric surgery, endocrine disease, plastic surgery, and vascular surgery.

Facilities

Abundant patient contact provides education in a wide variety of surgical diseases. The Department of Surgery provides training in the only burn unit in Iowa approved by the American College of Surgeons and in the Level I Trauma Center at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

Laboratories provide equipment, space, and technical expertise to support teaching and a wide spectrum of clinical and scientific research. Projects are available in gastrointestinal surgery, surgical microbiology, peripheral vascular surgery, transplantation, wound healing, organ preservation, vascular surgery, pediatric surgery, and surgical oncology.

Courses

075:005 Clinical Surgery

6 s.h.

Experience as active member of surgical team; work on inpatient units, in clinics and operating room; assist in elective and emergency patient care.

075:216 Subinternship in General Surgery

4 s.h.

Responsibility for management of selected surgical patients, in operating rooms on a surgical service. Prerequisite: 075:005.

- 075:223 Subinternship in Burn Therapy arr.
Experience as member of burn team on ward, in operating room; resuscitation with fluid and electrolytes, nutritional support, wound healing, rehabilitation. Prerequisite: 075:005.
- 075:224 Subinternship in Pediatric Surgery arr.
Clinical experience in ward, operating room, outpatient clinics; surgical, pediatric conferences. Prerequisite: 075:005.
- 075:226 Subinternship in Plastic Surgery arr.
Experience with problems in plastic and reconstructive surgery. Prerequisite: 075:005.
- 075:229 Research Surgery arr.
Project with faculty member. Prerequisites: 075:005 and consent of instructor.
- 075:230 Subinternship in Vascular Surgery arr.
Diagnosis, treatment of peripheral vascular disease; noninvasive diagnosis of arterial, venous problems; vascular problems in outpatient clinic, inpatient service; time in operating room, rounds with residents, conferences. Prerequisite: 075:005.
- 075:235 Subinternship in General Surgery, Iowa Methodist Medical Center 4 s.h.
Care of general surgery patients in private hospital setting. Prerequisites: 075:005 and consent of instructor.
- 075:236 Intensive Care Unit—Trauma, Iowa Methodist 4 s.h.
Subinternship on trauma service team; evaluation and management of critically ill patients in the emergency room, operating room, intensive care unit. Prerequisites: 075:005 and fourth-year M.D. enrollment.
- 075:237 Subinternship in General Surgery, Davenport 4 s.h.
Participation in diagnosis and management of general surgical patients under supervision of attending surgeons from Davenport Surgical Group, Genesis Medical Center. Prerequisites: 075:005 and fourth-year M.D. enrollment.
- 075:998 Surgery on Campus arr.
Surgery on campus; individually arranged. Prerequisite: 075:005.
- 075:999 Surgery off Campus arr.
Prerequisites: 075:005 and consent of instructor.

Urology

Head: Richard D. Williams

Professors: Michael B. Cohen, Bernard Fallon, Karl J. Kreder, David M. Lubaroff, Michael A. O'Donnell, Timothy L. Ratliff, Richard D. Williams, Howard N. Winfield

Professor emeritus: Charles E. Hawtrey

Associate professor: Christopher S. Cooper

Clinical associate professor: Victoria J. Sharp

Assistant professors: J. Christopher Austin, Thomas S. Griffith, Fadi Joudi, Elizabeth B. Takacs, Moshe Wald

Web site: <http://www.uihealthcare.com/depts/med/urology/index.html>

Urology encompasses the subspecialty areas of urologic nephrology, oncology, and endocrinology; male reproductive physiology; erectile dysfunction; neurourology; pediatric urology; urinary tract stone and infection, including endourology; laparoscopic urology; diagnostic urology, and urinary tract obstruction.

The Department of Urology offers instruction in all of these areas at both the undergraduate and graduate levels and provides continuing education for the delivery of urologic care.

Medical Student Training

The department cooperates with several University of Iowa basic science departments to educate first-year M.D. students in the relationship between urology and the basic sciences. It collaborates with the Department of Microbiology in teaching and research concerning immunology of genitourinary cancers and renal transplantation.

In the second-year M.D. course, 050:165 Foundations of Clinical Practice IV ICD, the department presents illustrative lectures and demonstrations related to diagnosis and treatment of genitourinary tract diseases.

Third- and fourth-year M.D. students take Department of Urology courses that provide experience in all areas of urology. The required third-year clerkship covers the fundamentals of these areas through experience in outpatient clinics and inpatient units at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics and the Veterans Affairs Iowa City Health Care System, as well as in daily interactive teaching seminars. Fourth-year M.D. students can take advanced elective courses of intensive study in any of the urologic subspecialties.

Continuing Education

The department offers continuing education activities throughout the year for urologic and family practitioners. These activities are conducted by the senior staff, whose interests include pediatric urology, reproductive physiology, urologic oncology, urinary tract stone (including endourology/laparoscopy), and prostatic diseases.

Research

The department has earned international recognition for its studies of prostatic diseases. The urological laboratories conduct research and offer instruction in experimental oncology, cellular immunology, and infertility.

Courses

079:104 Clinical Urology 2 s.h.
Work in urology unit, clinic; responsibility for patient care, working with residents.

079:108 Advanced Clerkship in Urology 4 s.h.
Experience as integral member of urological staff, junior resident level.

079:109 Advanced Clerkship in Pediatric Urology 4 s.h.
In-depth study of pediatric urology topics. Prerequisite: 079:104.

079:110 Individual Study and Research arr.
Preclinical or clinical projects; may include research presentation, collaboration on a publication.

079:119 Advanced Clerkship Female and Reconstructive Surgery 4 s.h.
Clinical and surgical experience in voiding dysfunction, incontinence, urodynamics. Prerequisite: 079:104.

079:120 Community General Urology, Des Moines 4 s.h.
Exposure to the entire spectrum of private practice urology, in office and operating room settings; experience with preoperative and postoperative care; nonoperative aspects of office-based community urology. Prerequisite: 079:104.

079:999 Urology off Campus arr.
Individually arranged by students with department approval.

The College of Nursing is an integral part of the University of Iowa health science campus, sharing in and contributing to teaching, research, and patient care resources that have earned international recognition. The University provides an unusually fine setting for nursing preparation because the educational and clinical resources vital to educating nurses are available on or near the campus. Faculty and students participate fully in University life and contribute their time, interests, and abilities to the many general and special activities of a major research university.

The college's Bachelor of Science in Nursing (B.S.N.), Master's in Nursing and Health Care Practice (M.N.H.P.), and Master of Science in Nursing (M.S.N.) programs are accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE), an autonomous accrediting arm of the American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN). They also are approved by the Iowa Board of Nursing. The anesthesia nursing program is accredited by the Council on Accreditation of Nurse Anesthesia Educational Programs.

Graduates of the B.S.N. and M.N.H.P. programs qualify to take the licensure examination required for practice as registered nurses (RN). Graduates of advanced practice majors in the graduate program are eligible to take certification examinations and apply for Advanced Registered Nurse Practitioner (ARNP) licensure.

Undergraduate Program

The college offers the Bachelor of Science in Nursing (B.S.N.). The program provides preparation for careers in the hospital care of patients and in community agencies such as public health services, schools, homes, and industries. It also provides a base for graduate study in nursing.

In addition to the advantages of combining general education with specialized career preparation, a college or university program offers the advantages of full participation in the social, cultural, and recreational activities of a highly diverse campus community. In nursing, no less than in other pursuits, a college or university background enables people not only to prepare for a career but to achieve a life of thought and action informed by knowledge, introspection, and contemplation.

The nursing major provides a basis for nurses' roles in wellness and health promotion, in acute care, and in long-term care for chronic illness. The professional nurse provides care to individuals, families, groups, and communities along a continuum of health, illness, and disability in any sector of the health care system.

In addition to providing care, the nurse serves as a coordinator of health care by organizing and facilitating the delivery of comprehensive, efficient, and appropriate service to individuals, families, groups, and communities. The nurse demonstrates the ability to conceptualize the total continuing health needs of the patient, including legal and ethical aspects of care. The University of Iowa program's goal is to produce graduates who are competent, committed, creative, and compassionate.

Bachelor of Science in Nursing

The Bachelor of Science in Nursing requires 128 s.h., including 68 s.h. in the nursing major and 60 s.h. in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program and supportive pre-nursing courses. Students can expect to complete the program in four and one-half academic years.

B.S.N. students may complete their entire program at Iowa, enrolling for their first year or year-and-a-half in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Or they may transfer from an institution that offers specific courses approved by the College of Nursing. See "Admission to the B.S.N." later in this section.

Each B.S.N. student is assigned a College of Nursing faculty member as an advisor on career planning and professional development.

Nursing courses are based on concepts of health, deviations from health, and nursing intervention. Course work progresses in complexity from the sophomore through the senior year. The curriculum reflects the current trend in health care delivery toward emphasis on nursing as a service provided both inside and outside hospitals. Students have access to clinical experiences selected from more than 60 agencies in Iowa.

Advising

Advisors from the University's Academic Advising Center advise pre-nursing students. After admission to the College of Nursing, each student is assigned a College of Nursing faculty advisor.

RN/B.S.N. for Registered Nurses

The RN/B.S.N. progression program is designed to offer registered nurses the opportunity to build on their nursing knowledge and experience by earning a Bachelor of Science in Nursing. RN/B.S.N. students take courses that focus on professional aspects of nursing, nursing process and health assessment, community/public health, leadership and management, research, and nursing issues. Each student is assigned to a College of Nursing faculty member for academic advising and curriculum planning.

The College of Nursing participates as a receiving institution in the Iowa Statewide Articulation Plan for Nursing Education: RN to Baccalaureate.

Students may transfer course work completed at other colleges and universities to satisfy prerequisites and degree requirements other than those for the nursing major. Once they satisfy prerequisites, students may complete the RN/B.S.N. in one calendar year in a sequence that begins each summer and includes three clinical and five nonclinical nursing courses.

The RN/B.S.N. program uses online educational technologies. Face-to-face meetings are limited to physical assessment lab practice and testing each summer, available at support centers across Iowa. Students may be required to do a practicum presentation in fall and spring semesters. Presentations are flexibly scheduled and may be done on site, at a support center, or using online presentation software.

Registered nurses who plan to enter the baccalaureate program should contact the College of Nursing RN/B.S.N. Program Office for information and early advising.

Honors

The College of Nursing Honors Program provides seminars and independent study experience for qualified students. In order to pursue honors studies in nursing, students must have completed the first clinical nursing course and must maintain an overall cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.33 and a nursing major g.p.a. of at least 3.50.

The honors program enables students to explore subject matter based on individual interests, needs, and goals. It provides opportunities for self-initiative, research experience, and intellectual and personal development, and challenges students to grow and excel. Students who fulfill the requirements of the program graduate with honors in nursing.

Certificate, Minor in Aging Studies

Students in the College of Nursing may participate in the Aging Studies Program, which provides undergraduate students with a multidisciplinary approach to gerontology. Students plan their course of study with their academic advisor in close cooperation with the Aging Studies Program coordinator. Nursing students who successfully complete 21 s.h. of approved course work in aging studies are awarded the Certificate in Aging Studies. Nursing students also may complete a minor in aging studies by taking 15 s.h. outside of their major in courses approved by the Aging Studies Program. See Aging Studies (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences) in the Catalog.

Study Abroad

The College of Nursing advocates study abroad as a rich educational experience for students. Nursing students have the opportunity to encounter another culture directly through the college's cultural nursing experiences abroad. The intent of these regular programs is to introduce students to health care systems in other countries. In addition, students learn about health conditions and circumstances not widely prevalent in the United States (e.g., diphtheria, nutritional deficiencies). For more information, contact the College of Nursing Office of Student Services.

Expenses and Insurance

Students pay University of Iowa student fees throughout the B.S.N. program. They also must purchase uniforms, white shoes, a stethoscope, a watch with a full-sweep second hand, and supplies and materials for required nursing courses. Students arrange for their own health screening requirements, health insurance, professional liability insurance, and transportation once they are enrolled in clinical nursing courses. Students also pay fees for computer testing, criminal background checks, and laboratory equipment.

Mandatory Health Insurance

All students in the College of Nursing must show annual verification that they have obtained and currently hold health insurance sufficient to satisfy the following minimal standards of coverage (or an equivalent alternative care plan):

- $250,000 lifetime benefit;

- coverage for hospitalization, including coverage for room and board, physician visits, surgeon services, X-ray, and lab services;

- inpatient deductible under an individual policy not exceeding $500 per admission and a 20 percent copayment/coinsurance requirement;

- coverage for medically necessary care, including both physician services for treatment of emergencies, illness, accident, injury, X-ray, and lab services.

Professional Liability Insurance

All students in the College of Nursing are required to carry professional liability insurance throughout the duration of their program. Agencies in which students are involved in clinical practicums require that students have insurance coverage. Entering students in the College of Nursing are provided information about this requirement and must show verification that they have purchased and currently hold professional liability insurance with a minimum coverage of $1 million per single occurrence.

Undergraduate Student Organizations

All College of Nursing undergraduate students are members of the National Student Nurses' Association and its local chapter, the Iowa Association of Nursing Students. The University of Iowa Association of Nursing Students (UIANS) provides opportunities for professional growth and development in nursing. UIANS representatives are members of the University of Iowa Student Government (UISG), and there is a UIANS representative on the Academic Council of the College of Nursing.

The University of Iowa Minority Student Nursing Association (UIMNSA) provides opportunities for professional growth and development for students from populations underrepresented in nursing. UIMNSA board members are members of the University of Iowa Student Government.

Admission to the B.S.N.

B.S.N. students may complete their entire program at Iowa, enrolling for their first year or year-and-a-half in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. Highly qualified students may be admitted early to the College of Nursing if they have an Admission Index Score of 148 or higher and have no high school unit deficiencies. The Admission Index Score equals ACT composite score multiplied by two, plus high school percentile rank. For more information, contact the College of Nursing or the University of Iowa Office of Admissions.

Students also may transfer from an institution that offers specific courses approved by the University of Iowa College of Nursing. Cooperating state institutions and independent colleges that participate in the transfer plan include Iowa State University; the University of Northern Iowa; Upper Iowa University; and Briar Cliff, Morningside, Loras, Luther, Clarke, Simpson, and Wartburg colleges. Participating community colleges are located in Ankeny, Bettendorf, Boone, Burlington, Calmar, Carroll, Cedar Rapids, Clarinda, Clinton, Council Bluffs, Davenport, Des Moines, Emmetsburg, Estherville, Fort Dodge, Iowa Falls, Keokuk, Marshalltown, Mason City, Muscatine, Ottumwa, Peosta, Sheldon, Sioux City, and Waterloo.

Completion of the transfer sequence at a cooperating institution does not guarantee admission to the College of Nursing; admission standards for transfers are the same as for all other College of Nursing applicants. Prospective transfer students who want more information about this plan should contact the cooperating institution of their choice.

To apply for admission to the B.S.N. program in nursing, each student must qualify for admission to The University of Iowa and meet these requirements:

- completion of all prerequisites for admission to the College of Nursing, or current enrollment in any remaining prerequisites;

- a grade of C or higher in all prerequisite courses;

- a g.p.a. of at least 2.70 (recommended).

Applicants whose first language is not English must score at least 550 (paper-based) or 213 (computer-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). Registered nurses educated outside the United States are required to present verification of having passed the Commission on Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools (CGFNS) examination and specified Excelsior baccalaureate nursing examinations. They also must meet the University's English proficiency requirements.

A criminal background check is conducted for all prelicensure and undergraduate students upon admission.

High School Background

The College of Nursing requires four years of English, three years of social science, three years of mathematics (a minimum of algebra I-II and geometry), two years of one foreign language, one year each of biology and chemistry, one-half year of physics, and other college preparatory courses selected with the help of the high school counselor.

Preclinical Background

In addition to the biological and behavioral science courses required for College of Nursing admission, students must satisfy the following requirements before beginning clinical course work.

Rhetoric: 8 s.h. (may be satisfied by testing for advanced standing); a student who has earned 6 s.h. in English composition may complete the speech component after admission.

Mathematics: three years of high school mathematics, or a score of 26 or higher on the mathematics battery of the ACT, or completion of a college mathematics course comparable to or more advanced than 22M:002 Basic Algebra II.

Physics: one-half year of high school physics or equivalent.

Other course work: animal biology, inorganic chemistry I, microbiology, human anatomy, psychology, and human development and behavior.

American College Tests

All entering first-year and undergraduate transfer students who have earned fewer than 24 s.h. when they apply for admission to The University of Iowa must complete the American College Test (ACT) or the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT). For information on the ACT, write to ACT Inc., Box 451, Iowa City, Iowa 52243.

Core Performance Standards

Applicants to the College of Nursing are expected to be capable of completing the entire nursing curriculum and of earning a B.S.N. The nursing curriculum requires demonstrated proficiency in a variety of cognitive, problem-solving, manipulative, communicative, and interpersonal skills. Therefore, College of Nursing students must meet the following performance standards.

- Possess and use critical thinking skills sufficient for clinical judgment (e.g., identify cause-effect relationships in clinical situations, develop nursing care plans)
- Demonstrate interpersonal abilities sufficient for interaction with individuals, families, and groups from a variety of social, emotional, cultural, and intellectual backgrounds (e.g., establish rapport with patients, clients, colleagues)
- Possess and use communication skills sufficient for interacting with others (e.g., explain treatment procedures, initiate health teaching, observe patient/client responses, document and interpret nursing actions and patient/client responses)
- Administer cardiopulmonary procedures and other clinical procedures necessary for nursing care; calibrate and use equipment, position patients and clients
- Possess the tactile abilities (with or without an assistive device) sufficient for performing physical assessment (e.g., perform palpation functions of physical exam and those related to nursing interventions)

The examples above are not all-inclusive.

Applicants who may not meet these standards are encouraged to contact the College of Nursing associate dean for academic affairs for a personal interview.

Selection

The college's admission committee recommends to the dean the applicants who appear to be best qualified. Fulfillment of minimum admission requirements does not guarantee admission to the College of Nursing. The committee may require personal interviews. A physical examination report and specific health screening requirements must be on file at the University of Iowa Student Health Service 10 days before the class opens for the first clinical nursing course.

Application Deadlines

Fall semester: April 1

Summer session (RN students only):
January 15

Spring semester: October 1

Financial Aid

In addition to general assistance available to University students, there are assistance programs specifically for nursing students. Information about financial aid is available from the University's Office of Student Financial Aid.

Postbaccalaureate Program

Master's in Nursing and Health Care Practice

The Master's in Nursing and Health Care Practice (M.N.H.P.) requires 61 s.h. The M.N.H.P. provides students with an education in the clinical skills and knowledge necessary for entry into the nursing profession; it is not an academic master's degree with a research focus. Graduates of the program are prepared to join the nursing workforce in entry-level positions or to pursue the M.S.N. or a Ph.D. in nursing.

The M.N.H.P. program is a highly structured, full-time plan of study that is completed in four consecutive semesters, including summer. Students are strongly advised not to work while enrolled in the program.

The application deadline for the M.N.H.P. program is June 1.

Graduate Programs

The college offers the Master of Science in Nursing (M.S.N.) and a Doctor of Philosophy in nursing.

Master of Science in Nursing

The Master of Science in Nursing (M.S.N.) requires 33-52 s.h. of graduate credit, depending on the choice of concentration area. The program is designed to build on general and professional baccalaureate study. Graduation from an approved baccalaureate degree program is one of the admission requirements. Options are available for registered nurse applicants with a non-accredited B.S.N., a non-nursing B.A. or B.S., or a B.S.N. from a foreign country.

The degree ordinarily requires four semesters of full-time study. Part-time study is available for some specializations. The M.B.A./M.S.N. and anesthesia nursing programs require a minimum of six semesters of full-time study.

The M.S.N. curriculum consists of a core component and areas of specialization enhanced by supporting course work in the College of Nursing or in related disciplines. Students may take two to three supporting courses related to their nursing specialization in the social, behavioral, or biological sciences or in business administration, law, or health management and policy.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 2.75 and must successfully complete a thesis, project, or portfolio.

The M.S.N. curriculum consists of the following components.

ADVANCED NURSING CORE

Core courses are taken by all students in the program. The core consists of 12 s.h. of course work, including leadership in nursing (3 s.h.), research application (3 s.h.), health policy and economics (3 s.h.), and nursing informatics in nursing and health care (3 s.h.).

NURSING SPECIALIZATION

Specialization allows students to build a specialized area of knowledge and practice that extends beyond the advanced nursing core. Students may pursue clinical specialization in adult and gerontological nursing, child health nursing, genetics nursing, community health nursing, occupational health nursing, psychiatric/mental health nursing, anesthesia nursing, pediatric nurse practitioner, adult/gerontology nurse practitioner, neonatal nurse practitioner, and family nurse practitioner. Nonclinical specializations include nursing administration, the M.B.A./M.S.N. joint degree program, the M.S.N./M.P.H. joint degree program, and informatics. Some areas of specialization require special acceptance procedures. Students with unique career goals have the option of modifying their plans of study under the direction of their academic advisors.

Students in the practitioner programs take an advanced clinical core that includes advanced physiology, pharmacology, health assessment, health promotion, and a professional role course. Students in other clinical options may be required to take one or more of these courses.

Some of the clinical core courses are open to other students. Students in a clinical or management specialization develop their knowledge and practice through course work and fieldwork.

SUPPORTING COURSES

Supporting course work varies with each specialization area. Supporting courses can be selected from varied academic departments at the University and should relate to the student's interest and specialization area.

Some specialization areas require students to take some courses in other departments. For example, students in the community health nursing specialization must complete an upper-division or equivalent course in epidemiology and a management course; students in the management option select supporting courses from business, health management and policy, or allied study areas. Students select supporting course work in collaboration with their faculty advisors.

THESIS/PROJECT/PORTFOLIO

All M.S.N. students must take a final examination. Students satisfy this requirement by completing a thesis, project, or portfolio. Students, with their advisors, select the option that best serves their individual career objectives.

The master's thesis is a systematic inquiry into a nursing problem. Methodologies may include historical research, case studies, analytical literature review, surveys, or experimental studies that meet the requirements of the University of Iowa Graduate College. Students earn a total of 5 s.h. for the thesis.

The master's project is an in-depth synthesis and analysis of a chosen topic in nursing. The 15-to-20-page paper of publishable quality may not replicate previous course assignments. Students earn 2-3 s.h. for the project.

The master's clinical portfolio is a written description of the clinical experiences that contributed to the development of the advanced practice role and a self-assessment of clinical competencies and areas for future growth. Students in the nurse practitioner, nurse anesthesia, and clinical specialty tracks are eligible to complete the clinical portfolio.

The master's professional portfolio is a written description of practicum experiences and competencies. Students in the nonclinical tracks are eligible to complete the professional portfolio.

Students earn no credit for the portfolio.

Admission

Applicants to the M.S.N. must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. Applicants must have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test and must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00.

In addition, the College of Nursing requires the following:

- a bachelor's degree with a major in nursing from an accredited program (options are available for registered nurse applicants with a non-accredited B.S.N., a non-nursing B.A. or B.S., or a B.S.N. from a foreign country);
- the legal requirements for the practice of nursing in Iowa;

- current written recommendations from three persons familiar with the applicant's competence in the practice of nursing and potential for leadership and scholarship (forms required);

- current résumé, goal statement, and supplemental/information form;

- completion of an upper-division nursing research course in the undergraduate program; and

- successful completion of an upper-level statistics course (or equivalent) within five years of registering for 096:206 Nursing Science and Inquiry.

Students whose first language is not English must score at least 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), or 81 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

Applications for admission to the M.S.N. program are reviewed twice a year. For review, the applicant's file must be complete, with all relevant materials submitted. Application deadlines are February 15 for fall admission and October 1 for spring admission. Students in the practitioner programs and the anesthesia program may begin those programs only in fall. Application deadline for the anesthesia program is October 1.

A criminal background check is conducted for all graduate students upon admission.

All Graduate College policies pertaining to academic standing, probation, and dismissal are applicable to graduate students in nursing. Transfer credit applicable to the master's degree program is limited and must be approved by the director of the graduate program in nursing and by the student's advisor. Course work taken 10 years or more before the final examination must be updated, according to University policy.

Joint M.B.A./M.S.N.

The joint Master of Business Administration/Master of Science in Nursing requires 61 s.h. The program is designed for students with previous clinical and administrative experience. Separate application to each program is required. For more information, contact the College of Nursing Graduate Programs Office.

Joint M.S.N./M.P.H.

The joint Master of Science in Nursing/Master of Public Health requires 60 s.h. The program is designed for students who want to pursue careers that include professional activities in nursing and public health. Separate application must be made to each program. Contact the College of Nursing Graduate Programs Office for more information.

Nursing Home Administrator Licensure

The nursing home administrator program offers students an efficient option for completing requirements for licensure examination while obtaining a M.S.N. Students may complete the requirements for licensure by supplementing study in adult and gerontology health nursing, adult/gerontology nurse practitioner, or nurse manager.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in nursing requires a minimum of 72 s.h. of graduate credit. The program prepares scientists to conduct research in nursing, extend their knowledge base relevant to nursing, and contribute to the body of knowledge in the discipline of nursing. Study requires expertise in clinical nursing and competence in research that relates to nursing practice and health care delivery.

B.S.N. students who intend to pursue a Ph.D. in nursing may be eligible to enter the doctoral program directly, once they have completed the B.S.N. Contact the College of Nursing Graduate Programs Office for more information.

Students choose from the curriculum's five focal areas: nursing in aging, nursing administration, nursing informatics, child and family nursing, and an individualized focus. Graduates of the program aspire to careers as researchers, college and university faculty members, consultants, and as leaders in the nursing profession, in health policy-making agencies, and in health care delivery systems.

Degree Requirements

All students must take the following courses.

- 096:340 Nursing Theory Construction I 3 s.h.
- 096:342 Qualitative Research 3 s.h.
- 096:344 Quantitative Research 3 s.h.
- A graduate-level course in nursing/health informatics 3 s.h.
- A graduate-level course in each of two of these areas: history of nursing, health economics, health policy 6 s.h.
- Cognate minor courses 12 s.h.
- Cognate research sequence: research methods and statistics 9 s.h.
- 096:490-096:491 Research Practicum 0 s.h.

B.S.N. graduates who enter the Ph.D. directly must take the following courses in addition to those listed above.

- 096:206 Nursing Science and Inquiry 3 s.h.
- 096:208 Leadership for Advanced Nursing Practice 3 s.h.

Two masters-level specialization courses, such as one of the following pairs:

- 096:219-096:220 Primary Care: Infants, Children, and Adolescents I-II 6 s.h.
- 096:260-096:261 Nursing Systems Administration I-II 6 s.h.
- 096:280 & 096:284 Primary Care: Adult and Older Individuals I-II 6 s.h.

In addition, all Ph.D. students must take the seminars and practicums appropriate for their focus area.

Aging Focus

- 096:410 Nursing Research of Biological Phenomena and Interventions for the Elderly 3 s.h.
- 096:420 Geriatric Mental Health Research 3 s.h.
- 096:430 Nursing Research in Sociocultural Phenomena and Interventions for the Elderly 3 s.h.
- 096:440 Research Utilization Residency in Care of the Elderly 3 s.h.

Nursing Administration Focus

- 096:450 Research Seminar in Nursing Administration I: Organizational Systems Concepts 3 s.h.
- 096:451 Research Seminar in Nursing Administration II: Health Care System Concepts 3 s.h.
- 096:460 Innovations in Nursing Management 3 s.h.
- 096:480 Residency in Nursing Service Administration 3 s.h.

Nursing Informatics Focus

- 096:462 Research in Nursing Informatics I 3 s.h.
- 096:465 Residency in Nursing Informatics 3 s.h.
- Two of these:
- 06K:234 Information and Knowledge Management 3 s.h.
- 06K:272 Database Analysis and Design 3 s.h.
- 06K:275 Knowledge Discovery 3 s.h.
- 096:309 Data Mining and Machine Learning 3 s.h.
- 096:310 Advanced Nursing Informatics 3 s.h.
- 096:313 Computational Intelligence 3 s.h.
- 096:463 Research in Nursing Informatics II 3 s.h.
- 096:464 Nursing and Health Representation and Knowledge Building 3 s.h.
- 096:470 Methods and Issues in Nursing Interventions Effectiveness Research An approved CIC doctoral-level course 3 s.h.

Child and Family Nursing Focus

- 096:405 Family Nursing Research 3 s.h.
- 096:445 Research Residency in Child and Family Nursing 3 s.h.
- Two of these:
- 096:415 Genetic Nursing Research 3 s.h.
- 096:425 Research in Sociocultural Perspectives for Family and Women’s Health 3 s.h.
- 096:435 Research in Cognitive and Behavioral Interventions for Children 3 s.h.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAM, DISSERTATION

All Ph.D. students must complete a written comprehensive examination. They earn 12 s.h. for work on the dissertation by completing 096:497 Dissertation Research Seminar I: Scholarship Development (1 s.h.), 096:498 Dissertation Research Seminar II (0 s.h.), and 096:499 Dissertation Research (11 s.h.), which includes a dissertation prospectus, the dissertation, and an oral defense.

Admission

All applicants to the Ph.D. program must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. Applicants must have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test, preferably within the preceding five years. They must have completed an accredited basic nursing program and must hold a current license to practice nursing (special license for international students). Applicants must submit:

- a two-to-three-page statement describing their educational objectives and identifying a focal area for their doctoral study;

- three recommendations from nursing professionals that speak to the applicant's potential as a scholar;

- a current résumé or curriculum vitae; and

- a complete transcript of all college programs and courses.

Applicants who hold a master's degree must have a g.p.a. of at least 3.00. They must have successfully completed at least one graduate-level course in research and inferential statistics (3 s.h.) and at least one graduate-level course in information systems/informatics (3 s.h.).

B.S.N. graduates who apply directly to the Ph.D. program must have a grade-point average of at least 3.00 and must have successfully completed an upper-division course in statistics. They also must submit a strong statement of their research focus and career goals.

Applicants whose first language is not English must score at least 550 (paper-based), 213 (computer-based), or 81 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

Nursing Service Administration Certificate

The Certificate in Nursing Service Administration provides ongoing education for nurses who have a bachelor's degree but do not wish to pursue the M.S.N. Students in the 15 s.h. certificate program must hold a B.S.N. and have an RN license.

Advanced Practice Nursing Certificate

The post-master's degree Certificate in Advanced Practice Nursing allows for advanced clinical training in four specialty tracks: pediatric nurse practitioner, adult/gerontology nurse practitioner, family nurse practitioner, and psychiatric/mental health nursing. Certificate requirements include advanced clinical core courses and a sequence of specialty courses. Students formulate a plan of study with the advice and counsel of their advisor and/or the director of the master's program. Successful completion of the specialty sequence qualifies a student to sit for professional certification examinations. Completion of the certificate program is noted on the student's transcript.

Nursing Informatics Certificate

The Certificate in Nursing Informatics is a program for graduate students. Course work for the certificate focuses on methods and technologies of information handling and knowledge building in nursing. Certificate students must earn 20 s.h. in courses that cover the development, support, and evaluation of applications, tools, processes, and structures used to manage data for patient care and administrative support.

Health Informatics Certificate

The Certificate in Health Informatics is a program for graduate students. Certificate students must earn 20 s.h. in courses numbered 100 or above, including two required core courses.

Health Informatics I (096:283, 3 s.h.) is an interdisciplinary course intended primarily for graduate students, faculty, and health care clinicians. It explores decision-making processes and technological tools to support health care administration, management, and practice.

Health Informatics II (096:289, 3 s.h.) is an interdisciplinary course focused on field projects related to one or more health informatics topics under the direction of established researchers/educators. It includes a seminar.

Students select electives (9-14 s.h.) from outside their major program of study. For example, a student working toward a nursing degree and the Certificate in Health Informatics can use only non-nursing electives for the certificate. Students choose electives with the guidance of their academic and certificate advisors.

Students who earn credit for a thesis, project, or independent study in their major program of study may apply the credit to the Certificate in Health Informatics if the certificate advisor determines that the subject matter is pertinent.

Professional Improvement

Registered nurses who wish to take University of Iowa course work to fulfill professional or personal improvement objectives may request admission in the professional improvement (PI) category. This admission status allows students to take some graduate courses at the University without committing to a degree objective.

Admission as a nursing professional improvement student requires a formal application, including submission of three current written recommendations and all academic transcripts. GRE General Test scores, required by the University, must be submitted before the end of first semester registration. Deadlines are July 15 for fall semester admission, December 1 for spring semester admission, and May 1 for summer session admission.

Since acceptance as a PI student does not influence acceptance to the M.S.N. or Ph.D. programs, PI students interested in master's or doctoral study in nursing must follow the application procedures for those programs (see the appropriate sections, above). Only 6 s.h. or two required nursing core courses taken under professional improvement status may be used to fulfill M.S.N. requirements. Professional improvement students may not enroll in Ph.D. courses.

Student Organizations

All College of Nursing undergraduate students are members of the National Student Nurses' Association and its local chapter, the Iowa Association of Nursing Students. The University of Iowa Association of Nursing Students (UIANS), which provides opportunities for professional growth and development in nursing. UIANS representatives are members of the University of Iowa Student Government (UISG), and there is a UIANS representative on the Academic Council of the College of Nursing.

The University of Iowa Minority Student Nursing Association (UIMNSA) provides opportunities for professional growth and development for students from populations underrepresented in nursing. UIMNSA board members are members of the University of Iowa Student Government.

The college's Association of Graduate Nursing Students (AGNS) provides opportunities for professional growth sharing of research, and representation on varied college and University committees.

Continuing Education

The college offers nonacademic, short-term continuing education programs for registered nurses. Continuing Education Units (CEUs) are awarded for each program on the basis of one unit per 10 clock hours of instruction. The College of Nursing is approved by the Iowa Board of Nursing as an approved provider, number 1, and is accredited by the American Nurses Association Board of Accreditation and the National Association of Pediatric Nurse Associates and Practitioners.

Facilities

The Nursing Building is centrally located on the University's main campus, in close proximity to the Carver College of Medicine, the College of Dentistry, the College of Pharmacy, the College of Public Health, University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, Bowen Science Building, and the Hardin Library for the Health Sciences.

Completed in 1971, the building consists of five floors with varied and specialized facilities. Administrative offices are located on the first floor. Faculty offices are located on every floor except the second, which is used entirely for classrooms and laboratories.

Learning Resource Services, located on the ground level, includes a technology laboratory. There are classrooms throughout the building; conference rooms, student lounges, and meeting rooms are located conveniently. Research and computer facilities provide direct access to the University's computing facilities and to college-owned microcomputers.

Courses

Primarily for Undergraduates

096:030 Human Development and Behavior 3 s.h.
Normal developmental transitions experienced by individuals and family systems throughout the lifespan, including physical, cognitive, and social-emotional development. Prerequisite: 031:001. Same as 153:030.

096:031 Adult Development and Aging 1 s.h.

096:050 Perspectives on Health Care Systems 3 s.h.
Health care systems, delivery modes, resources, economics, contemporary problems and policies that influence health care; emphasis on the context of health care delivery. Prerequisite: facility with e-mail and World Wide Web.

096:051 Art and Science of Nursing 3 s.h.
Integrated view of theories from nursing, the arts, the sciences; historic, holistic, and global perspectives on creative and scientific processes and concepts that underlie and guide nursing practice.

- 096:100 Mental Health Services and Policy I 3 s.h.
Same as 174:140.
- 096:109 Leadership U 1-3 s.h.
Repeatable.
- 096:114 Human Pathophysiology: Organ Systems 3 s.h.
Normal and abnormal functioning of human cells, tissues, and organ systems over the lifespan; focus on cardiovascular, respiratory, renal, gastrointestinal, endocrine, and reproductive systems, and on processes of metabolism and homeostasis of the internal milieu. Prerequisites: approved courses in biology, inorganic chemistry, microbiology, and human anatomy; or consent of instructor.
- 096:115 Human Pathophysiology: Cellular/Neurology/Immunology 3 s.h.
Normal and abnormal functioning of human cells, tissues, and organ systems over the lifespan; focus on processes of communication, control, defense, and movement. Prerequisites: approved courses in biology, inorganic chemistry, microbiology, and human anatomy; or consent of instructor.
- 096:116 Introduction to Human Genetics 3 s.h.
Introduction to organization of the human genome and basic principles of inheritance in humans; cells and development, chromosome structure and function, gene structure and function, genes in pedigrees and populations, implications of genetic variation on health.
- 096:124 Pharmacotherapeutics in Nursing 3 s.h.
Basic principles of pharmacotherapeutics and pharmacologic interventions; focus on mechanism of drug actions in patient treatment. Prerequisites: 096:114 and 096:115, or consent of instructor.
- 096:125 Health Disparities and Cultural Competence 2-4 s.h.
Introduction to characteristics, causes, and effects of health disparities in the U.S. health care system; foundation for development of knowledge, attitudes, and skills required of culturally competent health providers; health disparities among specific population groups, definitions and models of cultural competence, evidence for cultural competence as a remedy for health disparities, guidelines for taking a culturally appropriate history, working with language interpreters, legal and professional imperatives for cultural competence, characteristics of culturally effective practitioners and workplaces, personal growth in cultural competence; experiential activities. Same as 046:377, 172:135.
- 096:126 Communication for Health Professionals 2 s.h.
The communication process in health care settings; emphasis on theory-based strategies to improve communication with individuals, families, other health care professionals.
- 096:127 Health Assessment Across the Life Span 4 s.h.
Knowledge and skills health professionals need to perform holistic health assessments of individuals across the life span; emphasis on history taking, physical assessment skills; laboratory practices. Prerequisites: anatomy, human development and behavior, and animal biology courses; and admission to the College of Nursing.
- 096:130 Teaching and Learning Online 3 s.h.
Synthesis and critical evaluation of current knowledge regarding use of online learning as a tool; empirical research, best practices, and available resources to support effective implementation and management of online learning; skill development and practice; web-based course.
- 096:134 Basic Concepts of Nursing Care 4 s.h.
Physiological and behavioral concepts, nursing interventions, and activities across settings and populations; based on nursing interventions classification taxonomy. First in a two-course sequence. Prerequisite: nursing major. Pre- or corequisites: 096:114 or 096:115, and 096:127.
- 096:135 Complex Concepts of Nursing Care 4 s.h.
Continuation of 096:134; physiological and behavioral concepts, nursing interventions, and activities across settings and populations. Prerequisites: 096:134 and nursing major. Pre- or corequisites: 096:114 or 096:115, and 096:124. Corequisite: 096:136.
- 096:136 Core Clinical Practicum 4 s.h.
Acute care of adult clients in the clinical setting; in-depth practicum experience applying basic and complex concepts of nursing care; focus on clinical decision-making skills. Prerequisites: 096:126, 096:127, and 096:134. Corequisite: 096:135.
- 096:139 Parent-Child Nursing 3 s.h.
Health promotion, maintenance, and restoration for parents, infants, children, and adolescents in childbearing and child-rearing families. Prerequisite: 096:135. Pre- or corequisite: 096:124.
- 096:140 Parent-Child Nursing Practicum 3 s.h.
Principles of health promotion, maintenance, and restoration applied among parents, infants, children, and adolescents in childbearing and child-rearing families. Prerequisites: 096:135 and 096:136. Pre- or corequisites: 096:124 and 096:139.
- 096:141 Gerontological Nursing 3 s.h.
Nurse's role in promoting, maintaining, and restoring the health of aging adults; nursing science applied to care of older adults in diverse settings. Prerequisite: 096:135. Pre- or corequisite: 096:124.
- 096:142 Gerontological Nursing Practicum 3 s.h.
Nursing process applied to promote, maintain, and restore health of older adults; opportunities to provide nursing care to well elderly and to acutely and/or chronically ill elderly in a variety of settings. Prerequisites: 096:135 and 096:136. Pre- or corequisites: 096:124 and 096:141.
- 096:143 Research for Nursing Practice 3 s.h.
The research process and its application to nursing. Prerequisites: 096:050, an approved statistics course, and admission to the College of Nursing.
- 096:146 Health Promotion for Older Adults 3 s.h.
Same as 153:146, 169:146.
- 096:147 End-of-Life Care for Adults and Families 2-4 s.h.
End-of-life issues in care of adults, older adults, and their families; key concepts related to end-of-life care, including the epidemiology of dying and systems of care; communication, roles and relationships, pain and symptom management, legal and ethical issues, grief and grieving, well being; psychosocial, spiritual, cultural aspects of care. Prerequisites: 096:135 and 096:136, or RN student standing, or consent of instructor. Same as 046:146, 050:147, 153:147.
- 096:150 Independent Study arr.
Supervised study designed for individual undergraduate students.
- 096:151 Honors Independent Study 1-3 s.h.
Supervised study designed for individual honors students.
- 096:152 Honors Seminar 1 s.h.
Supervised study designed for individual honors students.
- 096:153 Public Health Nursing 3 s.h.
Nursing's role in the relationship between community conditions and public health. Prerequisite: 096:135. Pre- or corequisite: 096:124.
- 096:154 Public Health Nursing Practicum 3 s.h.
Application of public health principles and nursing knowledge and skills to primary, secondary, and tertiary disease prevention problems of individuals, families, social aggregates. Prerequisites: 096:135 and 096:136. Pre- or corequisites: 096:124 and 096:153.

096:155 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing 3 s.h.

General principles and practices of psychiatric/mental health nursing; psychiatric disorders, populations at risk, continuity of care, problems in daily living. Prerequisite: 096:135. Pre- or corequisite: 096:124.

096:156 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing Practicum 3 s.h.

Nursing process used to deliver nursing care to individuals and families with mental illness in a variety of clinical settings; focus on promotion, maintenance, restoration of the mental health of individuals and families. Prerequisites: 096:135 and 096:136. Pre- or corequisites: 096:124 and 096:155.

096:157 Nursing Leadership and Care Management 3 s.h.

Analysis of nursing leadership, care management, and models of care in the context of society and the interdisciplinary health care system. Prerequisite: senior standing in nursing or consent of instructor.

096:158 Clinical Nursing Internship 5 s.h.

Independent internship in one of a variety of health care settings to promote role transition, lifelong learning; emphasis on integration and application of knowledge and skills to design, provide, manage, and coordinate care. Prerequisite: senior standing in nursing.

096:159 Contemporary Nursing Practice Issues 3 s.h.

Identification, exploration, analyses of selected issues in nursing and health care; impact of significant historical, social, political, genetic, legal, and ethical factors on development of the nursing discipline. Prerequisite: senior standing in nursing or consent of instructor.

096:168 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness I 3 s.h.

Same as 06j:147, 024:147, 025:176, 032:127, 042:157, 049:175.

096:169 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness II 3 s.h.

Same as 06j:148, 024:148, 025:177, 032:128, 042:158, 049:176.

096:171 Nursing and Society 1 s.h.

Introduction to professional nursing; history, knowledge development, roles, and health professional relationships of nursing; nursing's unique contribution to meeting societal needs through theory, research, and practice. Prerequisite: admission to M.N.H.P. program.

096:173 Clinical Inquiry 4 s.h.

Clinical reasoning and outcomes, information systems and management, evidence-based practice, scholarship and scientific writing; development of skill using the research process to define clinical research problems. Prerequisites: 22S:101 or 22S:102 or equivalent, and admission to M.N.H.P. program.

096:176 Clinical Reasoning 4 s.h.

Skills to help nontraditional nursing students synthesize, expand, and refine nursing concepts and clinical reasoning competencies; development and application of cognitive and psychomotor skills necessary for performing systematic, holistic, and culturally competent health assessment. Prerequisites: 096:114 or 096:115 or equivalent, 096:177, and admission to M.N.H.P. program.

096:177 Therapeutic Nursing Interventions I 4 s.h.

Physiological and behavioral concepts, nursing diagnoses, interventions, and outcomes across settings and populations; nursing classifications; experience in the laboratory. Prerequisites: 096:114 or 096:115 or equivalent, 096:176, and admission to M.N.H.P. program.

096:178 Therapeutic Nursing Interventions II 4 s.h.

Continuation of 096:177. Prerequisites: 096:176, 096:177, and admission to M.N.H.P. program. Corequisite: 096:124.

096:180 Intensive Practicum I 4 s.h.

Applications of health care concepts, nursing diagnoses, interventions, and outcomes presented in 096:176 and 096:177; focus on clinical decision-making skills. Prerequisites: 096:176, 096:177, and admission to M.N.H.P. program. Corequisites: 096:124 and 096:178.

096:183 Intensive Practicum II 4 s.h.

Experience in varied acute and community-based settings; opportunity to apply principles to the care of diverse populations, consistent with the four specialty theory courses; proficiency with advanced care management interventions and technologies. Prerequisites: 096:180 and admission to M.N.H.P. program. Corequisites: 096:139, 096:141, 096:153, and 096:155.

096:184 Hairitage: African American Women's Hair Culture 2-3 s.h.

Hair and its centrality to the experience of women of African descent; emotional, political, economical, and historical significance; political, legal, and educational implications; connections to ideas of aesthetics, race relations, family dynamics, consumerism, and so forth.

096:185 Internship in Care Management 14 s.h.

Intensive clinical experience in nursing care management with nurse preceptors, with focus on complex, collaborative nursing care management of diverse populations; enhancement of care management skills as a foundation for optimal clinical outcomes. Prerequisites: 096:139, 096:141, 096:153, 096:155, 096:183, and admission to M.N.H.P. program.

096:186 Cultural Expeditions in Nursing 3 s.h.

Multicultural awareness, recognition of specific health care beliefs and values; online course originating at University of Missouri-Columbia. Prerequisite: 096:135 or consent of instructor.

096:187 Legal Issues for Health Care Providers 3 s.h.

Legal issues faced by health care providers, counselors, and social services providers; administrative and regulatory requirements, civil lawsuits, issues that affect students as providers, advocates, and individuals.

096:188 Clinical Leadership I 2 s.h.

Nursing leadership, care management, and models of care in contexts of society and interdisciplinary health care; resource allocation and utilization, and delivery of care; clinical outcome improvement for populations and individuals. Prerequisites: 096:176 and 096:177.

096:189 Clinical Leadership II 2 s.h.

Builds on the content in 096:188; application of leadership and management concepts and skills in a changing, interdisciplinary health care system; concepts for human resource management and quality care outcomes for individuals and populations; personal professional roles, transition to leadership roles, support from professional organizations. Prerequisite: 096:188.

096:190 Dimensions of Professional Nursing 3 s.h.

The nursing discipline; identification, exploration, analysis of contemporary issues and trends in nursing; professional roles and responsibilities; the health care environment; importance of nursing science, theory, and research to nursing practice. Prerequisites: computer literacy and RN/B.S.N. standing, or consent of instructor.

096:191 Health Assessment 4 s.h.

Health assessment of adults; experience demonstrating assessment skills, compiling a health history, conducting a physical exam, and developing nursing diagnoses for clients. Prerequisite: RN/B.S.N. standing or consent of instructor.

096:192 Community Health Nursing 3 s.h.

Nursing's role in the relationship between community conditions and public health; principles of public health, nursing knowledge, skills used to address primary, secondary, tertiary disease prevention needs. Prerequisites: 096:190, 096:191, and nursing major or consent of instructor.

096:193 Community Health Nursing Practicum 1, 3 s.h.

Experience applying principles of public health and nursing skills and knowledge to primary, secondary, and tertiary disease prevention problems of individuals, families, and groups.

Prerequisites: 096:190 and 096:191, or consent of instructor; and RN licensure in state of practicum. Pre- or corequisite: 096:192.

096:194 Leadership and Care Management in Professional Nursing Practice 3 s.h.

Nursing leadership and management in a dynamic practice environment; focus on context in which nurses practice, leadership and management principles in changing health care system. Prerequisites: 096:192, 096:193, and 096:197; or consent of instructor.

096:195 Practicum for Leadership and Care Management in Professional Nursing 3 s.h.

Experience applying concepts of leadership, management, and evidence-based practice in a variety of settings; development of individualized plan of study for the experience. Prerequisites: 096:192, 096:193, and 096:197, or consent of instructor; and RN licensure in state of practicum. Pre- or corequisite: 096:194.

096:196 Special Studies in Nursing 3 s.h.

Identification, exploration, and analysis of contemporary issues that confront the professional nurse; the practice of nursing, regulation of health care systems, available resources.

Prerequisite: 096:192 or consent of instructor.

096:197 Research for Practicing Nurses 3 s.h.

Research process, its application to nursing practice for RN students; conceptual basis, methodology, data collection, data analysis, presentation and utilization of research. Prerequisites: 096:190 or consent of instructor, and an approved statistics course.

096:198 Rural Clinical Leadership Practicum 3 s.h.

Nursing leadership preparation; observation of health professional role models, hands-on interdisciplinary experience in a rural low hospital system; complex leadership roles, unique health care needs and opportunities in rural nursing and health care; contact with a faculty mentor by telephone and e-mail; clinical course.

Prerequisites: 096:050, 096:051, and 096:136.

096:199 Intensive Practicum III 4 s.h.

Intensive clinical experience in nursing care management in collaboration with nurse preceptors; complex, collaborative nursing care management of diverse populations; enhancement of care management skills as a basic foundation for achieving optimal clinical outcomes; experience in application of evidence-based practice, clinical decision making, delegation and supervision, fiscal accounting; focus on interdisciplinary collaboration within complex organizational systems.

Prerequisites: 096:139, 096:141, 096:153, 096:155, and 096:183.

096:200 Capstone Residency: Clinical Nurse Leader 4 s.h.

Capstone clinical practicum; immersion in role and practice expectations of the clinical nurse leader; mentoring by experienced clinical nurse leader(s) expert in providing and supervising care at the point of care; achieving optimal clinical outcomes by focusing on clinical leadership skills; application of evidence-based practice, collection and evaluation of client outcomes, assessment of cohort risk, interdisciplinary collaboration, client advocacy, client and staff education, direct provision of care in complex situations, application of cost-efficient care principles. Prerequisite: 096:199 or consent of instructor. Pre- or corequisite: 096:188.

Primarily for Graduate Students

Courses are offered only if minimum enrollments are maintained.

096:205 Clinical Practicum: Health of Children in Schools 3 s.h.

Delivery of health care in school settings; educational, legal, cultural, ethical issues in school nursing practice; developmental issues and their relationship to risk factors and the school population's health; application of nursing interventions, evaluation of nursing and educational outcomes; clinical practicum with children in a school setting; seminar, 90 clock hours in clinical practicum. Prerequisite: M.S.N. enrollment with school health focus.

096:206 Nursing Science and Inquiry 3 s.h.

Research design and analysis for examining, applying, and using nursing science. Prerequisites: 096:143 or equivalent, and an advanced statistics course within past five years.

096:208 Leadership for Advanced Nursing Practice 3 s.h.

Roles and behaviors for leading others and influencing health care delivery.

096:209 Health Systems/Economics/Policy 3 s.h.

Global, economic, organizational, political, and technological contexts for advanced nursing practice.

096:210 Healthcare Financial Management 3 s.h.

Overview of health care finance and finance management; finance principles used by health services organizations.

096:211 Research for Evidence-Based Practice I 3 s.h.

Opportunity for clinicians to develop proficiency in use of research- and evidence-based practice; essentials of the research process, qualitative and quantitative research, components of evidence-based practice; acquisition of knowledge and skills necessary for research (knowledge) utilization initiatives and application of evidence-based practice principles in clinical settings; identification of appropriate research questions, synthesis of knowledge base for evidence-based practice, revision of clinical practice guidelines, and evaluation of research utilization and evidence-based practice initiatives. Prerequisite: successful completion of two posttests for 096:143.

096:212 Research for Evidence-Based Practice II 3 s.h.

Innovation models applied to nursing practice; implementation and evaluation research applied to planning, initiating, and monitoring best-care practices; factors that impede or facilitate evidence-based practice changes within and across health care systems; strategies for successful implementation of evidence-based practice change in organizations; students participate in evidence-based implementation process. Prerequisite: Doctor of Nursing Practice enrollment or 096:211 or consent of instructor.

096:213 Physiology for Advanced Clinical Practice 3 s.h.

Regulation of cellular, organ, and system function; regulation of internal milieu; functional interrelationships among body systems; cellular and body-wide mechanisms of self-defense; illustrative examples of pathological phenomena. Prerequisites: anatomy, physiology, microbiology, and pathophysiology courses, or equivalents, or consent of instructor.

096:214 Advanced Health Assessment for Clinical Practice 3 s.h.

Knowledge and skills necessary for advanced health assessment of individuals and families across the life span. Prerequisite: graduate standing in nursing or consent of instructor.

096:219 Primary Care: Infants, Children, and Adolescents I 2-3 s.h.
 Enhancement of clinical knowledge and skills for infant, child, adolescent care. Prerequisites: 096:213, 096:214, 096:222, and 096:224.

096:220 Primary Care: Infants, Children, and Adolescents II 3 s.h.
 Enhancement of clinical knowledge and skills for infant, child, adolescent care; development and refinement of knowledge and skills in primary health care delivery. Prerequisite: 096:219 or 096:280. Same as 070:201.

096:221 Primary Care: Pediatric Nurse Practitioner III Intensive Practicum 3 s.h.
 In-depth practicum synthesizing clinical management and role enactment; opportunity for discussion and analysis of practice and role issues. Prerequisites: 096:220 and 096:285.

096:222 Health Promotion and Intervention for Primary Care 3 s.h.
 Theories of health promotion in primary care, levels of prevention, epidemiological principles and methods; specific interventions designed to maintain, promote, optimize health across the lifespan.

096:223 Clinical Applications for Health Assessment and Health Promotion 1-3 s.h.
 Advanced health assessment and promotion skills applied to planning, implementing, and evaluating interventions designed to maintain, promote, and optimize health across the lifespan. Prerequisite: graduate standing in nursing or consent of instructor. Pre- or corequisites: 096:214 and 096:222.

096:224 Pharmacotherapeutics for Advanced Clinical Practice 4 s.h.
 Pharmacologic, pharmacokinetic, and pharmacodynamic principles essential for advanced clinical practice; classes of drugs frequently used in management of common clinical conditions; legal considerations in prescriptive authority. Prerequisite: 096:213 or consent of instructor.

096:225 Biopsychosocial Dimensions of Healthy Aging 3 s.h.
 Biopsychosocial dimensions of healthy aging in individuals; healthy aging, including behavior and normal age-related physiological changes, psychosocial and cultural implications of aging; expansion of gerontological nursing based on integration of theory, research, standardized nursing languages.

096:228 Advanced Practice Genetic Nursing I 3 s.h.
 Theories and principles of nursing, counseling, and human genetics; focus on nursing assessment, interventions, and outcomes for individuals, families, and populations at risk for genetic conditions. Prerequisites: 096:213, 096:214, and 096:223. Pre- or corequisites: 002:128 and 070:110. Corequisite: 096:229.

096:229 Advanced Practice Genetic Nursing Practicum I 2 s.h.
 Integration and application of advanced practice in genetic nursing assessment and counseling skills with individuals and families. Corequisite: 096:228 or consent of instructor.

096:230 Advanced Practice Genetic Nursing II 3 s.h.
 Genetic conditions that present in adult years; gene detection, ethical and social aspects of genetic health care delivery, professional issues in the delivery of genetic care. Prerequisites: 096:228 and 096:229. Corequisites: 07C:178 and 096:231.

096:231 Advanced Practice Genetic Nursing Practicum II 2 s.h.
 Application of advanced practice in genetic nursing; emphasis on conditions that present in the adult years and the nurse's role in an interdisciplinary genetic delivery system. Prerequisite: 096:229. Corequisite: 096:230.

096:232 Professional Aspects of Clinical Nursing Practice 3 s.h.
 Advanced nursing role competencies and related settings in which advanced nursing practice occurs; history and development, core competencies, advanced practice roles, practice management issues. Prerequisite: 096:208.

096:234 Advanced Community Health Assessment 3 s.h.
 Health of communities, process of assessment; emphasis on conceptual models from public health that focus on select populations, community assessment. Prerequisite: epidemiology course.

096:235 Advanced Community Health Nursing Practicum I 2 s.h.
 Integration and application of advanced community health assessment knowledge, skills; nurse's role in population-focused practice. Prerequisites: epidemiology course and M.S.N. enrollment. Corequisite: 096:234.

096:236 Advanced Community Health Intervention and Evaluation 3 s.h.
 Development, implementation, evaluation of health promotion and disease prevention strategies for select populations, communities. Prerequisite: 096:234.

096:237 Advanced Community Health Nursing Practicum II 2 s.h.
 Integration and application of knowledge and skills for advanced community health intervention, outcome evaluation. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: M.S.N. enrollment. Pre- or corequisite: 096:236.

096:238 Intensive Practicum in Advanced Community Health 3 s.h.
 Synthesis of advanced public health theory, nursing knowledge; in-depth experience synthesizing clinical management, role enactment. Offered summer sessions of odd years. Prerequisites: 096:235 and 096:237.

096:241 The Care of the Frail Elderly 3 s.h.
 Clinical management of the elderly; emphasis on economic considerations, principles of gerontological care, common syndromes, ethical issues; clinical application experience in a long-term care setting. Prerequisites: 096:214, 096:222, and 096:224. Same as 153:241.

096:242 Primary Care: Adult/GNP Clinical Practice I 3 s.h.
 Clinical management of the pathological alterations presented in 096:280; development of comprehensive assessment and clinical management skills in the context of community services and resources.

096:243 Primary Care: Adult/GNP Clinical Practice II 3 s.h.
 Continuation of 096:242, which is prerequisite; clinical management of the pathological alterations presented in 096:284; comprehensive assessment and clinical management skills. Corequisite: 096:284.

096:244 Primary Care: Adult/Gerontological Nurse Practitioner III Intensive Practicum 3 s.h.
 Transition from student to advanced adult/gerontological nurse practitioner; in-depth primary care experience synthesizing aspects of clinical management and role enactment. Prerequisite: 096:243.

096:246 Nursing Education: Process, Roles, and Strategies 3 s.h.
 Role of nurse educator through study, application of teaching/learning theories; learning tasks of students in nursing education programs. Pre- or corequisite: 096:208 or consent of instructor.

- 096:247 Curriculum Development in Nursing Education 3 s.h.
Societal, educational, professional factors in undergraduate curriculum design; evaluation of components in basic nursing education programs. Prerequisite: 096:246.
- 096:250 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing Theory I 3 s.h.
Basic psychological principles, theories related to mental health and intersections between physical and mental health; psychological theory viewed through framework of lifespan development, infancy through adulthood.
- 096:251 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing Theory II 3 s.h.
Advanced psychiatric nursing practice with selected populations; definition and expansion of practice based on the integration of theory, standardized languages, research, self-evaluation. Prerequisite: 096:250 or consent of instructor.
- 096:252 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing Practice with Individuals 3 s.h.
Therapeutic models that guide clinical practice with individuals; major psychological and biological theories applied to nursing process with individuals in a variety of settings. Prerequisites: 096:224, 096:251, and admission to psychiatric/mental health nursing program.
- 096:253 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing Practice with Families 3 s.h.
Experience using family therapy as a treatment modality; relevance of family intervention models for meeting mental health needs of families. Prerequisites: 096:251 and admission to psychiatric/mental health nursing program.
- 096:254 Psychiatric/Mental Health Nursing Practice with Groups 3 s.h.
Experience using group process as a treatment modality; relevance of group intervention models for meeting mental health needs of clients across the life span. Prerequisites: 096:251 and admission to psychiatric/mental health nursing program.
- 096:255 Psychiatric/Mental Health Care Management 3 s.h.
Direct and indirect care responsibilities, including clinical supervision, evaluation of treatment environments, program development, interdisciplinary collaboration; development of goals for future professional development and contributions to nursing. Prerequisites: 096:251 and 096:252.
- 096:256 Occupational Health Nursing I 3 s.h.
Framework for occupational health nursing practice and evolving role of the occupational health nurse; focus on health in the workplace. Prerequisite: 175:230 or consent of instructor. Corequisite: 096:257.
- 096:257 Occupational Health Practicum I 3 s.h.
Concepts and theories of 096:256 integrated with professional nursing practice in the workplace; clinical focus on environmental perspective of worker health and role of occupational health nurse at worksite. Prerequisites: 175:230 and 173:140. Corequisite: 096:256.
- 096:258 Occupational Health Nursing II 3 s.h.
Framework for implementing and evaluating risk reduction program in the workplace; compliance with regulatory entities in occupational health, quality assurance, surveillance, injury prevention. Prerequisites: 096:206, 096:208, and 096:256. Corequisite: 096:259.
- 096:259 Occupational Health Practicum II 3 s.h.
Transition from student role to clinical specialist role in occupational health nursing; in-depth experience in student's interest area. Corequisite: 096:258.
- 096:260 Nursing Systems Administration I 1-4 s.h.
Leadership concepts and theories, and their application to the nurse administrator's unique roles in community and institutional health care organizations; environmental, technological, and professional influences on structure and functions of health care and nursing service organizations and on the nurse administrator's role; course modules on leading patient care delivery, health care systems, and strategic management; practicum component for nurse administrator students. Prerequisite: 096:208 or consent of instructor.
- 096:261 Nursing Systems Administration II 1-5 s.h.
Concepts and theories regarding administration of financial, material, and human resources and quality of service, related to selected functions of the nurse administrator; course modules on financial management, human resources management, and outcomes and safety management; financial, human resources, and outcomes management in context of institutional settings (hospitals, nursing homes) or community and ambulatory care settings; influence of economic and social forces on administration of resources, personnel, and quality of service; research in nursing, business, and behavioral science related to administrative functions; practicum component for nurse administrator students. Prerequisite: 096:208 or 096:260 or consent of instructor.
- 096:263 Informatics in Nursing and Health Care 3 s.h.
Foundation of information management and processing principles that support data, information, and knowledge in provision and delivery of nursing and health care. Prerequisites: competence in computer use and nursing major, or consent of instructor.
- 096:264 Nursing and Health Informatics in the International Context 2, 4 s.h.
Informatics dimensions of health care systems within a specific historical, cultural, legal, ethical, and political national context; focus on unique services of nursing, necessary information infrastructure. Prerequisite: graduate informatics course.
- 096:266 Advanced Case Management: Interdisciplinary Approach 3 s.h.
Theory, evidence, and strategies for health care coordination and integration examined through analysis of case management and disease management interventions; interdisciplinary approach; leadership for interdisciplinary teamwork; analysis and critique of case and disease management theory and models; synthesis of case and disease management principles as a framework for managing health care outcomes for cost and quality, identification of evidence-based clinical care guidelines; analysis of financial, legal, ethical, and outcomes management components of case and disease management practice. Same as 174:266.
- 096:269 Human Physiology, Pathology, and Assessment for Advanced Practice Nursing 3 s.h.
Detailed study of normal and abnormal human physiology, including mechanisms that govern and support cell, organ, and system function; builds on basic sciences required for undergraduate nursing curriculum and on clinical skills from experience in intensive care setting. Prerequisite: admission to anesthesia nursing program or consent of instructor.
- 096:270 Human Anatomy, Physiology, Pathophysiology, and Assessment for Advanced Practice Nursing 3, 6 s.h.
Interrelationships between anatomic structure and physiological function in health and disease; clinical assessment of functional integrity of organ systems; implications of pathophysiology for anesthesia. Prerequisite: admission to anesthesia nursing program or consent of instructor. Same as 060:270.
- 096:271 Chemical and Physical Principles of Anesthesia Practice 3 s.h.
Chemistry and physics, as applied to anesthesia. Prerequisite: admission to anesthesia nursing program or consent of instructor. Same as 116:271.

096:272 Pharmacology of Anesthesia Practice I 3 s.h.

Mechanism and action of drugs; focus on pharmacotherapeutic principles, including pharmacokinetics, pharmacodynamics, receptor binding, cell signaling; principles of uptake, distribution, elimination of anesthetic and adjunctive agents. Prerequisites: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:271 and admission to anesthesia nursing program, or consent of instructor. Same as 116:272.

096:273 Pharmacology of Anesthesia Practice II 2 s.h.

Continuation of 096:272; vascular, hepatic, renal, GI, endocrine aspects; cellular mechanisms, electrolytes alterations. Prerequisites: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:272 and admission to anesthesia nursing program, or consent of instructor. Same as 116:273.

096:274 Basic Principles of Anesthesia Practice 5 s.h.

Overview of anesthesia as a nursing specialty; patient assessment, anesthetic planning and management, pertinent regulations; principles of general and regional anesthesia for surgical specialties. Prerequisite: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:272, or concurrent enrollment in 096:273, or consent of instructor. Same as 116:274.

096:275 Advanced Principles of Anesthesia Practice I 2 s.h.

Special needs and intraoperative management of obstetric, pediatric, and neurological patients; emphasis on pathophysiology, monitoring, ancillary requirements. Prerequisites: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:273 and 096:274, or consent of instructor. Same as 116:275.

096:276 Advanced Principles of Anesthesia Practice II 2 s.h.

Special needs and intraoperative management of patients in cardiac, vascular, thoracic, and other surgical specialties; focus on altered pathophysiology, anesthetic requirements; strategies for special surgical situations. Prerequisites: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:273 and 096:274, or consent of instructor. Same as 116:276.

096:277 Advanced Principles of Anesthesia Practice III 1 s.h.

Acute and chronic pain management; anesthetic problems with concurrent multisystem disease, advanced age, altered physical and/or mental status. Prerequisites: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:273 and 096:274, or consent of instructor. Same as 116:277.

096:278 Professional Aspects of Anesthesia Nursing Practice 2 s.h.

Issues in contemporary anesthesia nursing practice: historical development; ethical, legal, and political aspects; evaluation; quality management; responsibilities; career expectations and development; role of professional organization. Prerequisite: anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:278.

096:279 Equipment and Technological Principles of Anesthesia Practice 3 s.h.

Anesthesia delivery systems, ancillary equipment, monitoring devices; correlation of applicable chemical and physical principles for use, safe operation, care, and cleaning of anesthesia-related equipment. Prerequisites: 116:271 and anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:279.

096:280 Primary Care: Adults and Older Individuals I 3 s.h.

Pathophysiological alterations and clinical management of associated health care problems in adults, the elderly. Prerequisites: 096:213, 096:214, 096:222, and 096:224.

096:281 Primary Care: PNP Clinical Applications I 3 s.h.

Integration of advanced assessment skills, health promotion, and knowledge of pathophysiological alterations in development and application of advanced practice competencies, including clinical decision making and critical thinking for care of infants, children, adolescents. Prerequisite: 096:223. Corequisite: 096:219.

096:282 Primary Care: Family Nurse Practitioner Clinical Applications I 3 s.h.

Integration of advanced assessment skills, health promotion, knowledge of pathophysiological alterations to develop and apply advanced practice competencies, including clinical decision making, critical thinking. Prerequisite: 096:223. Corequisite: 096:280.

096:283 Health Informatics I 3 s.h.

Technological tools that support health care administration, management, and decision making. Same as 021:275, 050:283, 051:187, 056:186, 074:191, 174:226.

096:284 Primary Care: Adults and Older Individuals II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 096:280. Prerequisite: 096:280.

096:285 Primary Care: PNP Clinical Applications II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 096:281. Prerequisite: 096:281. Corequisite: 096:220.

096:286 Primary Care: Family Nurse Practitioner Clinical Applications II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 096:282. Prerequisite: 096:282. Corequisite: 096:284.

096:287 Pharmacology of Anesthesia Practice III 2 s.h.

Drugs specific to various specialty areas: toxicology, vasoactive and cardioactive agents, drugs that alter clotting, chronic pain therapy agents. Prerequisites: grade of 2.67 or higher in 096:273 or consent of instructor, and anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:287.

096:288 Primary Care: FNP Intensive Practicum 4 s.h.

In-depth practicum experience synthesizing clinical management and role enactment; seminar on practice and role issues. Prerequisite: 096:286.

096:289 Health Informatics II 3 s.h.

Selected health informatics initiatives, including computer-based patient records, physiologic monitoring, networking, imaging, virtual reality; participation in an interdisciplinary project team focused on an informatics innovation; application and research seminars. Same as 021:280, 051:189, 056:287, 074:192.

096:290 Introductory Clinical Anesthesia 1 s.h.

Initial anesthesia preceptorship; development of basic clinical skills for work as a nurse anesthetist. Prerequisites: basic science core courses and anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:290.

096:291 Clinical Anesthesia I 1 s.h.

Supervised anesthesia clinical experience for general, orthopedic, gynecologic, pediatric, urologic, dental, EENT, ambulatory surgery, or invasive diagnostic procedures. Prerequisites: 096:290 and anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:291.

096:292 Clinical Anesthesia II 1 s.h.

Clinical anesthesia experience under faculty supervision at University Hospitals and Clinics, in surgical subspecialty rotations not completed in 096:291. Prerequisites: 096:291 and anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:292.

096:293 Advanced Clinical Anesthesia 1 s.h.

Clinical anesthesia experiences in neurologic surgery, cardiovascular/thoracic surgery; experience providing anesthesia for patients with complex pathophysiology in varied surgical settings. Prerequisites: anesthesia nursing concentration courses, anesthesia nursing program senior standing, and g.p.a. of 2.67 or higher. Same as 116:293.

096:294 Obstetrical Anesthesia 1 s.h.

Experience providing anesthesia for the parturient, initial neonatal care; two one-month rotations off campus. Prerequisite: anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:294.

096:295 Rural Anesthesia 1 s.h.
Anesthesia experience in community hospitals; three one-month rotations at UI-affiliated clinical sites in rural Iowa. Prerequisite: anesthesia nursing program enrollment. Same as 116:295.

096:296 Independent Study arr.
Supervised study and/or clinical practice adjusted to needs of master's degree students. Prerequisite: M.S.N. enrollment.

096:297 Primary Care: Neonatal Nurse Practitioner Intensive Practicum 3 s.h.
In-depth practicum synthesizing clinical management and role enactment; opportunity to discuss and analyze practice and role issues; incorporates national guidelines for neonatal nurse practitioner content. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisites: 096:284 and 096:286.

096:298 Master's Project arr.

096:299 Thesis arr.

For Doctoral Students

Open to doctoral students or to others with consent of instructor.

096:300 Classics in the Social Evolution of Modern American Nursing 3 s.h.
From 1870 to present; writings, classic books, documents; influence of societal conditions on expansion of nursing services, education.

096:303 DNP: Advanced Role Development I 3 s.h.
Organizational and leadership skills that enhance practice and emphasize clinical care, ongoing improvement of health outcomes, and patient safety; case management, business practices, multidisciplinary role setting, leadership and ethics, conflict resolution, community or aggregate populations, vulnerable populations. Prerequisite: admission to Doctor of Nursing Practice program. Corequisite: 096:304.

096:304 DNP: Advanced Role Development Practicum I 3 s.h.
Opportunities to apply advanced leadership and clinical knowledge in health care systems; application of content from 096:303; identification of needs and/or interests to define student's clinical practice; experience in selected clinical or agency sites to increase competencies in areas such as clinical acumen, case management, leadership, business practices. Prerequisite: admission to Doctor of Nursing Practice program. Corequisite: 096:308.

096:305 Emerging Science 3 s.h.
Acquisition of emerging scientific knowledge in health care and application to individuals, families, populations; integration of epidemiologic approaches, genomic factors, and socio-cultural influences in processes of conducting risk assessment, intervention implementation, and health care delivery evaluation; importance of research and statistical methods in establishing risk profiles; studies of clinical, community, vulnerable, and marginalized populations as essential for developing and implementing individualized health care plans for populations, family units, and individuals. Prerequisite: admission to Doctor of Nursing Practice program. Corequisite: 096:211.

096:306 DNP: Advanced Role Development II 3 s.h.
Builds on 096:304; continued development of in-depth clinical knowledge and skills in student's interest area; advanced levels of interprofessional collaborative skills and team building. Prerequisite: 096:303. Corequisite: 096:307.

096:307 DNP: Advanced Role Development Practicum II 3 s.h.
Builds on 096:304; advanced leadership skills and clinical knowledge applied at practicum site; enhancement of competencies in areas such as clinical acumen, case management, leadership, business practices. Prerequisites: 096:303 and 096:304. Corequisite: 096:306.

096:308 Clinical Leadership I 3 s.h.
Opportunity for in-depth analysis and synthesis of a topic that contributes to an aspect of advanced nursing practice; students relate projects to evidence-based practice/translational science courses and/or 096:303 and 096:306.

096:309 Data Mining and Machine Learning 3 s.h.

096:310 Advanced Nursing Informatics 3 s.h.
Management and processing of data and information, evaluation of information systems; related informatics research methods that support knowledge development. Prerequisite: graduate-level informatics course or consent of instructor.

096:312 Advanced Practice in Clinical Information Systems 3 s.h.
Nursing informatics theory applied to design, modification, implementation, and evaluation of nursing and health information systems; supervised clinical preceptorship. Prerequisites: 096:263 and 096:310, or consent of instructor.

096:313 Computational Intelligence 3 s.h.
Same as 056:235.

096:314 Integrated Seminar in Nursing Informatics 3 s.h.
Topics focused on problems related to nursing and health informatics theory, measurement, methodology, ethics, and policy issues. Prerequisites: Ph.D. enrollment and consent of instructor.

096:320 Economics of Health Care and Nursing 3 s.h.
Economic principles: demand, supply for health manpower; insurance; costs, financing of health care services; contemporary hospital structures, organization; role of government.

096:330 Nursing's Role in Health Care Policy 3 s.h.
Impact of federal health policy on nurses, nurse manpower projections, trends in hospital nursing, challenges of long-term care, frontiers of nursing practice, strategies for increasing nurses' autonomy, federal nursing priorities.

096:340 Nursing Theory Construction I 3 s.h.
Foundation of theory for professional practice; history, philosophy, sociology of science; development of a scientific community in nursing; relationship between theory construction, research; methods for generating specific theories.

096:342 Qualitative Research 3 s.h.
Overview of qualitative research; ethnography, grounded theory, historiography, phenomenology, and variations within each approach; philosophical underpinnings and research design across traditions; participant recruitment and selection, modes of data collection, management, and analysis, and evaluation criteria; issues in qualitative research, including integrated methods, metasynthesis, work with vulnerable populations. Prerequisite: 096:340 or consent of instructor.

096:344 Quantitative Research 3 s.h.
Refinement of students' understanding of the application of scientific logic; criteria for causality, its application in health-related research; quantitative research designs and corresponding methods of analysis, sampling theory, approaches to sample selection and recruitment, methods to avoid bias; instrument selection, reliability and validity, management of large data sets and maintenance of data integrity. Prerequisite: 096:340 or consent of instructor.

096:405 Family Nursing Research 3 s.h.
Family theories and empirical research from nursing and related disciplines; mid-range family theories; issues in research methodology.

096:410 Nursing Research of Biological Phenomena and Interventions for the Elderly 3 s.h.

Analysis, evaluation of research on health of elderly, aging process; emphasis on methodological issues, instrumentation appropriate for study of biological phenomena. Same as 153:410.

096:415 Genetic Nursing Research 3 s.h.

Concepts in human genetics integrated with nursing research; methodological issues in study of populations with specific genetic problems; generation of testable hypotheses.

096:420 Geriatric Mental Health Research 3 s.h.

Analysis, evaluation; emphasis on program evaluation, geriatric mental health services research, methodological issues. Same as 153:420.

096:425 Research in Sociocultural Perspectives for Family and Women's Health 3 s.h.

Health experiences of U.S. women and families from oppressed, marginalized cultural and social groups; approaches to developing and testing interventions, outcomes promoting and enhancing health of women and families; mid-range theory related to health care access and utilization.

096:430 Nursing Research in Sociocultural Phenomena and Interventions for the Elderly 3 s.h.

Sociocultural issues for aging clients, corresponding nursing interventions; theoretical orientations to dynamics of aging, transitions and role changes, social/environmental issues. Same as 153:430.

096:435 Research in Cognitive and Behavioral Interventions for Children 3 s.h.

Research on cognitive and behavioral problems in children, research designs and data analysis, evaluation of instruments, areas that need further development, development of testable research questions.

096:440 Research Utilization Residency in Care of the Elderly 3 s.h.

Project based on relevant gerontological nursing research. Prerequisites: two courses from 096:410, 096:420, or 096:430.

096:445 Research Residency in Child and Family Nursing 3 s.h.

Research or research utilization project based on relevant child and/or family nursing research; guided by preceptor.

096:450 Research Seminar in Nursing Administration I: Organizational Systems Concepts 3 s.h.

Health care organization, nurses in the organization; data collection instruments; directions for further research, implications for model building, research methods, practice.

096:451 Research Seminar in Nursing Administration II: Health Care System Concepts 3 s.h.

Management concepts, health care factors that influence delivery of care systems; patient outcomes; measurement of quality nursing care. Prerequisite: 096:450 or consent of instructor.

096:460 Innovations in Nursing Management 3 s.h.

Current and emerging issues that affect functions, responsibilities of nurse administrator; research base for recent innovations in nursing management; delivery of care systems for high-risk populations.

096:462 Research in Nursing Informatics I 3 s.h.

Fundamental theoretical research regarding study of symbolic representation (text, image, voice), comprehending and communicating nursing phenomena, developing methods to build databases, and developing prototypes of decision support systems and workstations. Prerequisites: 096:310 and Ph.D. enrollment.

096:463 Research in Nursing Informatics II 3 s.h.

Builds on 096:462; clinical applications, related research. Prerequisite: 096:462.

096:464 Nursing and Health Representation and Knowledge Building 3 s.h.

Structure and content of health and nursing representation schemes, knowledge retrieval, and knowledge building; strategies for implementing and evaluating representation schemes in health delivery and knowledge development contexts. Pre- or corequisite: 096:463.

096:465 Residency in Nursing Informatics 3 s.h.

Application of nursing informatics in a practice setting.

096:470 Methods and Issues in Nursing Interventions Effectiveness Research 3 s.h.

Issues in conducting research on nursing management and on clinical interventions cost effectiveness; methods and issues in classification of nursing, health, health systems phenomena. Prerequisite: Ph.D. enrollment or postdoctoral standing or consent of instructor.

096:475 Leadership Institute and Career Development 3 s.h.

Four demands of leadership: purpose, direction, and meaning; trust and accuracy; optimism; action and results. Ten-day course. Prerequisite: Ph.D. enrollment or postdoctoral standing or consent of instructor.

096:480 Residency in Nursing Service Administration 3 s.h.

Application of administrative skills in a practice setting.

096:485 Research Residency for Individualized Option 3 s.h.

Participation in a research project based on an individualized plan of study, under guidance of a preceptor.

096:490 Research Practicum 0 s.h.

Participation in ongoing investigative team as research assistant; followed by 096:491. Prerequisite: consent of advisor.

096:491 Research Practicum 0 s.h.

Continuation of 096:490. Prerequisite: consent of advisor.

096:496 Independent Study arr.

Supervised study adjusted to needs of doctoral degree students. Prerequisite: Ph.D. enrollment.

096:497 Dissertation Research Seminar I: Scholarship Development 1 s.h.

Preparation for successful completion of doctoral course work and dissertation, establishment of career research direction. Corequisite: 096:499.

096:498 Dissertation Research Seminar II 0 s.h.

Research methods, analysis procedures.

096:499 Dissertation Research arr.

Electives

ISIS lists nursing electives being offered during a particular semester. Not all courses are offered each semester.

096:108 Basic Aspects of Aging 3 s.h.

Social, psychological, and biological aspects of aging; demographics of aging, health, economic issues, primary relationships, social services. Same as 042:108, 153:108, 169:108.

096:112 Human Sexuality Diversity and Society 1-3 s.h.

Physiological, psychological aspects. Same as 042:112.

096:118 Pathophysiology 3 s.h.

Abnormal physiological health transitions; disorders in cells, organs; systems involved in vegetative functioning and biological defense of the human organism. Prerequisites: one course each in anatomy, chemistry, microbiology, physics, physiology, and psychology; or consent of instructor.

096:119 Neurological and Behavioral Pathology 1-2 s.h.

Abnormal physiological and psychological health transitions that have well-documented physiological and/or behavioral bases; focus on neurological and behavioral disorders. Pre- or corequisite: 096:118.

096:137 Nursing Care of the Patient in Pain 3 s.h.

Assessment, pharmacological and nonpharmacological nursing intervention, evaluation of acute, chronic-benign, and chronic-malignant pain. Prerequisite: RN license.

096:138 Nursing Care of the Patient with Cancer 3 s.h.

Basic understanding of the physiology of cancer and various treatment modalities, nursing interventions commonly used with cancer patients and their families, and psychosocial issues in cancer. Prerequisites: 096:124 and 096:135, or RN/B.S.N. enrollment.

096:175 Issues in International Nursing and Health Care 3 s.h.

Same as 152:175.

096:179 Selected Topics in Nursing 1-2 s.h.

In-depth study of topics in professional nursing practice and health care; workshop format.

096:182 Alternative and Complementary Medicine arr.

Same as 046:105, 078:210.

096:216 Group Facilitation in Human Sexuality 0-3 s.h.

Emphasis on role of group leader; method of teaching-didactic presentation, discussion; group experience, practice application. Same as 042:216.

The pharmacy profession is concerned with a wide variety of activities, from developing new drug products to caring for patients. A recent concept in the delivery of pharmaceutical services is pharmaceutical care—the responsible provision of drug therapy to achieve defined outcomes that improve patients’ quality of life. These outcomes include preventing, arresting, or curing a disease, and/or eliminating or reducing its symptoms.

Pharmaceutical care can enhance health care in rural settings and in primary care among the elderly, who are by far the heaviest users of drug therapy. In order to carry out these responsibilities, pharmacists specialize in the science of drugs and drug information.

Work as a pharmacist dispensing medications and information at the corner pharmacy is just one aspect of the profession. Pharmacists are active in research, clinical practice, teaching, and counseling. Along with their training in science and drug preparation, they learn the business and communication skills necessary for their multifaceted careers.

Demand for qualified pharmacists is high. Iowa’s graduates enjoy a 100 percent placement rate. Iowa’s pharmacy students study with professors who, in many cases, are pioneering the development of new drugs to solve chronic health problems. They also enjoy advanced research facilities, including those of Iowa’s drug research and manufacturing area, where experimental drugs are produced for testing and licensing by manufacturers before being introduced worldwide.

The University of Iowa College of Pharmacy is accredited by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education.

College Organization

The College of Pharmacy's faculty and programs are organized in divisions defined by three major content areas: clinical and administrative pharmacy, medicinal and natural products chemistry, and pharmaceuticals. These divisions provide course work for both the Doctor of Pharmacy curriculum and specialized graduate programs.

Clinical and Administrative Pharmacy Division

Faculty in the Clinical and Administrative Pharmacy Division provide expertise and education in the professional practice of pharmacy. Many are practitioners in a wide variety of settings; they provide instruction in the professional role of the pharmacist and the safe and effective use of medications. Course work in this division is related to pharmacotherapy, communication and practice, ethics and law, the organization and administration of the health care system, and patient care. Faculty serve as role models, providing closely supervised practice experiences.

The division's Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy programs are based in two areas: clinical pharmaceutical sciences, and pharmaceutical socioeconomics (behavioral, economic, social, and administrative sciences).

Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry Division

The Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry Division provides course work in areas related to understanding the chemistry of drugs and their action on human systems. Additional content areas include principles of drug discovery and drug design, natural product chemistry, and biotechnology/genomic strategies for producing new drug molecules.

The division's Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy programs provide abundant opportunities for interface with researchers in other areas, including medicine, pharmacology, biochemistry, chemistry, and pharmaceuticals.

Pharmaceutics Division

The Pharmaceutics Division focuses on physical pharmacy, dosage form development and performance, industrial and manufacturing pharmacy, and the pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics of drugs and biological molecules. The division's Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy programs parallel the research in the division with specialization in formulation and preformulation sciences, biopharmaceutics, pharmacokinetics, pharmacodynamics, novel drug delivery systems, and tissue engineering. Multidisciplinary program opportunities also exist with faculty in chemistry, engineering, dentistry, and other departments.

Courses for Non-Pharmacy Students

Students must be enrolled in the College of Pharmacy to take the college's courses. Graduate students in other majors must have the instructor's consent to take College of Pharmacy courses.

Professional Program (Pharm.D.)

The College of Pharmacy offers the Doctor of Pharmacy and collaborates with the College of Public Health to offer the joint Doctor of Pharmacy/Master of Public Health.

Doctor of Pharmacy

The Doctor of Pharmacy program prepares students for work as pharmacists. It provides professional education in a number of areas, including pharmaceutical technology, biopharmaceutics, medicinal chemistry and natural products, pharmaceutical socioeconomics, clinical and hospital pharmacy, and aspects of biotechnology.

The program requires four years of full-time study preceded by at least two years of prepharmacy study in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at The University of Iowa or at any accredited community or liberal arts college. Graduates of the program are qualified to take the national licensure examination required by the Iowa Board of Pharmacy Examiners.

The Doctor of Pharmacy requires satisfactory completion of required courses, including at least 12 s.h. of professional electives, 20 s.h. of general education courses, a cumulative g.p.a. of at least

2.00, and a pharmacy g.p.a. of at least 2.00. The pharmacy grade-point average is computed from grades earned in all required courses that students have completed while enrolled in the College of Pharmacy, excluding general education electives and professional electives.

A grade of C-minus or higher is required for transfer courses applied to the Pharm.D.

Rules and regulations concerning academic probation, pass/nonpass, credit by examination, maximum schedule, second-grade-only option, waiver or substitution of courses, cancellation of registration, drop date, and correspondence study are provided in the College of Pharmacy section of the ISIS Student Handbook, and in the College of Pharmacy Student Handbook.

The Tippie College of Business, the Carver College of Medicine, the College of Dentistry, and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences contribute to the education of pharmacy students by providing instruction in the physical sciences, basic medical sciences, business, the humanities, and social sciences.

Professional Curriculum

In addition to the specific courses listed here, students must complete 20 s.h. of general education courses chosen from behavioral, social, humanistic, and business disciplines.

Joint Pharm.D./M.P.H.

The College of Pharmacy and the College of Public Health offer the joint Doctor of Pharmacy/Master of Public Health. The joint Pharm.D./M.P.H. requires 42 s.h. of postbaccalaureate credit. Students who complete the program are granted both degrees.

The Pharm.D./M.P.H. program helps students develop expertise in public health related to pharmacotherapy, health promotion, disease prevention, and medication safety. Its graduates may work in areas of interest common to pharmacy and public health, such as spread and treatment of disease, community health, and immunology; bioterrorism, terrorism, and preparedness; genetics; insurance; managed care; family and juvenile health; and protection of special populations. Employment opportunities are available in hospitals and clinics and with health care providers; private practice; insurance and managed care organizations; local, county, state, and federal government; public health governmental agencies; and colleges and universities.

Separate admission to both programs is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they can be admitted to the joint degree program.

Admission requirements include a bachelor's degree or a minimum of 120 s.h. of undergraduate course work; an undergraduate cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00; one semester each of college algebra and biology; transcripts of all college course work; scores (preferably at or above the national median) on the Graduate Record Exam or the Pharmacy College Admission Test (PCAT); and three professional recommendations (University of Iowa recommendation forms are required).

Contact the College of Pharmacy and the College of Public Health for details.

Requirements

Students in the Pharm.D./M.P.H. program must complete M.P.H. core courses, practicum, and public health electives in addition to courses required for the Pharm.D.

M.P.H. CORE COURSES

Students must earn a B or higher on each core course. Students may repeat core courses to achieve this standard.

All of these:

|---|--------|
| 170:101 Introduction to Public Health | 3 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 172:101 Introduction to Health Promotion and Disease Prevention | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

|---|--------|
| 174:102 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System | 3 s.h. |
| 174:200 Introduction to Health Care Organization and Policy | 3 s.h. |

M.P.H. PRACTICUM

The practicum is a fieldwork experience in which students show proficiency in applying academic principles in community settings. Students must have completed or be enrolled in all six M.P.H. core courses before registering for the practicum. A poster presentation or a final written report with oral presentation or a poster presentation is required. The practicum constitutes the final examination for the M.P.H.

The setting for the 200-hour Pharm.D./M.P.H. practicum must have both public health and pharmacy components.

| 170:299 M.P.H. Practicum Experience | 3 s.h. |

M.P.H. ELECTIVES

Students select electives totaling 9 s.h. from one of the following public health areas: biostatistics, community and behavioral health, epidemiology, health communication, health policy and administration, occupational and environmental health, public health genetics, or an approved M.P.H. focus area (aging studies; global health; maternal, child, and family health; or nutrition and exercise). Electives are chosen in consultation with the student's advisors in the College of Pharmacy and Public Health.

COURSES THAT COUNT TOWARD BOTH DEGREES

The following required courses (12 s.h.) from the Pharm.D. curriculum also count as credit toward the M.P.H.: 046:130 Core Principles in Pharmaceutical Socioeconomics, 046:154 Endocrinology, Ophthalmology, Women's and Men's Health Therapeutics, 046:156 Cardiovascular Therapeutics, 046:165 Infectious Disease Therapeutics, and 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology.

PHARM.D. REQUIREMENTS

The joint Pharm.D./M.P.H. program requires students to complete the professional curriculum of the Pharm.D. program (see "Doctor of Pharmacy" earlier in this section).

Students must be enrolled in the College of Pharmacy in order to take College of Pharmacy courses.

Admission to the Pharm.D.

Application deadline for the Pharm.D. program is January 1.

Students admitted to the College of Pharmacy are required to submit a $250 admission acceptance fee. The fee is applied to tuition for the student's first semester of enrollment in the college. The deposit is not refunded to applicants who do not enroll in the College of Pharmacy.

The college-level course work outlined below is the minimum academic requirement for admission to the College of Pharmacy. The Pharmacy College Admission Test (PCAT), a personal statement, personal interviews, and two letters of reference are required for admission. Students must have an overall cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50 to be considered for admission.

Fulfillment of these requirements does not ensure admission to the college; the admission committee selects the best-qualified applicants. Questions concerning satisfaction of degree requirements should be directed to the College of Pharmacy Office of Academic Affairs.

Rhetoric: 8 s.h., or 6 s.h. of transfer credit in English composition and rhetoric, and 2-3 s.h. in speech (010:001 and 010:002, or 010:003)

Human anatomy: 3 s.h. (060:110)

General biology: 8 s.h. (002:010-002:011 Principles of Biology I-II)

General chemistry: 8 s.h. (004:011-004:012)

Organic chemistry: 6 s.h. (004:121-004:122)

Mathematics: 3-4 s.h. of a satisfactory differential and integral calculus course (22M:016)

Microbiology: 4 s.h. (061:164)

Microeconomics: 3-4 s.h. (06E:001)

Physics: one year of high school physics or one semester of college-level physics with a lab (029:008)

Human physiology: 3 s.h. (027:130)

Statistics: 3 s.h.

General education electives: at least 12 s.h.

Each student must complete 20 s.h. of general education courses in order to graduate. Courses in moral reasoning or ethics, communications, computer science, and business are recommended. Courses in the behavioral and social sciences and the humanities are acceptable. Courses in physical education skills, applied music, and studio art are not acceptable.

A grade of C-minus or higher is required for transfer courses applied to the Pharm.D.

Financial Support

All P2-P4 students are encouraged to apply for College of Pharmacy scholarships. Applications are available each April from the Pharmacy Office of Academic Affairs. Students complete a single application form in order to be considered for all scholarships. Award amounts vary. The Awards and Recognition Committee selects the best-qualified applicant for each scholarship.

Courtney Adam Scholarship: based on financial need.

Seymour M. Blaug Memorial Award: for a pharmacy student with above-average academic achievement.

Ilse O. Buckner Scholarship: for a pharmacy student who maintains satisfactory academic progress; nonrenewable, financial need is considered.

David and James Carlson Scholarship for pharmacy students interested in clinical or hospital practice; financial need is considered.

Vernon Conzemius Scholarship: for selected pharmacy students.

Ben M. Cooper Memorial Award: for an academically outstanding undergraduate student; preference is given to students from Scott County, Iowa; financial need is considered.

CVS Scholarship: for a student in good academic standing who is interested in community pharmacy.

Max Eggleston Scholarship: for a student who has completed one year; preference is given to students from Iowa; based on financial need.

Alice Coxon Gates Scholarship: for an Iowa resident with a commitment to pharmacy.

Lori A. Grimes Memorial Scholarship: based on financial need.

Dick and Brenda Hartig Scholarship: preference is given to students from Dubuque, Waukon, Dyersville, Iowa City, Galena, or Stockton, Iowa; based on financial need.

Thomas D. Hill Scholarship: for any pharmacy student in good academic standing.

Frances T. and Charles Holub Memorial

Award: for selected third-year pharmacy students; financial need is considered.

Iowa Pharmacy Foundation Scholarship: for selected pharmacy students who are residents of Iowa and who demonstrate outstanding academic ability; financial need is considered.

Johnson County Pharmacists Association Scholarship: for any student member of JCPS with a grade-point average of at least 3.00.

Kuever Scholarship Fund: for a pharmacy student from Iowa who is in good academic standing.

Ernest Kyle Memorial Scholarship: for a pharmacy student from Iowa who is in good academic standing.

Ronald Madden Scholarship: for an Iowa high school graduate with a B or higher average in high school.

Charles J. Malecek Pharmacy Scholarship: for a selected pharmacy student.

Carleton Mikkelsen Scholarship: for the top P4 student based on final P3 grade-point average.

Miller-Ruegnitz Scholarships: based on financial need.

NACDS Scholarship: for a student who is interested in community pharmacy.

Osco Scholarship: for students currently employed in a community pharmacy setting who are residents of a state with Osco pharmacies.

Petersen Linder Scholarship: for a pharmacy student in excellent academic standing who has outstanding leadership skills; based on financial need.

Pharmacists Mutual Scholarship: for a student who intends to become a community practitioner and who is from a midwestern state where Pharmacists Mutual operates; based on academic achievement and need.

Gordon H. Sheffield Scholarships: for P3 or P4 students who are residents of Iowa; who have demonstrated outstanding academic ability, leadership, and financial need; and who have contributed service to the University community.

ShopKo Scholarship: preference is given to students from Iowa who are interested in a career with ShopKo and who are from Burlington, Dubuque, Fort Madison, Mason City, Sioux City, or Parnassus; financial need is considered.

Shutt Pharmacy Scholarship: preference is given to Iowa residents; based on financial need.

H. Curtis Snyder Award: for a pharmacy student in good standing.

Wilbur J. Teeters Scholarship: for a pharmacy student who has completed at least one year in the college; financial need is considered.

Teeters/Wahl Scholarship: for pharmacy students based on outstanding academic ability, U.S. citizenship, and financial need.

John Stanley Thor Memorial Award: for a pharmacy student in good standing.

Wal-Mart Scholarship: for a P3 or P4 student with high scholastic standing who demonstrates strong leadership, desire to enter a community pharmacy practice, and financial need.

Walgreen's Scholarship: for a P4 student with a grade-point average of at least 2.00, outstanding leadership, and excellent communication skills.

Louis C. Zopf Memorial Award: for a pharmacy student who is academically qualified; financial need is considered.

John D. Zuelke Scholarship: preference given to a P3 or P4 student from Wapello County, Iowa.

Graduate Programs

The college offers a Master of Science and a Doctor of Philosophy in four areas: clinical pharmaceutical science, medicinal and natural products chemistry, pharmaceutical socioeconomics, and pharmaceuticals.

Advanced study in the pharmaceutical sciences prepares students for research, teaching, and administrative positions in the pharmaceutical industry, in colleges and universities, in government agencies, and in health-related institutions and organizations.

Applicants must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College; see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog. Academic requirements for maintaining graduate registration are determined by the Graduate College and by the individual divisions of the College of Pharmacy.

For more information about graduate study, visit the College of Pharmacy web site.

Facilities

The Pharmacy Building is located on the University's Health Science Campus, in close proximity to the Carver College of Medicine, College of Dentistry, College of Nursing, and College of Public Health. Also nearby are University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, the Bowen Science Building, and the Hardin Library for the Health Sciences.

The Pharmacy Building is a five-story structure designed to provide modern facilities for a comprehensive program of pharmacy education. In addition to classrooms and auditoriums, there are well-equipped separate laboratories for instruction at the professional and graduate levels.

The college operates small and large classrooms with state-of-the-art technology. The student practice lab is a technologically advanced licensed pharmacy that provides real and simulated practice experiences. The Banker Student Activity Center provides quiet individual and small-group study environments and houses College of Pharmacy Student Organizations offices.

The building also houses a fully supported Instructional Technology Center (Pharmacy ITC) in the Learning Resource Center. The ITC provides state-of-the-art desktop workstations and laptop computers are available for student checkout. Both desktop and laptop computers have secure connections to the University network for online drug information searching and printing.

The Center for Advanced Drug Development can engage in the full range of the drug development process through the resources of The University of Iowa's Division of Pharmaceutical Service, the Iowa Drug Information Network, and the Center for Biocatalysis and Bioprocessing.

The Division of Pharmaceutical Service, a pharmaceutical manufacturing facility registered with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, develops pharmaceutical dosage forms and manufactures clinical supplies in compliance with Good Manufacturing Practices for clinical trials in humans. Its staff works closely with clients and pharmaceuticals faculty members to produce virtually every type of pharmaceutical dosage form.

The Division of Drug Information Service, a service division of the college located on the University's Oakdale Campus, publishes the IDIS (Iowa Drug Information Service), a bibliographical database that provides full-text access to specialized information related to drugs and drug therapy. IDIS reaches subscribers throughout the world. The division also is home to the Iowa Drug Information Network, which serves a network of community pharmacies and family practice sites with drug information resources, educational programs, and direct-response consultations that support the pharmaceutical care initiatives at the network's sites. The division plays an important educational role for pharmacy students by providing both didactic and experiential teaching in drug information.

The College of Pharmacy provides students with the highest possible quality in the professional experiential program. College faculty members and adjunct faculty members serve as preceptors, and varied institutions and pharmacies in Iowa and nationwide provide advanced-practice experience.

Courses

For Doctor of Pharmacy Students

Clinical and Administrative Pharmacy

- 046:001 Community Service: Introductory Practice Experience I 1 s.h.
Fundamental elements of communication, teamwork, and caring in the health professional role. Repeatable. Prerequisite: P1 standing.
- 046:002 Basics of Community Pharmacy: Introductory Practice Experience II 1 s.h.
Fundamental activities of community-based ambulatory pharmacy practice; short period of intensive practice. Repeatable. Prerequisite: 046:050.
- 046:003 Introductory Practice Experience III 1 s.h.
Experience observing and exploring fundamental elements of pharmacist's role, including patient care, communication, decision making, critical thinking, teamwork; one semester part-time. Repeatable. Prerequisite: 046:051.
- 046:005 Dean's Pharmacy Forum I 1-2 s.h.
Contemporary issues in pharmacy practice, pharmacy education, and health care.
- 046:006 Dean's Pharmacy Forum II 1-2 s.h.
Contemporary issues in pharmacy practice, pharmacy education, and health care.
- 046:011 PDAs and Electronic Drug Information Sources 3 s.h.
Introduction to Palm OS PDA and web-based drug information sources for pharmacy students.
- 046:012 Survey of Basic Pharmaceutical Sciences 1-2 s.h.
Aspects of drug discovery and development; seminar with guest speakers from industry. Prerequisite: admission to Pharm.D. program.

| | | | |
|---|---------------|--|---|
| 046:018 Journey through Illness | 1 s.h. | Chronic illness from a patient's perspective; discussion with patients. | drug abuse prevention and treatment, including dual diagnosis, from cradle to the grave. |
| 046:050 Pharmacy Practice Lab I | 2 s.h. | Prescription interpretation, aseptic technique in the preparation of parenteral products, patient counseling, applications of drug information and law. Prerequisite: P1 standing. | 046:125 Forensic Toxicology 3 s.h. Pharmacology, pharmacokinetics, and pharmacodynamics of drugs of abuse, toxic drugs, and chemicals applied to the needs of the law. Prerequisites: 046:138, 071:181, and P3 standing. |
| 046:051 Pharmacy Practice Lab II | 2 s.h. | Continuation of 046:050. Prerequisites: 046:050 and P1 standing. | 046:126 International Perspectives: Xicotepec 2 s.h. Introduction to providing service to a community in a less developed country; student projects intended to improve community life in Xicotepec. Same as 053:126. |
| 046:066 Pharmacy Computer Systems | 2 s.h. | Fundamentals of data storage and retrieval for pharmacy information systems. | 046:127 Pharmaceuticals Management for Underserved Populations 3 s.h. Experience analyzing problems and developing strategies based on real-world drug management cycle issues; the role of WHO-TRIPS, government, and NGOs in the selection and use of pharmaceuticals. |
| 046:103 Fundamentals of Evaluating Clinical Research | 1 s.h. | Basic concepts for evaluation of clinical trials published in primary biomedical and pharmacy literature; design, methods, outcomes, statistical analysis, and generalizability of results. Prerequisite: P1 standing. | 046:130 Core Principles in Pharmaceutical Socioeconomics 3 s.h. Organization and financing of the U.S. health care system, role of pharmaceuticals in health care, role of pharmacists in health care, patient influence on health care decisions. Prerequisite: a microeconomics course. |
| 046:104 Pharmacy Law and Ethics | 2 s.h. | Legal and moral aspects involved in the practice of pharmacy. Prerequisite: P1 standing. | 046:144 Elective: Insurance and Reimbursement 2-3 s.h. Insurance and reimbursement for prescription drugs and pharmacist services; related policy issues. |
| 046:105 Alternative and Complementary Medicine | arr. | Prerequisite: P4 standing. Same as 078:210, 096:182. | 046:146 End of Life Care for Adults and Families 2-4 s.h. Same as 050:147, 096:147, 153:147. |
| 046:106 Clinical Practice Skills I: Theory and Application | 2 s.h. | Exploration and development of professional skills required for delivery of patient care; patient assessment, clinical decision making, communication (written and oral), teamwork. Corequisite: 046:155. | 046:149 Introduction to Therapeutics 2 s.h. Treatment modalities that promote health and treat common diseases; common laboratory and diagnostic procedures used to diagnose and monitor diseases; basic types of adverse drug reactions. Prerequisite: P2 standing. |
| 046:107 Clinical Practice Skills II: Critical Patient Analysis | 2 s.h. | Continuation of 046:106; development of professional skills required for delivery of patient care; patient assessment, clinical decision making, communication (written and oral), teamwork. Prerequisite: P2 standing. Corequisite: 046:158. | 046:154 Endocrinology, Ophthalmology, Women's and Men's Health Therapeutics 2 s.h. Pharmacotherapy for endocrine and ophthalmologic disorders; review of disorders, treatment goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P2 standing. |
| 046:108 Clinical Practice Skills III: Applied Patient Management | 2 s.h. | Continuation of 046:107; development of professional skills required for delivery of patient care; patient assessment, clinical decision making, communication (written and oral), teamwork. Pharmacotherapy for respiratory and dermatology disorders; review of disorders, treatment goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P2 standing. |
| 046:115 Drug Literature Evaluation | 2 s.h. | Study design methods, drug information techniques and skills; skill development in critical analysis and evaluation of published reports of drug use and drug trials, assessment of validity of reports, trials and studies, assessment of generalizability of results to individual patients and patient groups; laboratory experience in biomedical literature analysis, evaluation. | 046:156 Cardiovascular Therapeutics 2 s.h. Pharmacotherapy for cardiovascular disorders; review of disorders, treatment goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P2 standing. |
| 046:116 Pharmacy Practice Lab III | 2 s.h. | Pre- or corequisites: 046:149 and 046:154. | 046:158 FEN, GI, and Renal Therapeutics 2 s.h. Pharmacotherapy for fluid/electrolyte/nutrition disorders; gastrointestinal and renal diseases; review of disorders, treatment goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P3 standing. |
| 046:117 Pharmacy Practice Lab IV | 2 s.h. | Continuation of 046:116. Pre- or corequisites: 046:155 and 046:156. | 046:159 Rheumatology, Immunology, Hematology, Oncology, and Transplantation Therapeutics 2 s.h. Pharmacotherapy for rheumatology, immunology, hematology, oncology, and transplantation; review of disorders, treatment goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P3 standing. |
| 046:118 Pharmacy Practice Lab V | 2 s.h. | Continuation of 046:117. Pre- or corequisites: 046:158 and 046:159. | 046:164 Neurology/Psychiatry Therapeutics 2 s.h. Pharmacotherapy for psychiatric and neurologic disorders; review of disorders, therapeutic goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P3 standing. |
| 046:119 Pharmacy Practice Lab VI | 2 s.h. | Continuation of 046:118. Pre- or corequisites: 046:164 and 046:165. | |
| 046:121 Substance Abuse | 3 s.h. | Themes and concepts in substance abuse and treatment; stimulants, depressants, alcohol, opiates, hallucinogenics, steroids; | |

- 046:165 Infectious Disease Therapeutics 2 s.h.
Pharmacotherapy for infectious disorders; review of disease, therapeutic goals, treatment plans, patient counseling, monitoring of patient outcomes. Prerequisite: P3 standing.
- 046:169 Introduction to Pharmacogenomics 2 s.h.
Introduction to pharmacogenetics in pharmacy; laboratory techniques, application of pharmacogenetics to clinical pharmacy.
- 046:170 Clinical Pharmacokinetics 3 s.h.
Application of pharmacokinetics to the clinical setting. Prerequisite: P3 standing.
- 046:171 Nonprescription Pharmacotherapy 2 s.h.
Introduction to nonprescription medications; development of patient assessment and consultation skills; understanding of pharmacist's role in patient self-care.
- 046:174 Pharmacy Service Development 3 s.h.
Issues and approaches used to develop pharmacy services; planning, service design, payment, promotion, quality improvement. Prerequisite: P3 standing or consent of instructor.
- 046:176 Immunization Theory and Practice 2 s.h.
Preparation for administering routine immunizations safely and responsibly under specific order of a prescriber; preparation for administering vaccinations under protocol according to rules of the Iowa Boards of Pharmacy and Medical Examiners. Prerequisites: 046:159 and P3 standing.
- 046:177 Emerging Issues in Infectious Diseases 2-3 s.h.
Contemporary issues related to infectious diseases; unusual pathogens such as Ebola, tropical medicine, bioterrorism, resistance, travel medicine, epidemiology.
- 046:198 Elective: Hospital Pharmacy Practice Management 2 s.h.
Practice management issues; organizational structure, service delivery models, drug policy, drug and pharmacy costs, use of technology and informatics, supervision, quality improvement.
- 046:253 Elective: Economics and Treatment Choice 2 s.h.
Introduction to patient and population pharmacoeconomic modeling; clinical decision, cost-minimization, cost-effectiveness, cost-utility, and cost-benefit analysis.
- 046:344 PSE Selective: Insurance and Reimbursement 2 s.h.
Insurance and reimbursement for prescription drugs and pharmacist services; related policy issues. Prerequisite: P3 standing.
- 046:353 PSE Selective: Economics and Treatment Choice 2 s.h.
Patient and population pharmacoeconomic modeling; clinical decision analysis, cost-minimization analysis, cost-effectiveness analysis, cost-utility analysis, cost-benefit analysis. Prerequisite: P3 standing.
- 046:355 PSE Selective: Social Pharmacy 2 s.h.
Behavioral and social aspects of drug use in society; therapeutic uses of medications, pharmaceutical care systems, pharmacy-related health behaviors. Prerequisite: P3 standing.
- 046:356 PSE Selective: Marketing and Healthcare 2 s.h.
Marketing concepts and principles applied to health care, especially pharmacy and pharmaceuticals; marketing management, patient behavior, marketing plan, marketing mix, promotion. Prerequisite: P3 standing.
- 046:357 Topics in Community Pharmacy Management 2 s.h.
Focus on building practical knowledge and understanding of business principles. Prerequisite: 046:130 or consent of instructor.
- 046:377 Health Disparities and Culturally Competent Care 2-4 s.h.
Characteristics, causes, and effects of health disparities in the U.S. health care system; foundation for development of knowledge, attitudes, and skills required of culturally competent health care providers; definitions and models of cultural competence, characteristics of culturally effective practitioners and workplaces; health disparities among specific populations, evidence for cultural competence as a remedy; taking a culturally appropriate history; working with interpreters; legal and professional imperatives for cultural competence. Same as 096:125, 172:135.
- 046:398 PSE Selective: Hospital Pharmacy Practice Management 2 s.h.
Organizational structure of pharmacy departments in hospitals and health care systems; models for delivery of pharmaceutical care; pharmacy's role in drug-policy decision making; provision of drug information; clinical and distributive pharmacy services; control of pharmacy and pharmacy costs; use of information technology and automation for service delivery; supervisory management; quality improvement. Prerequisite: P3 standing.

Clinical and Administrative Pharmacy Professional Experience

- 046:161 Drug Information Rotation arr.
Drug information knowledge applied to service and research projects. Prerequisites: P4 standing and consent of instructor.
- 046:175 Clinical Investigation 1-4 s.h.
Development of research skills through completion of a research project.
- 046:178 Hospital Pharmacy Rotation 4 s.h.
Practicum experience in components of hospital pharmacy; emphasis on hospital organization, inpatient and outpatient services, IV additives, unit dose, clinical services; many sites available. Prerequisites: P4 standing and consent of instructor.
- 046:179 Community Pharmaceutical Care Rotation 4 s.h.
Delivery of pharmaceutical care in the community pharmacy and ambulatory primary care environment. Prerequisite: P4 standing.
- 046:180 Medicine Rotation arr.
Advanced application of therapeutic skills necessary for the pharmacotherapeutic management of patients in general medicine or other subspecialties. Prerequisite: P4 standing.
- 046:181 Family Practice Rotation arr.
Advanced clinical experience in primary care environment involving drug therapy management of a wide variety of acute and chronic medical problems in patients of all ages. Prerequisite: P4 standing.
- 046:182 Pediatrics Rotation arr.
Advanced application of clinical pharmacology/toxicology principles to optimize disease management in the inpatient and outpatient pediatric population. Prerequisite: P4 standing.
- 046:183 Community Pharmacy Rotation 4 s.h.
Practicum experience in community pharmacy; drug distribution, communication with patients, management functions. Prerequisites: P4 standing and consent of instructor.
- 046:184 Psychiatry Rotation arr.
Advanced application of clinical pharmacotherapeutics and pharmacokinetic psychopharmacology to the care of inpatient and outpatient psychiatric patients using a consultant role model. Prerequisite: P4 standing.
- 046:185 Neurology Rotation arr.
Lecture and advanced clinical practice of pharmacotherapeutics related to neurological diseases. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:186 Surgery Rotation arr.

Advanced application of therapeutic skills necessary for the pharmacotherapeutic management of general surgery patients. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:187 Clinical Nuclear Pharmacy Rotation arr.

Advanced clinical instruction in the uses of radiopharmaceuticals, radiopharmaceutical drug interactions, pharmacological intervention in nuclear medicine studies, radiopharmaceutical drug information. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:189 Pharm.D. Elective Rotation arr.

Advanced practice experience in a nontraditional setting. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:192 Long Term Care Rotation 4 s.h.

Practice in consulting and providing services to varied long-term patient care environments. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:193 Home Health Care Rotation 4 s.h.

Team approach to delivery of health care in home health care setting; total parenteral nutrition, chemotherapy, intravenous antibiotics, lab analysis, hospice care, pain management. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:194 Managed Care Rotation 4 s.h.

Practice experience in providing pharmaceutical care in managed care settings. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:196 Ambulatory Care Rotation 4 s.h.

Pharmaceutical care in outpatient settings such as internal medicine clinics, diabetes education centers, other specialty clinics. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:197 Hematology/Oncology Rotation 4 s.h.

Drug therapy management of adult oncology patients and patients with hematologic malignancies, aplastic anemia, sickle cell disease, hemophilia. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

046:199 Research Rotation 4 s.h.

Practice experience in basic pharmaceutical or clinical research; proposal, study design, data collection and analysis, presentation of results. Prerequisite: P4 standing.

Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry

046:128 Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry I: Biotechnology and Chemotherapy 4 s.h.

Organic and inorganic medicinal and therapeutic agents of natural and synthetic origin; physical, chemical, biological, and biochemical properties as they relate to medicinal and therapeutic effects; comparative biological activity and toxicity; detoxication mechanisms; functional group chemistry; nomenclature; chemistry of radiodiagnostic and therapeutic agents; introduction to biopharmaceutical analysis; first of a three-course sequence. Prerequisites: 004:122, 061:112, and 099:162 or equivalents, and P1 standing.

046:131 Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry II: Pharmacodynamic Agents 4 s.h.

Medicinal chemistry of pharmacodynamic agents; introduction to peptides and proteins, thyroid hormone, diabetes, vaccines, gene therapeutics, NSAIDs, cardiovascular drugs, antihistamines, anticancer drugs; second of a three-course sequence. Prerequisites: 046:128 and P2 standing.

046:132 Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry III: Medicinal Neurochemistry 4 s.h.

Receptor site theory; steroids, lipids, and prostaglandins; sedatives and hypnotics; drugs of abuse; cholinergics; excitatory amino acids and anticonvulsants; major analgesics; adrenergics; psychotherapeutics; third of a three-course sequence. Prerequisites: 046:128, 046:131, and P2 standing.

Pharmaceutics

046:101 Pharmacy Projects 1-3 s.h.

Basic and applied research problems of pharmaceutical interest.

046:120 Advanced Compounding 3 s.h.

Conceptual and practical framework for resolving therapeutic issues in compounding pharmacy practice; design and preparation of compounded medicaments using current quality assurance methods, legal aspects of compounding, development and marketing of a compounding practice. Prerequisites: 046:051 and 046:124.

046:123 Pharmaceutics I: Solutions 4 s.h.

Application of physical and chemical principles to formulation, preparation of liquid dosage forms, including solution, colloids, ointments, emulsions. Prerequisite: P1 standing.

046:124 Pharmaceutics II: Solids and Semi-solids 4 s.h.

Properties of solids; formulation, preparation, evaluation of solid dosage forms. Prerequisite: P1 standing.

046:138 Pharmacokinetics and Biopharmaceutics 3 s.h.

Qualitative and quantitative description of kinetics of drug absorption, distribution, and elimination, including physiological factors that influence each process; adjustment of dosing regimens for optimizing therapeutic drug levels in the body. Prerequisites: 046:123 and 046:124.

046:172 PharmaStatistics 2 s.h.

Introduction to the use of statistics.

046:173 Parenteral Products and Technology 2 s.h.

Knowledge and application of parenteral products and the technology used to compound and administer them. Prerequisites: 046:051 and 046:123.

For Graduate Students

Clinical and Administrative Pharmacy

046:147 Introduction to Research Methods 3 s.h.

Scientific inquiry, experimental design, data collection, statistical methods used in the study of health services and clinical investigations; focus on understanding the research process and evaluating published studies. Prerequisite: consent of instructor. Recommended: introductory statistics.

046:213 Pharmaceutical Socioeconomics: Seminar 1-2 s.h.

Recent research in pharmacy administration. Repeatable.

046:243 Clinical Pharmacy Sciences Research arr.

046:245 Analytical Techniques in Therapeutics 3 s.h.

Basic concepts and techniques of HPLC, ELISA/RIA, PCR, in vitro pharmacodynamic models, cell culture, animal models; identification of problems, solutions.

046:251 Pharmaceutical Socioeconomics: Research arr.

046:255 Elective: Social Pharmacy 2-3 s.h.

Behavioral and social aspects of drug use in society; emphasis on therapeutic uses of medications, pharmaceutical care systems, pharmacy-related health behaviors.

046:256 Elective: Marketing and Healthcare 2 s.h.

Research on marketing's impact on delivery and consumption of health care, and on changes in marketing that result from evolution of health care systems.

046:257 Foundation Literature in Pharmaceutical Socioeconomics arr.

Issues related to pharmacy administration, social and behavioral pharmacy, pharmacy education.

046:261 Analytic Issues in Health Services Research I 3 s.h.
Same as 174:261.

046:262 Analytic Issues in Health Services Research II 3 s.h.
Same as 174:262.

046:263 Models of Patient Behavior and Choice 3 s.h.
Theoretical models used to describe behavior and choice in pharmaceutical socioeconomic research; models from economics, health services research, health behavior, clinical decision making.

046:264 Models of Provider Behavior and Choice 3 s.h.
Theoretical background for study of provider decision making and behavior; models based on a classic economic approach, models used to study provider behavior.

046:269 Introduction to Clinical Pharmacogenomics 3 s.h.
Basic pharmacogenetic techniques; use of pharmacogenomics in clinical pharmacy. Prerequisite: 002:128.

046:280 Clinical Pharmacy Sciences Seminar 1-2 s.h.
Research by faculty, graduate students.

046:284 Introduction to Pharmaceutical Sciences Research 2 s.h.
Key principles and methods in pharmaceutical sciences research. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

046:378 Translation Research and Clinical Drug Development 3 s.h.
Clinical drug development; preclinical studies and clinical trials; phase I, II, and III clinical trials, including regulatory considerations.

046:379 Principles of Experimental Therapeutics 3 s.h.
Introduction to key principles and concepts for research in experimental therapeutics; basic principles related to drug disposition, toxicity, and efficacy.

046:380 Applied Clinical and Translational Science 3 s.h.
Application of clinical and translational science in a multidisciplinary collaborative environment to develop, conduct, and report research.

Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry

046:135 Perspectives in MNPC Research 1 s.h.
Contemporary research in medicinal chemistry and natural products.

046:136 Medicinal Chemistry of CNS Active Agents 3 s.h.
Concepts for understanding the chemistry and pharmacology of agents on the central nervous system. Prerequisite: second-semester organic chemistry.

046:137 Enzymatic Basis of Drug Metabolism 3 s.h.
Current literature on catalytic and physical properties, distribution, and substrate specificity of enzymes involved in mammalian drug metabolism. Prerequisites: 004:122 and 099:162, or consent of instructor.

046:150 Synthetic Strategies in Medicinal Chemistry 3 s.h.
Modern chemical methods for construction of carbon-carbon bonds commonly used in synthesis of natural products; strategic disconnections for the syntheses of these molecules. Prerequisites: 004:122 and 046:132.

046:211 Total Synthesis of Natural Products 3 s.h.
Total synthesis of natural products; use of strategies, tactics, efficiency, selectivity, synthetic maneuvering. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

046:214 Pharmaceutical and Chemical Toxicology 3 s.h.
Principles and mechanisms of chemical toxicology related to drugs and environmental agents; modern toxicological research methods. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

046:215 Current Medicinal Chemistry 3 s.h.
Modern techniques used in drug discovery; important drug classes, their chemical mechanism of action. Prerequisite: 046:132 or consent of instructor.

046:217 Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry Research arr.

046:219 Analytical Biochemistry 3 s.h.
Application of modern chromatographic and detection methods used to isolate, characterize, and quantify drugs and macromolecules.

046:227 Medicinal and Natural Products Chemistry Seminar 1-2 s.h.

046:275 Perspectives in Biocatalysis 1-3 s.h.
Applied enzymology, protein design, structure-activity relationships, biosensor technology, microbial transformations, biodegradation of environmental pollutants. Repeatable. Same as 004:275, 052:275, 053:275, 061:275, 099:275.

Pharmaceutics

046:148 Pharmacokinetics and Pharmacodynamics 3 s.h.
Kinetics of drug absorption, distribution, and elimination, including development of mathematical models. Prerequisites: two semesters of calculus and one semester of statistics, or consent of instructor.

046:157 Quantitative Research Methods in Pharmacy 4 s.h.
Lecture and laboratory; collection and interpretation of analytical data; instrumental analysis as applied to pharmaceutical quality control; separation techniques.

046:202 Pharmacy: Selected Topics 1-4 s.h.
Recent advances and contemporary research in pharmaceutics. Repeatable.

046:203 Advanced Psychopharmacotherapeutics I 2 s.h.
Drug treatment of psychiatric disorders involving psychosis and depression. Prerequisite: 071:105 or 096:124, or 071:180 and 071:181.

046:204 Advanced Psychopharmacotherapeutics II 2 s.h.
Drug treatment of psychiatric disorders involving mania, anxiety disorders, drug-induced psychosis, substance abuse treatment, childhood depression, attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder. Prerequisite: 071:105 or 096:124, or 071:180 and 071:181.

046:206 Stability of Pharmaceuticals 3 s.h.
Mechanisms of degradation of pharmaceuticals; prediction of shelf life of pharmaceuticals, stabilization. Prerequisite: 004:132.

046:207 Polymers in Pharmaceutics 3 s.h.
Polymer science, its implications in pharmaceutics; polymers useful as excipients in design of controlled and/or sustained release products.

046:225 Product Development 3 s.h.
Application of physico-chemical principles to formulation and design of pharmaceutical dosage forms.

046:229 Advanced Pharmacokinetics and Pharmacodynamics 3 s.h.
Selected topics, including nonlinear curve fittings. Prerequisite: 046:148.

046:231 Pharmacy Seminar 1-2 s.h.
Repeatable.

046:232 Drug Delivery: Principles and Applications 3 s.h.

Design and development of drug delivery systems; mathematical analysis of dosage form performance; applications of advanced technology in emerging systems. Prerequisite: 046:237 or consent of instructor.

046:233 Pharmacy: Research arr.

046:235 Equilibria Processes 3 s.h.

Equilibria pertaining to ionic systems, complexation, partitioning, solubility. Prerequisite: 004:131.

046:236 Surface Phenomena arr.

Behavior of matter in phase boundaries, especially adsorptive processes at liquid-solid and vapor-solid interfaces. Prerequisite: 004:131.

046:237 Transport Phenomena 3 s.h.

Diffusion and mass transport phenomena related to pharmaceutical systems. Prerequisite: 004:131.

046:290 Tissue Engineering 3 s.h.

Introduction to tissue engineering; scaffolds, fundamentals, principles. Same as 051:175, 052:227.

Graduate nondegree program: Certificate in Public Health

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu>

The College of Public Health, established in 1999, is a partner with the Carver College of Medicine and the Colleges of Dentistry, Nursing, and Pharmacy in striving to improve human health and well-being. Consistent with the interdisciplinary traditions of public health, the college also collaborates with non-health science colleges across the University and with other Board of Regents, State of Iowa institutions, state and local agencies, and the private sector.

A population-based approach to health is a distinguishing feature of public health and of the college. For public health practitioners—a wide range of professionals including physicians, nurses, dentists, pharmacists, social workers, nutritionists, environmental scientists, health educators, and health service administrators—the primary focus is on the health of entire communities rather than individual patients. Tools that public health professionals use to improve and enhance quality of life include analytical methods to identify, describe, and monitor the health of communities and populations at risk; education and prevention programs, methods of assuring access to appropriate and cost-effective care; and formulation of sound public policies.

The public health approach has led to many important health improvements over the past century. Vaccination campaigns, improved sanitation, fluoridation of drinking water, and efforts to reduce tobacco use are among the most recognizable public health initiatives. Public health programs also have led to safer workplaces, reduction of deaths from coronary heart disease and stroke, improved motor vehicle safety, and creation of effective health systems to provide care to those who need it. In the future, public health professionals will play an important role worldwide in seeking better approaches to complex issues such as quality of life for the elderly, drug and alcohol abuse, teen pregnancy, new and emerging infectious diseases, food safety, effects of bioterrorism, and nutrition.

The College of Public Health provides educational opportunities to students campuswide. In addition to training and educating public health students, the college welcomes students from the Tippie College of Business, the Carver College of Medicine, and the Colleges of Dentistry, Education, Engineering, Law, Nursing, and Pharmacy who enroll in public health classes. Undergraduate students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and graduate students from programs such as anthropology, microbiology, and statistics also register for public health courses. The college's faculty members, staff members, and graduate and postdoctoral students contribute to teaching and research activities throughout the health sciences campus and provide services to Iowa and the nation. Partnerships for teaching and research extend across the campus. This background provides a rich array of educational opportunities.

The college includes the Departments of Biostatistics, Community and Behavioral Health, Epidemiology, Health Management and Policy, and Occupational and Environmental Health, and the Program in Public Health Genetics. It offers four graduate degrees: Master of Health Administration (M.H.A.), Master of Public Health (M.P.H.), Master of Science (M.S.), and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.).

The college is accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH), the accrediting body for the nation's schools and colleges of public health. Two programs in the college currently are accredited: The industrial hygiene program is accredited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology (ABET) and the American Board of Industrial Hygiene (ABIH), and the Master of Health Administration is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Management Education (CAHME).

Graduate Program

Certificate in Public Health

The college offers a certificate program via distance education to improve public health practice and public health workforce capacity in Iowa and the upper Midwest. The Certificate in Public Health is designed primarily for individuals in public health practice, those in the workforce, and those interested in acquiring a basic knowledge of public health practice.

All certificate courses are offered on the Internet. Some also are offered on the University of Iowa campus and in the College of Public Health

Summer Institute. Certificate students must successfully complete the program's 12 s.h. of required course work within five years and must maintain a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.75 throughout the program. Students must have access to a computer and the Internet.

The following courses are required.

Both of these:

|--|--------|
| 170:101 Introduction to Public Health | 3 s.h. |
| 173:099 Evidence-Based Public Health Methods | 3 s.h. |

Two of these:

|---|--------|
| 172:101 Introduction to Health Promotion and Disease Prevention | 3 s.h. |
| 174:102 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System | 3 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |

Applicants to the certificate program must have completed at least 60 s.h. of postsecondary education course work and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.50. They should submit a statement of their career goals and their reasons for applying to the program and two letters of reference.

Application deadlines are March 15 for summer session, July 1 for fall semester, and December 1 for spring semester.

Students who have graduate standing when they complete the certificate course work, and are admitted to the M.P.H. program after earning the certificate, may apply 9 s.h. of credit from the certificate program toward the M.P.H.

Admission

Each department in the College of Public Health has an admissions committee. Admission criteria usually include a satisfactory cumulative grade-point average; Graduate Record Examination scores; references; résumés; and for international applicants, scores on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). Other evaluation criteria may include oral and on-campus interviews, written statements, special emphasis on science and math courses, and a match of available faculty mentors with student interests. Application deadlines vary by department.

Applicants to College of Public Health programs must meet the admission requirements of the Graduate College. For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Faculty

The college's faculty includes members with single appointments in the College of Public Health as well as those with joint appointments in other University of Iowa colleges, including the Carver College of Medicine and the Colleges of Dentistry, Engineering, Law, Liberal Arts and Sciences, Nursing, and Pharmacy. In addition, the college's faculty includes adjunct members from Drake University, Iowa State University, the University of Northern Iowa, the Iowa State Department of Public Health, the Iowa State Hygienic Laboratory, the Iowa Heart Center (in Des Moines), University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, and the National Institutes of Health.

Research Centers and Institutes

The College of Public Health is home to 26 centers and institutes that conduct research and provide public service. These multidisciplinary centers and institutes—most of which are supported by federal grants—focus their investigative efforts on important public health topics. They conduct an array of outreach, service, and policy activities through which the College of Public Health engages with agencies, communities, and organizations throughout Iowa, the Midwest, the nation, and the world. Students are encouraged to explore opportunities for involvement with any of the college's centers and institutes.

For more information, see College of Public Health Based Centers (<http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/research/centers.html>) on the college's web site.

Facilities

The college's administrative offices are housed in the General Hospital, on the University's health sciences campus. Faculty offices are located on the health sciences campus in the College of Medicine Administration Building, General Hospital, John Colloton Pavilion, the Medical Education Building, Medical Laboratories, and Westlawn; on the main campus in the Jefferson Building, MacLean Hall, Schaeffer Hall, and University Capitol Centre; and on the Oakdale Campus in Oakdale Hall and at the Institute for Rural and Environmental Health. Specialized laboratories also are located on the Oakdale Campus.

Eight student computer laboratories are housed at the college. More than 55 software packages are available for student use, most without charge. Software includes Microsoft Office products, SAS, and S+. Some specialty labs are equipped with RedHat Linux and are loaded with R, Macanova, Xlispstat, Mathematica, and other software.

Students, faculty, and staff draw on extensive library resources available across campus. Hardin Library for the Health Sciences serves as a central resource for all of the health sciences colleges. Hardin Library's Information Commons, a state-of-the-art health sciences educational technology facility, provides central support and delivery for courseware development, classroom instruction, health-related research, and independent learning. It offers high-end multimedia development workstations, networked electronic classrooms, a case-based learning and conference room, and information research workstations for searching health-related databases and the Internet.

Master of Public Health Program

Director: Mary L. Aquilino

Graduate degree: M.P.H.

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/mph/>

The Master of Public Health is recognized as the primary professional degree in public health. The objective of Iowa's M.P.H. program is to provide education and practical training in public health to students who will be leaders in their respective communities. The program is appropriate for individuals who already have professional experience and/or training in public health as well as for those whose expertise lies outside of public health.

The M.P.H. is awarded by the University of Iowa Graduate College. Combined degree programs for medical, nursing, and pharmacy students are available; see "Joint M.D./M.P.H.," "Joint M.S.N./M.P.H.," and "Joint Pharm.D./M.P.H." in this section. A combined program for veterinary students is offered in conjunction with the College of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State University; see "Joint D.V.M./M.P.H." in this section.

Master of Public Health

The M.P.H. is offered with seven subtracks: biostatistics, community and behavioral health, epidemiology, ergonomics, health communication, occupational and environmental health, and policy and administration. Students also may pursue a general M.P.H., for which they must define a focused area of study: aging studies; global health; maternal, child, and family health; or nutrition and exercise.

The degree requires 42-48 s.h. of graduate credit, depending on the student's choice of specialization.

Degree requirements include a core course in public health practice and in each of the five core disciplines of public health (epidemiology, biostatistics, environmental health, health administration, and social and behavioral sciences); a bioscience course (or an additional elective course); a practicum; a set of content-specific required courses; and a set of content-specific electives. A final written report with oral presentation or a poster presentation related to the practicum constitutes the final examination.

All M.P.H. students complete the course work listed under "Common Requirements." In addition, each student completes the course work listed for his or her chosen subtrack.

Common Requirements

The following course work is required for all M.P.H. students. Students must earn a B or higher on each core course. Students may repeat courses to achieve this standard.

CORE COURSES

All of these:

|--|--------|
| 170:101 Introduction to Public Health | 3 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics (biostatistics subtrack students must substitute 171:201 for 4 s.h.) | 3 s.h. |
| 172:101 Introduction to Health Promotion and Disease Prevention | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

|---|--------|
| 174:102 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System | 3 s.h. |
| 174:200 Introduction to Health Care Organization and Policy | 3 s.h. |

BIOSCIENCE REQUIREMENT

All students, except those in the biostatistics, policy and administration, ergonomics, or community and behavioral health subtracks, take one of the following. Students who already have completed equivalent course work may substitute an additional elective course for the bioscience requirement. Contact the Master of Public Health Program for current information about this requirement.

|--|--------|
| 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology | 4 s.h. |
| 069:270 Pathogenesis of Major Human Diseases | 3 s.h. |
| 096:114 Human Pathophysiology: Organ Systems | 3 s.h. |
| 096:115 Human Pathophysiology: Cellular/Neurology/Immunology | 3 s.h. |

PRACTICUM

The practicum is a fieldwork experience in which students show proficiency in applying academic principles in community settings. There are many practicum opportunities for M.P.H. students in Iowa and surrounding states; the college's Institute for Public Health Practice coordinates placements. The practicum is the culmination of the M.P.H. program.

Students must choose an approved topic and complete at least five of the six core courses before registering for the practicum. A final written report with an oral presentation or a poster presentation is required. The practicum constitutes the final examination for the M.P.H.

170:299 M.P.H. Practicum Experience 3 s.h.

Biostatistics Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in biostatistics requires 44 s.h. of graduate credit. It focuses on application of biostatistical methods to public health and biomedical sciences, and applications of methodology for design and analysis of research investigations in the health sciences. It provides fundamental training in the public health sciences, core biostatistical theory, and core biostatistical methods vital for health science investigations. Graduates of the program are prepared for work as statistical consultants and data analysts for public health projects.

Applicants to the biostatistics subtrack should have a bachelor's degree or equivalent in the biological, mathematical, or physical sciences. Applicants should have mathematics training in methods and techniques of single variable and multivariable differential and integral calculus, and in linear algebra. They also should be competent in at least one computer language, preferably FORTRAN, Pascal, or C.

Applicants with deficiencies in any of these areas may apply for admission and make up the deficiencies during the first year of graduate study. The following University of Iowa courses provide training at the required level.

22M:025 Calculus I 4 s.h.
 22M:026 Calculus II 4 s.h.
 22M:027 Introduction to Linear Algebra 4 s.h.
 22M:028 Calculus III 4 s.h.

In addition to the M.P.H. course work listed under "Common Requirements," the biostatistics subtrack requires the following courses.

REQUIRED COURSES

All of these (13 s.h.):
 22S:153-22S:154 Mathematical Statistics I-II 6 s.h.
 171:202 Biostatistical Methods II 4 s.h.
 171:241 Applied Categorical Data Analysis 3 s.h.

One of these (3 s.h.):

171:173 Intermediate Design of Sample Surveys 3 s.h.
 171:242 Applied Survival and Cohort Data Analysis 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students choose 6 s.h. from the following (or 9 s.h. if they substitute an elective for the bioscience requirement).

22S:138 Bayesian Statistics 3 s.h.
 22S:161 Applied Multivariate Analysis 3 s.h.
 22S:255 Linear Models 4 s.h.
 171:164 Research Data Management 3 s.h.
 171:242 Applied Survival and Cohort Data Analysis 3 s.h.
 171:261 Survival Data Analysis 3 s.h.
 171:262 Analysis of Categorical Data 3 s.h.
 171:264 Longitudinal Data Analysis 3 s.h.
 171:266 Statistical Methods in Clinical Trials 3 s.h.
 171:271 Advanced Survival Analysis 3 s.h.

Community and Behavioral Health Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in community and behavioral health requires 42 s.h. of graduate credit. It prepares public health practitioners for a variety of positions related to community development, health program implementation, and health education. Students learn how to design, implement, and evaluate evidence-based interventions directed toward identified public health problems in populations. A bachelor's degree in the social and behavioral sciences is good preparation for this program, but students come from a variety of educational backgrounds. Preference is given to applicants who have professional experience or clinical background.

In addition to the M.P.H. course work listed under "Common Requirements," the community and behavioral health subtrack requires the following courses.

REQUIRED COURSES

At least 12 s.h. from these:
 172:106 Designing and Implementing Interventions 3 s.h.
 172:130 Social Determinants of Health 3 s.h.
 172:150 Health Behavior and Health Education 3 s.h.
 172:181 Evaluation I: Theory and Application 3 s.h.
 172:183 Qualitative Research for Public Health 3 s.h.

172:185 Communicating With the Community 3 s.h.
 172:240 Health Communication 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

At least 9 s.h. from these:
 044:106 Foundations of GIS 3 s.h.
 172:110 Community Development in Public Health 3 s.h.
 172:115 Community Preventive Programs and Services 2 s.h.
 172:122 Maternal, Child, and Family Health 3 s.h.
 172:131 Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.
 172:133 The Anthropology of Women’s Health 3 s.h.
 172:144 Physician-Patient Communication 3 s.h.
 172:160 Substance Use and Misuse in America 3 s.h.
 172:161 Substance Abuse and Mental Health 3 s.h.
 172:163 Tobacco Use: Prevention and Control 3 s.h.
 172:170 Special Topics arr.
 172:202/113:202 Ethnographic Field Methods 3 s.h.
 172:242 Persuasion and Health 3 s.h.
 172:246 Health Communication Campaigns 3 s.h.
 172:270 Independent Study in Community and Behavioral Health arr.
 172:282 Evaluation II: Design and Methods 3 s.h.
 172:285 Research Methods in Community and Behavioral Health 3 s.h.

Epidemiology Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in epidemiology requires 42 s.h. of graduate credit. It focuses on fundamental epidemiological concepts and methods and provides training in the use of public health data and methods for disease assessment and in methods for evaluating the need and outcome of programs and interventions. Graduates of the program work in public health departments and other health care settings.

In addition to the M.P.H. course work listed under “Common Requirements,” the epidemiology subtrack requires the following courses.

REQUIRED COURSES

All of these (11 s.h.):
 171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.

173:145 Public Health Data 2 s.h.
 173:160 Introduction to Epidemiologic Data Analysis with Computers 2 s.h.
 173:240 Epidemiology II: Advanced Methods 4 s.h.

Epidemiology subtrack students are required to attend departmental seminars and journal club. They also must present one scientific poster at an international, national, regional, state, university, or departmental poster session.

ELECTIVES

Students must earn at least 7 s.h. in elective course work (or 10 s.h. if an elective is substituted for the bioscience requirement). At least 3 s.h. of this must be earned in courses offered by the Department of Epidemiology (prefix 173) or the following biostatistics course.
 171:242 Applied Survival and Cohort Data Analysis 3 s.h.

Ergonomics Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in ergonomics requires 42 s.h. of graduate credit. It takes advantage of interdisciplinary faculty strengths in the Colleges of Public Health and Engineering and the Carver College of Medicine. Ergonomics students gain a thorough understanding of workplace physical environments that contribute to musculoskeletal injuries and illness. They also acquire knowledge of engineering and administrative methods to control workplace risk factors. The program prepares students for work in industry and government agencies, as well as for further academic training.

In addition to the M.P.H. course work listed under “Common Requirements,” the ergonomics subtrack requires the following courses.

REQUIRED COURSES

All of these (16 s.h.):
 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research 0 s.h.
 056:144 Human Factors 3 s.h.
 056:147 Ergonomics 3 s.h.
 175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar 1 s.h.
 175:190 Occupational Ergonomics I 3 s.h.
 175:230 Occupational Health 3 s.h.
 175:295 Clinical Ergonomics 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Ergonomics subtrack students must earn 5 s.h. in elective course work. Electives may be chosen from the following list or may include a related course approved by the student's advisor.

|---|--------|
| 175:192 Occupational Safety | 3 s.h. |
| 175:231 Industrial Hygiene Fundamentals | 3 s.h. |

Health Communication Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in health communication requires 42 s.h. of graduate credit. It provides opportunities for students to develop knowledge and skill in designing, evaluating, and implementing effective communication strategies and messages that speak to the health needs of diverse audiences. The program addresses clinician-patient interaction, family communication, group and organizational communication, and mass media and web-based campaigns. The M.P.H. may be of interest to clinicians, such as physicians, nurses, pharmacists, and dentists, as well as other professionals who do not wish to earn a Ph.D.

The health communications subtrack requires the following courses.

HEALTH COMMUNICATION CORE

Four of these (12 s.h.):

|--|--------|
| 036:371 Communication Theory | 3 s.h. |
| 172:140/019:160 Media and Health | 3 s.h. |
| 172:240/036:270 Health Communication | 3 s.h. |
| 172:242 Persuasion and Health | 3 s.h. |
| 172:246/036:379 Health Communication Campaigns | 3 s.h. |

COMMUNITY AND BEHAVIORAL HEALTH CORE

Three of these (9 s.h.):

|--|--------|
| 044:106 Foundations of GIS | 3 s.h. |
| 172:106 Designing and Implementing Interventions | 3 s.h. |
| 172:130 Social Determinants of Health | 3 s.h. |
| 172:150 Health Behavior and Health Education | 3 s.h. |
| 172:181 Evaluation I: Theory and Applications | 3 s.h. |
| 172:183 Qualitative Research for Public Health | 3 s.h. |
| 172:202/113:202 Ethnographic Field Methods | 3 s.h. |

Occupational and Environmental Health Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in occupational and environmental health requires 42 s.h. of graduate credit. It provides students with a broad perspective on public health and career preparation for a variety of professional positions in occupational and environmental health. Public health experience provides desirable background for this subtrack.

In addition to the M.P.H. course work listed under "Common Requirements," the occupational and environmental health subtrack requires the following courses.

|---|------------|
| 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 0 s.h. |
| 175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar | 1 s.h. |
| Occupational and environmental health courses not already listed, or other approved courses | 17-21 s.h. |

Policy and Administration Subtrack

The M.P.H. with subtrack in policy and administration requires 46 s.h. of graduate credit. It focuses on planning administration and program evaluation skills with emphasis on public sector organizations. Graduates of the program find positions in federal and state government, professional associations, and health agencies. A variety of academic backgrounds are appropriate preparation for this program, including business, liberal arts and sciences, and the health professions.

In addition to the M.P.H. course work listed under "Common Requirements," the policy and administration subtrack requires the following courses.

REQUIRED COURSES

One of these:

| | |
|---|--------|
| 174:201 Health Care Management | 3 s.h. |
| 174:203 Strategic Planning and Marketing (if 174:201 is waived) | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

|--|--------|
| 07P:165 Introduction to Program and Project Evaluation | 3 s.h. |
| 172:181 Evaluation I: Theory and Applications | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

|--|--------|
| 174:212 Health Economics I | 3 s.h. |
| 174:228 Cost Effectiveness and Decision Analysis | 3 s.h. |

All of these:

|--|--------|
| 174:214 Financial Accounting for Health Care Organizations | 3 s.h. |
|--|--------|

174:223 Seminar in Health Care Ethics 2 s.h.
 174:243 Health Policy 3 s.h.

ELECTIVES

Students earn a minimum of 8 s.h., selecting at least one course from each of the following categories.

Administration

06N:215 Corporate Financial Reporting 3 s.h.
 06N:225 Managerial Finance 3 s.h.
 174:203 Strategic Planning and Marketing 3 s.h.
 174:206 Leadership in Healthcare Organizations 3 s.h.
 174:208 Health Services Information Systems 2-3 s.h.
 174:212 Health Economics I 3 s.h.
 174:213 Health Economics II 3 s.h.
 174:220 Advanced Topics in Managed Care 3 s.h.
 174:224 Human Resources for Health Organizations 2-3 s.h.
 174:228 Cost Effectiveness and Decision Analysis 3 s.h.

Policy

030:210 American Politics 4 s.h.
 091:261 Health Law 3 s.h.
 102:221 Poverty, Planning, and Public Policy 3 s.h.
 174:140 Mental Health Services and Policy I 3 s.h.
 174:144 Medicare and Medicaid Policy 3 s.h.
 174:217 Health Insurance and Managed Care 3 s.h.
 174:242 Federalism and Health Policy 3 s.h.
 175:252 Environmental Health Policy 3 s.h.

M.P.H. for Practicing Veterinarians

The College of Public Health at The University of Iowa, in collaboration with the College of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State University, offers a distance-based M.P.H. for practicing veterinarians. The program enables students to prepare for new career opportunities and equips them to respond to public health challenges such as zoonotic diseases, food security and foodborne illnesses, bioterrorism, and environmental health.

The M.P.H. for practicing veterinarians requires a minimum of 42 s.h. of graduate credit. Students participate in two summer institutes, one on each campus during consecutive summers (two weeks in May and June); the rest of the program is Internet-based, so students may complete requirements at times that fit their schedules. Specific courses are required each semester of the program.

The M.P.H. for practicing veterinarians requires the following course work.

M.P.H. COMMON REQUIREMENTS

Students must complete courses listed under “Common Requirements”; see “Master of Public Health” above.

ADDITIONAL REQUIRED COURSES

All of these (21 s.h.):

173:157 Zoonotic Diseases 2 s.h.
 175:170 Injury and Violence Prevention 3 s.h.
 175:175 Research Methods in Disaster Studies 3 s.h.
 175:205 Public Health Law 2 s.h.
 175:209 Rural Health and Agricultural Medicine 3 s.h.
 Advanced epidemiology/biostatistics seminar 3 s.h.
 Food safety 3 s.h.
 Foreign animal diseases 1 s.h.
 Professional seminar: Veterinarians in Public Health 1 s.h.

FIRST SUMMER INSTITUTE (UNIVERSITY OF IOWA)

173:157 Zoonotic Diseases 2 s.h.
 175:209 Rural Health and Agricultural Medicine 3 s.h.
 Professional seminar 1 s.h.

SECOND SUMMER INSTITUTE (IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY)

Advanced epidemiology/biostatistics seminar 3 s.h.
 Food safety 3 s.h.

Joint M.D./M.P.H.

The Carver College of Medicine and the College of Public Health offer the joint Doctor of Medicine/Master of Public Health. The joint M.D./M.P.H. requires a minimum of 42 s.h. of postbaccalaureate credit. Students who complete the program are granted both degrees. They enjoy expanded career opportunities and are well prepared to apply the principles of medicine and public health in their work.

Separate admission to each program is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they can be admitted to the joint program.

Contact the Carver College of Medicine and the College of Public Health for details.

The joint M.D./M.P.H. requires the following course work.

M.P.H. COMMON REQUIREMENTS

Students must complete courses listed under “Common Requirements”; see “Master of Public Health” above.

M.P.H. ELECTIVES

Students earn 9 s.h. of electives in one of the following public health areas: biostatistics, community and behavioral health, epidemiology, health communication, health policy and administration, occupational and environmental health, or an approved M.P.H. focus area (e.g., aging studies; global health; maternal, child, and family health; nutrition and exercise). Students choose electives in consultation with their advisors in the Carver College of Medicine and the College of Public Health.

COURSES THAT COUNT TOWARD BOTH DEGREES

The following required courses (12 s.h.) from the M.D. curriculum also count toward the M.P.H.: 050:183 Health Care Ethics, Law, and Policy (2 s.h.); and 10 s.h. from 050:180 Community-Based Primary Care (arr.), 078:101 Inpatient Internal Medicine (arr.), and 078:102 Outpatient Internal Medicine (3-4 s.h.).

Joint M.S.N./M.P.H.

The College of Nursing and the College of Public Health offer the joint Master of Science in Nursing/Master of Public Health. The joint M.S.N./M.P.H. requires a minimum of 60 s.h. of graduate credit. Students who complete the program are granted both degrees. The program prepares students for positions such as director of a public or community health agency, director of occupational health for a company or corporation, case manager for specific populations, information systems specialist for a public health agency or organization, or advanced nurse practitioner in a school, occupational, or public health organization.

Separate admission to the M.S.N. and the M.P.H. programs is required. Applicants must be admitted to each program before they can be admitted to the joint degree program. Each college’s admission committee reviews each candidate independently.

Applicants must hold a baccalaureate degree in nursing from an accredited program and have an undergraduate g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and satisfactory Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test scores. They must submit a formal application, complete transcripts from each undergraduate and graduate school they have attended, and three professional recommendations (University of Iowa recommendations forms are required).

Contact the College of Nursing and the College of Public Health for details.

To meet the M.S.N./M.P.H. degree requirement of 60 s.h., students earn 30 s.h. in core courses from both disciplines, 9-12 s.h. in a nursing focus, and 3 s.h. in an M.P.H. capstone project. A master’s project or nursing portfolio is required. The remaining semester hours are earned in elective courses. Areas of emphasis are informatics, nursing administration, community health, and occupational health/ergonomics.

For availability of nursing courses, contact the College of Nursing.

The joint M.S.N./M.P.H. requires the following course work.

M.P.H. COMMON REQUIREMENTS

Students must complete courses listed under “Common Requirements”; see “Master of Public Health” above.

M.S.N. CORE COURSES

|--|--------|
| 096:206 Nursing Science and Inquiry | 3 s.h. |
| 096:208 Leadership for Advanced Nursing Practice | 3 s.h. |
| 096:209 Health Systems, Economics, and Policy | 3 s.h. |
| 096:263 Informatics in Nursing and Health Care | 3 s.h. |

Joint Pharm.D./M.P.H.

The College of Pharmacy and the College of Public Health offer the joint Doctor of Pharmacy/Master of Public Health. The joint Pharm.D./M.P.H. requires 42 s.h. of postbaccalaureate credit. Students who complete the program are granted both degrees.

The Pharm.D./M.P.H. program helps students develop expertise in public health related to pharmacotherapy, health promotion, disease prevention, and medication safety. Its graduates may work in areas of interest common to pharmacy and public health, such as spread and treatment of disease, community health, and immunology; bioterrorism, terrorism, and preparedness; genetics; insurance; managed care; family and juvenile health; and protection of special populations. Employment opportunities are available in hospitals and clinics and with health care providers; private practice; insurance and managed care organizations; local, county, state, and federal government; public health governmental agencies; and colleges and universities.

Separate admission to both programs is required. Applicants must be admitted to both programs before they can be admitted to the joint degree program.

Admission requirements include a bachelor's degree or a minimum of 120 s.h. of undergraduate course work; an undergraduate cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00; one semester each of college algebra and biology; transcripts of all college course work; scores (preferably at or above the national median) on the Graduate Record Exam or the Pharmacy College Admission Test (PCAT); and three professional recommendations (University of Iowa recommendation forms are required).

Contact the College of Pharmacy and the College of Public Health for details.

The joint Pharm.D./M.P.H. requires the following course work.

M.P.H. COMMON REQUIREMENTS

Students must complete courses listed under "Common Requirements"; see "Master of Public Health" above.

M.P.H. ELECTIVES

Students select electives totaling 9 s.h. from one of the following public health areas: biostatistics, community and behavioral health, epidemiology, health communication, health policy and administration, occupational and environmental health, public health genetics, or an approved M.P.H. focus area (aging studies; global health; maternal, child, and family health; or nutrition and exercise). Electives are chosen in consultation with the student's advisors in the Colleges of Pharmacy and Public Health.

COURSES THAT COUNT TOWARD BOTH DEGREES

The following required courses (12 s.h.) from the Pharm.D. curriculum also count as credit toward the M.P.H.: 046:130 Core Principles in Pharmaceutical Socioeconomics, 046:154 Endocrinology, Ophthalmology, Women's and Men's Health Therapeutics, 046:156 Cardiovascular Therapeutics, 046:165 Infectious Disease Therapeutics, and 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology.

PHARM.D. REQUIREMENTS

The joint Pharm.D./M.P.H. program requires students to complete the professional curriculum of the Pharm.D. program (see "Doctor of Pharmacy" in the College of Pharmacy section of the Catalog).

Students must be enrolled in the College of Pharmacy in order to take College of Pharmacy courses.

Joint D.V.M./M.P.H.

The College of Veterinary Medicine at Iowa State University (ISU) and the College of Public Health at The University of Iowa offer the joint Doctor of Veterinary Medicine/Master of Public Health. The joint D.V.M./M.P.H. requires a minimum of 42 s.h. of postbaccalaureate credit. Students who complete the program are granted both degrees. The program prepares students for work as state veterinarians, as college and university faculty members, in local and state departments of public health, in the Public Health Commissions Corp., in state agricultural departments, and for public health positions in the military.

Separate admission to each program is required; applicants must be admitted to both programs before they can be admitted to the joint program. For M.P.H. admission requirements, see "Admission" later in this section.

The joint D.V.M./M.P.H. requires the following course work.

M.P.H. COMMON REQUIREMENTS

Students must complete courses listed under "Common Requirements"; see "Master of Public Health" above.

M.P.H. ELECTIVES

Students must earn at least 9 s.h. from the following courses. Courses marked with asterisks are offered through distance education.

|---|--------|
| 173:111/175:111 International Health | 3 s.h. |
| 173:150 Introduction to Clinical Epidemiology | 2 s.h. |

| Principles of Public Health (VMPM 388) | 3 s.h. |
| Infectious Diseases and Preventive Medicine (VMPM 436) | 2 s.h. |
| Infectious Diseases and Preventive Medicine (VMPM 437) | 3 s.h. |
| Pharmacology and Therapeutics (VPP 443) | 3 s.h. |
| Laboratories in Public Health (VMPM 486) | 1 s.h. |

Admission

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Applicants to the M.P.H. program must have successfully completed one semester each of college algebra and biology.

All M.P.H. applicants must submit a Graduate College application form, three letters of reference, a statement of purpose that describes their interest in public health and identifies a specialty area, and a résumé highlighting professional experience in public health or in nursing. They also must submit scores on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test, LSAT, DAT, VCAT, GMAT, or another professional placement exam; scores must be at or above the median scores for test takers applying to similar programs.

International applicants who do not hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada (except Quebec), Australia, or New Zealand must score at least 600 (paper-based) or 250 (computer-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

International applicants who score 550-599 (paper-based) or 213-249 (computer-based) are required to take English fluency courses. Applicants who score below those ranges are not considered for admission.

Application deadlines for fall entrance to the M.P.H. program are May 1 (or until the class is filled) for U.S. citizens and permanent residents, April 1 for international applicants. Application deadlines for spring entrance are November 1 for U.S. citizens and permanent residents, October 1 for international applicants. Application deadlines for summer entrance are April 1 for U.S. citizens and permanent residents, March 15 for international applicants.

Financial Support

A limited number of modest tuition awards are available each year for M.P.H. students. For information on financing education through jobs, grants, and loans, contact the University's Office of Student Financial Aid.

Courses

170:101 Introduction to Public Health 3 s.h.
 Concepts, structures, and activities in public health practice. Offered fall semesters and summer sessions.

170:171 Problems in Public Health arr.
 Didactic material in public health, including tutorial, seminar, faculty-directed independent work (e.g., literature search, project, short research project).

170:172 Independent Study in Public Health arr.
 In-depth pursuit of an area of special interest in public health.

170:173 Service-Learning in Public Health arr.
 Community service learning experience directly related to goals and objectives of a specific public health course; faculty-guided planning and reflection.

170:299 M.P.H. Practicum Experience 3-6 s.h.
 Comprehensive and integrated application of knowledge acquired in the M.P.H. program in a practice setting; demonstration of professional competence in public health practice. Prerequisites: 170:101, 171:161, 172:101, 173:140, 174:102 or 174:200, 175:197, and an approved practicum proposal.

Biostatistics

Head: Kathryn Chaloner

Deputy head: William R. Clarke

Professors: Stephan Arndt (Psychiatry), Leon Burmeister, Kathryn Chaloner (Statistics and Actuarial Science), William Clarke, Deborah Dawson (Preventive and Community Dentistry), Jian Huang (Statistics and Actuarial Science), Michael Jones (Statistics and Actuarial Science/Public Health Genetics), Joseph B. Lang (Statistics and Actuarial Science), Jane Pendergast, Bruce Pfohl (Psychiatry), George Woodworth (Statistics and Actuarial Science), Dale Zimmerman (Statistics and Actuarial Science)

Professor emeritus: Robert Woolson (Statistics and Actuarial Science)

Associate professors: Joseph Cavanaugh (Statistics and Actuarial Science), M. Kathryn Cowles (Statistics and Actuarial Science), Jeffrey Dawson, Douglas Langbehn (Psychiatry), Kai Wang, Ying Zhang

Adjunct associate professor: Daniel Sargent

Clinical associate professor: M. Bridget Zimmerman

Assistant professors: Hyonggin An, Jacob Oleson, Brian Smith, Gideon Zamba

Graduate degrees: M.S., Ph.D. in Biostatistics

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/biostat>

The Department of Biostatistics prepares students for professional and academic careers in biostatistics. Graduates find positions in pharmaceutical, health care, and research companies and institutions; in universities and government agencies; and as consultants. The department also provides training for non-biostatistics students.

Current research interests in the Department of Biostatistics include computer intensive statistics, Bayesian methods, design and analysis of clinical trials, longitudinal data analysis, survival analysis, spatial modeling, analysis of data subject to missingness, time series, model selection, quality control, survey sampling, and public health statistics. Biostatistics faculty members work closely with both clinical and basic science investigators on the University of Iowa health sciences campus in the design and analysis of research projects.

Graduate Programs

The department offers two graduate degrees: Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy. In addition, a biostatistics subtrack is available in the M.P.H.; see Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

Master of Science

The M.S. program provides training in the design of experiments and in analysis of data related to biomedical or public health problems. It emphasizes mathematical, statistical, and computer methods for dealing with quantitative information, and provides opportunities for students to gain statistical consulting experience with a variety of problems.

Graduates find career opportunities in many areas, including pharmaceuticals, health care, research companies and institutions, consulting firms, universities, and government agencies.

The M.S. requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Those who receive a grade of C on 7 s.h. or more of course work may be dismissed from the program.

All M.S. students are required to complete an in-depth preceptorship under the direction of a departmental faculty member and a final comprehensive-style examination.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Ph.D. program prepares students for professional and academic careers in biostatistics, especially for positions that emphasize developing and applying statistical methodology to solve important biological and public health problems.

The Ph.D. requires a minimum of 79 s.h. of graduate credit. Doctoral students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Those who receive a grade of C on 7 s.h. or more of course work may be dismissed from the program.

All Ph.D. students must successfully complete a qualifying examination, a comprehensive examination, and a dissertation—a substantial scholarly treatise. The research topic and content, which vary depending on the program of study, must be approved by the student’s dissertation committee. Other degree requirements include approved electives chosen from Department of Biostatistics and other University of Iowa courses.

Requirements for the Ph.D. are as follows.

MASTER OF SCIENCE BACKGROUND

Ph.D. students must take the following courses (26 s.h.) required for the Master of Science in biostatistics. Students who have completed equivalent course work at other institutions may request waivers and/or transfers of credit. Students who earned a Master of Science in biostatistics at The University of Iowa automatically receive credit for these courses.

One of these sequences:

|---|--------|
| 22S:153-22S:154 Mathematical Statistics I-II | 6 s.h. |
| 22S:193-22S:194 Statistical Inference I-II | 6 s.h. |

All of these:

| 171:262 Analysis of Categorical Data | 3 s.h. |
| 171:264 Longitudinal Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

With approval of their advisors, students choose 15-22 s.h. of graduate-level courses in biostatistics, statistics, genetics, microbiology, and so forth. They may count a maximum of 5 s.h. earned in nonquantitative courses (e.g., community and behavioral health, epidemiology, microbiology) toward the requirement. They also may count courses required for the Master of Science that are not listed under “Master of Science Background,” above, toward the requirement.

Ph.D. students may take the following courses.

|---|--------|
| 22S:138 Bayesian Statistics | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:156 Applied Time Series Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:161 Applied Multivariate Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:195 Probability and Stochastic Processes I | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:248 Computer Intensive Statistics | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:256 Multivariate Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 171:243 Cohort Data Analysis | 1 s.h. |

|--|----------|
| 171:280 Preceptorship in Biostatistics (in addition to preceptorship required for M.S.) | 3 s.h. |
| 171:290 Advanced Biostatistics Seminar | 1-3 s.h. |
| 185:274 Theory of Statistical Genetics | 3 s.h. |

Admission

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

The biostatistics faculty considers several factors when evaluating applications for admission, including GRE scores, grade-point averages, letters of recommendation, intent and motivation for graduate study, and research interests. A student with deficiencies in one area may be admitted if all other components of his or her application are very strong.

All M.S. and Ph.D. program applicants must hold a baccalaureate degree, have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00, and have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test. International applicants who do not hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada (except Quebec), Australia, or New Zealand must score at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). International applicants who score 550-599 (paper-based), 213-249 (computer-based), or 81-99 (Internet-based) are required to take English fluency courses. Applicants who score below those ranges are not considered for admission.

All biostatistics applicants and students are required to have strong written and oral communication skills.

All M.S. applicants must be competent in at least one computer programming language, preferably Fortran, C, or C++. They also must have mathematical sciences training in methods and techniques of single variable and multivariable differential and integral calculus, and in linear algebra.

Completion of an M.S. program in statistics or biostatistics generally is required for admission to the Ph.D. program.

APPLICATION DEADLINES

M.S. (fall entrance): January 15 (early), March 15 (late)

Ph.D. (fall entrance): January 15 (early), March 15 (late)

Financial Support

A limited number of teaching and research assistantships are available. Assistantships offer financial support and resident tuition with a partial tuition scholarship, and provide valuable on-the-job training experiences.

For information on financing education through jobs, grants, and loans, contact the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Resources

Department of Biostatistics resources and activities include the Biostatistical Consulting Center, the Clinical Trials Statistical and Data Management Center, and the Center for Public Health Statistics. The Biostatistics Consulting Center provides opportunities for students to gain valuable experience working with faculty and staff in the health sciences at The University of Iowa. The Clinical Trials Statistical and Data Management Center serves the statistical design, data management, and analysis needs of a variety of multicenter clinical trials, including studies of new treatments for acute ischemic stroke and studies of islet transplantation. The Center for Public Health Statistics facilitates the collection, statistical analyses, and dissemination of health data in support of the University's research, teaching, and service missions and in partnership with the Iowa Department of Public Health.

Courses

171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.
Application of statistical techniques to biological data, including descriptive statistics; probability; normal, binomial, and Poisson distributions; sampling distributions; tests of significance; confidence intervals; analysis of frequency data; simple linear regression. Prerequisite: college algebra.

171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies 3 s.h.
Simple and multiple linear regression and correlation; one- and two-way layout considerations in planning experiments; factorial experiments; multiple comparison techniques; orthogonal contrasts. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 171:161 or equivalent. Same as 22S:140.

171:163 Introduction to the Design of Sample Surveys 3 s.h.

171:164 Research Data Management 3 s.h.
Overview of problems encountered in gathering and processing data from biomedical investigations; introduction to data management techniques useful in biomedical studies; introduction to Microsoft Access. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: Fortran or C programming capability.

171:168 Introduction to Biostatistical Computing 1 s.h.

171:171 Statistical Methods in Oncology 1 s.h.
Statistical methods used in oncology, hematology, and cancer.

171:173 Intermediate Design of Sample Surveys 3 s.h.
Challenges in designing sample surveys; emphasis on construction and number of strata, unbiased ratio estimators, multistaged sampling, estimation of variance in complex surveys, double sampling, sampling frame construction problems, panel studies, and problems due to nonresponse. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: 22S:154 or 22S:194 or 171:202 or equivalent.

171:174 Introductory Longitudinal Data Analysis 3 s.h.
Statistical models and estimation methods used to analyze correlated data (e.g., the same subject measured repeatedly); focus on use of statistical software. Offered fall semesters of even years. Pre- or corequisite: 171:161 or 171:162 or 22S:152. Same as 22S:160.

171:178 Biostatistical Computing 3 s.h.
Groundwork in SAS and R programming; emphasis on data management, Monte Carlo simulations, and expectation maximization techniques; C and C++ skills recommended. Offered fall semesters. Corequisite: 171:201 or consent of instructor.

171:201 Biostatistical Methods I 4 s.h.
Problem-oriented probability distributions, moments, estimation, parametric and nonparametric inference for one-sample and two-sample problems, analysis of frequency data, linear regression, and correlation analysis, with emphasis on use of computers. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: two semesters of calculus and consent of instructor.

171:202 Biostatistical Methods II 4 s.h.
Continuation of 171:201, which is prerequisite; linear regression and correlation, multiple linear regression, multiple factor experiments, multiple comparisons, orthogonal contrasts, block and split-plot designs, confounding interactions, and mixed models. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 171:201.

171:203 Biostatistical Methods in Categorical Data 3 s.h.
Introduction to methods for allied categorical data analysis; estimation of proportions, rates, and risks; measures of relative risk and odds ratios, stratified analysis, case control studies, logistic regression. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 171:178 and 171:201. Corequisites: 22S:154 or 22S:194, and 171:202.

171:230 Statistical Data Mining in Public Health 3 s.h.
Introduction to supervised statistical methods (e.g., regression, decision tree, neural network) and unsupervised methods (e.g., association rules and clustering) for data analysis in health-related applications. Offered spring semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 171:202, and 22S:153 or 22S:193; or consent of instructor.

171:241 Applied Categorical Data Analysis 3 s.h.
Overview of methods to analyze categorical data from health science investigations; estimation of rates and risks, measures of relative risk, stratified analysis, logistic regression analysis. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 171:162 and 173:140.

171:242 Applied Survival and Cohort Data Analysis 3 s.h.
Nonparametric and semiparametric methods for survival data; methods of directly comparing standardized rates and standardization mortality ratios; Poisson regression for cohort data. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 171:203 and 171:241.

171:243 Cohort Data Analysis 1 s.h.
Methods of comparing direct standardized rates and standardized mortality ratios; Poisson regression for cohort data. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 171:241 and consent of instructor.

171:251 Theory of Biostatistics I 4 s.h.
Intermediate study of sufficiency, exponential families, methods of estimation, uniform minimum variance unbiasedness, information, likelihood theory, confidence intervals, the Neyman-Pearson lemma, asymptotic theory and its applications. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 22S:154 or 22S:194, and 171:202 or equivalent.

171:252 Theory of Biostatistics II 4 s.h.
Nonparametric hypothesis tests, semiparametric estimation, generalized linear models, generalized estimation equations, generalized linear mixed models, EM algorithm, computer-intensive methods; application of theory learned in 171:251 to classical and new methods in biostatistics. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: 171:251.

171:261 Survival Data Analysis 3 s.h.
Types of censoring and truncation; survival function estimation; life tables; parametric inference using exponential, Weibull, and accelerated failure time models; nonparametric tests; sample size calculation; Cox regression with stratification and time-dependent covariates; regression diagnostics; competing risks; analysis of correlated survival data. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 22S:154 or 22S:194, and 171:202 or equivalent. Same as 22S:225.

171:262 Analysis of Categorical Data 3 s.h.
Models for discrete data, distribution theory, maximum likelihood and weighted least squares estimation for categorical data, tests of fit, models selection. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 22S:154 or 22S:194, 22S:164 or 171:202, or consent of instructor. Same as 22S:220.

171:264 Longitudinal Data Analysis 3 s.h.
Introduction to statistical methodology for analyzing data from observational and experimental studies in which the response variable from each subject is measured repeatedly; emphasis on use of statistical software packages and specialized programs. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 22S:154 or 22S:194, and 171:202 or equivalent.

171:266 Statistical Methods in Clinical Trials 3 s.h.
Survey of statistical methods commonly used in clinical trials; methodologic perspective on the design, conduct, and analysis of trials; emphasis on Phase III randomized controlled clinical trials. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 22S:154 or 22S:194, and 171:202.

171:271 Advanced Survival Analysis 3 s.h.
Counting process/martingale theory leading to asymptotic results of survival methods; semiparametric regression of accelerated failure time and additive hazard models; multivariate survival models for clustered, multiple event, and recurrent event data; special topics. Prerequisite: 171:261.

171:280 Preceptorship in Biostatistics arr.
Work experience using knowledge and skill acquired in classroom; arranged in conjunction with ongoing departmental or collegiate activities or with governmental agencies or private industry; preparation of prospectus and presentation of research results in a department seminar. Repeatable.

171:281 Independent Study in Biostatistics arr.
In-depth pursuit of an area of special interest in biostatistics requiring substantial creativity and independence. Repeatable.

171:282 Problems/Special Topics in Biostatistics arr.
Didactic material in biostatistics; may include tutorials, seminars, faculty-directed independent work (e.g. literature search, project, short research project). Repeatable.

171:290 Advanced Biostatistics Seminar 1-3 s.h.
Current topics; supervised experience in reading and interpreting biostatistical literature. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

171:295 Research in Biostatistics arr.
Research that may lead to a dissertation. Repeatable.

171:300 Thesis/Dissertation arr.
Repeatable.

Community and Behavioral Health

Head: John B. Lowe

Professors: Elizabeth Altmaier (Psychological and Quantitative Foundations), Leslie Baxter (Communication Studies), Joe D. Coulter, Melanie Dreher (Nursing), Jennifer Glass (Sociology), Paul Greenough (History), John B. Lowe, Ann Marie McCarthy (Nursing), Peter Nathan (Psychology), Michael Teague (Leisure Studies)

Adjunct professors: Frank Boster, Gene Lutz

Associate professors: Julie Andsager (Journalism and Mass Communication), Mary Aquilino, Karen Farris (Pharmacy), Kristi Ferguson (Internal Medicine), James Hall (Pediatrics), Jeffrey Lobas (Pediatrics), Andrew Peterson, Salome Raheim (Social Work), Anne-Helene Skinstad, Nancy Thompson

Adjunct associate professors: Mary Hansen, Kevin Kelly, Mary Losch

Assistant professors: Nanette Barkey (Anthropology), Shelly Campo, Faryle Nothwehr, Anne Baber Wallis, Jingzhen Ginger Yang

Adjunct assistant professor: Ralph Wilmoth

Adjunct lecturers: Dennis Affholter, Ro Foege, Dawn Gentsch, Kevin Teale, Laurie Walkner

Graduate degrees: M.S., Ph.D. in Community and Behavioral Health

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/cbh>

The Department of Community and Behavioral Health examines the relationship between human behavior and community health and focuses on creating effective strategies for change. Its faculty members come from a variety of disciplines within the social and health sciences, drawn together by an interest in health behavior and promoting healthy communities.

Community and behavioral health students learn how to design, implement, and evaluate interventions directed toward identified public health problems in communities. They learn how public and institutional policy, the media, and community organizations can promote healthy behavior and effect positive change.

Graduate Programs

The department offers two graduate degrees: Master of Science, with a subtrack in health communication; and Doctor of Philosophy, with subtracks in addiction studies and health communication. It also offers Master of Public Health subtracks in community and behavioral health, and health communication; and Master of Public Health focus areas in nutrition and exercise, and maternal, child, and family health; see Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

Master of Science

The M.S. program prepares students for research and professional positions in community and behavioral health or for Ph.D. study in community and behavioral health. The M.S. is offered with an optional subtrack in health communication.

The M.S. requires 35 s.h. of graduate credit, including a thesis. During the first semester, students work with their academic advisor to develop a plan of study that satisfies their interests and professional goals as well as the program's requirements. Students are required to attend departmental seminars and to complete the following courses.

COLLEGE OF PUBLIC HEALTH CORE

All of these (9 s.h.):

|---|--------|
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 172:101 Introduction to Health Promotion and Disease Prevention | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |

BEHAVIORAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCES CORE

Three of these (9 s.h.):

CONTENT AREA ELECTIVES

Students work with their advisors to select at least 5 s.h. of course work appropriate to their educational goals and emphasis areas. They may choose from any community and behavioral health courses not already taken, other College of Public Health courses, or other University of Iowa graduate-level courses.

THESIS

The thesis requirement is 6 s.h.

M.S. Subtrack in Health Communication

The M.S. subtrack in health communication is designed for students who wish to gain skill in designing, evaluating, and implementing effective communication strategies and messages that speak to the health needs of diverse audiences. The program addresses clinician-patient interaction, family communication, group and organizational communication, and mass media and web-based campaigns.

The health communication subtrack combines the M.S. core course work with additional concentrated learning opportunities. Students fulfill the regular M.S. requirements, using the health communication core to satisfy the content area electives requirement.

HEALTH COMMUNICATION CORE

Four of these (12 s.h.):

|--|--------|
| 036:371 Communication Theory | 3 s.h. |
| 172:140/019:160 Media and Health | 3 s.h. |
| 172:240/036:270 Health Communication | 3 s.h. |
| 172:242 Persuasion and Health | 3 s.h. |
| 172:246/036:379 Health Communication Campaigns | 3 s.h. |

M.P.H. Subtracks and Focus Areas

M.P.H. Subtrack in Health Communication

The M.P.H. subtrack in health communication prepares public health practitioners for a variety of employment opportunities in health communication strategies, health communication in groups and organizations, and mass media/web-based campaigns in health promotion. See Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

M.P.H. Subtrack in Community and Behavioral Health

The M.P.H. subtrack in community and behavioral health prepares public health practitioners for a variety of positions in community development, health program implementation, and health education. See Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

M.P.H. Focus Area in Maternal, Child, and Family Health

The M.P.H. focus area in maternal, child, and family health prepares public health practitioners for employment in maternal, child, and family health positions that involve identifying problems, analyzing data, and developing solutions to maternal, child, and family health issues. See Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

M.P.H. Focus Area in Nutrition and Exercise

The M.P.H. focus area in nutrition and exercise prepares public health practitioners for employment in community health promotion programs where nutrition and exercise research is applied. Students learn skills for working with clients to make behavioral changes such as altering diet and exercise patterns. See Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Ph.D. program prepares individuals for academic, research, and policy-making work in the social and behavioral health sciences. This fast-growing academic specialty offers many career opportunities in academic and research institutions. The Ph.D. is offered with subtracks in addiction studies and health communication.

The Ph.D. requires at least 75 s.h. of graduate credit, including credit from a master's degree. Students must successfully complete a qualifying exam, a comprehensive exam, and a dissertation—a substantial scholarly treatise. The research topic must be approved by the student's dissertation committee.

During the first semester, students work with their academic advisors to develop a plan of study that satisfies their interests and professional goals as well as the program's requirements. Students are required to attend departmental seminars and to complete the following courses.

COLLEGE OF PUBLIC HEALTH CORE

All of these (9 s.h.):

- 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics 3 s.h.
- 172:101 Introduction to Health Promotion and Disease Prevention 3 s.h.
- 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles 3 s.h.

BEHAVIORAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCES CORE

Seven of these (21 s.h.):

- 172:106 Designing and Implementing Interventions 3 s.h.
- 172:110 Community Development in Public Health 3 s.h.
- 172:130 Social Determinants of Health 3 s.h.
- 172:131/113:184 Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.

- 172:282 Evaluation II: Design and Methods 3 s.h.
- 172:285 Research Methods in Community and Behavioral Health 3 s.h.

CONTENT AREA ELECTIVES

Students work with their advisors to select at least 18 s.h. of course work appropriate to their educational goals and emphasis areas. They may choose from any Department of Community and Behavioral Health courses they have not already taken, other College of Public Health courses, or other University of Iowa graduate-level courses.

DISSERTATION

The dissertation requirement is 12 s.h.

Ph.D. Subtrack in Addiction Studies

The Ph.D. subtrack in addiction studies is designed for students who wish to gain skill in developing and evaluating addiction prevention and intervention programs. This area of study and practice examines addiction prevention and treatment from both a public health and a biopsychosocial perspective.

The addiction studies subtrack combines core course work from the Ph.D. curriculum with additional specialized training. Students fulfill the regular Ph.D. requirements, using the addiction studies core to satisfy the content area electives requirement.

ADDICTION STUDIES CORE

Students work with their advisor to select 18 s.h. of addictions studies course work offered by the department. Courses focusing on treatment of substance abuse and comorbid psychopathology, prevention of substance abuse and comorbid psychopathology, and assessment and diagnosis of addiction and comorbid psychopathology are under development.

Ph.D. Subtrack in Health Communication

The Ph.D. subtrack in health communication is designed for students who wish to prepare for academic, research, and policy-making careers in the area of health communication.

The health communication subtrack combines the core course work from the Ph.D. curriculum with additional specialized training. Students fulfill the regular Ph.D. requirements, using the health communication core to satisfy the content area electives requirement.

Admission

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

The community and behavioral health faculty considers several factors when evaluating applications for admission, including scores on the Graduate Record Exam, grade-point averages, letters of recommendation, intent and motivation for graduate study, and research interests. A student with deficiencies in one area may be admitted if all other components of his or her application are very strong.

All applicants must submit academic transcripts, three letters of recommendation, and a statement of purpose. Forms are available from the Department of Community and Behavioral Health or on its web site (see “Prospective Students”).

Applicants to the M.S. program must have a cumulative grade-point average of at least 3.00 and should hold a bachelor’s degree from an accredited college or university. No specific undergraduate major is required. Preference is given to applicants with Graduate Record Exam verbal scores of at least 520, quantitative scores of at least 600, and analytical writing scores of at least 4.0.

Applicants to the Ph.D. program must have a graduate grade-point average of at least 3.40 and should hold a graduate degree from an accredited college or university—ideally, an M.S. in community and behavioral health, or another public health degree, or a related social science degree, or a clinical health degree. Applicants who do not hold a graduate degree should apply to the M.S. program. Preference is given to applicants with Graduate Record Exam verbal scores of at least 520, quantitative scores of at least 620, and analytical writing scores of at least 4.0. Ph.D. program applicants also must submit their masters thesis, or if no thesis is available, a sample of their scholarly writing.

International applicants who do not hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada (except Quebec), Australia, or New Zealand must score at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). International applicants who score 550-599 (paper-based), 213-249 (computer-based), or 79-99 (Internet-based) are required to take English fluency courses. Applicants who score below those ranges are not considered for admission.

APPLICATION DEADLINES

Fall entry: April 1

Spring entry: October 1

Applications received by January 20 receive maximum consideration for financial aid.

Financial Support

Several forms of financial support are available, including scholarships and awards, student loans, and graduate assistantships.

Graduate assistantships provide a stipend and entitle students to resident tuition and reduced health insurance costs. Research assistantships are competitive and are awarded according to department need and student merit. Most graduate students do not receive assistantships until their second year in the program.

Scholarships and fellowships are available through federal agencies, such as the Centers for Disease Control and the National Institutes of Health, and from private foundations.

Resources

The department houses the Iowa Tobacco Research Center, Prairielands Addiction Technology Transfer Center, and the Prevention Research Center. M.S. and Ph.D. students may be asked to assist with ongoing research projects.

The Iowa Tobacco Research Center supports innovative research and education on tobacco use and prevention, as well as provision and support of culturally competent and accessible smoking cessation services. The Prairielands Addiction Technology Transfer Center provides state-of-the-art training, curricula, and resources on substance use issues for counselors, health care professionals, and members of the community. The Prevention Research Center focuses on improving the health of rural Iowans.

Courses

172:101 Introduction to Health Promotion and Disease Prevention 3 s.h.

Basic concepts, strategies, and methods of health promotion and disease prevention; health promotion in the context of public health, theories and principles that underpin health promotion; overview of policy formation and health promotion planning, implementation, evaluation. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: graduate standing or consent of instructor.

172:106 Designing and Implementing Interventions 3 s.h.

Background and skills necessary to plan a public health intervention program; program planning models. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 172:150, and admission to College of Public Health or consent of instructor.

172:110 Community Development in Public Health 3 s.h.

Concepts, strategies, and methods of community development as major approaches to creating healthy communities and promoting social change; role of public health practitioners as agents of change in organizations, communities. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: graduate standing or consent of instructor.

172:115 Community Preventive Programs and Services 2 s.h.

Current public health problems and associated community preventive interventions. Offered fall semesters.

172:122 Maternal, Child, and Family Health 3 s.h.

Major issues, policies, and programs for health of women, children, and families in the United States; social, political, and economic determinants. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 096:030 and 173:140, or consent of instructor.

172:130 Social Determinants of Health 3 s.h.

Relationship between social factors and health, with focus on family, neighborhood, community, and social group levels. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: graduate standing or consent of instructor.

172:131 Anthropology and International Health 3 s.h.

Anthropological contributions to and critiques of the international health enterprise; case studies illustrating anthropology and international health's intersection, and their differences. Offered spring semesters. Same as 113:184, 152:184.

172:133 The Anthropology of Women's Health 3 s.h.

How female gender intersects with culture, environment, and political economy to shape health and illness; reproductive health, violence, drug use, cancer; readings in anthropology and public health. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: 113:003 or 113:010 or 131:010 or graduate standing or consent of instructor. Same as 113:133, 131:133.

172:135 Health Disparities and Cultural Competence 2-4 s.h.

Same as 046:377, 096:125.

172:140 Media and Health 3 s.h.

Same as 019:160.

172:144 Physician-Patient Communication 3 s.h.

Research on characteristics and qualities of physician-patient talk and patient outcomes. Prerequisite: 036:060 or graduate standing or consent of instructor. Same as 036:161.

172:150 Health Behavior and Health Education 3 s.h.

Common theories of health behavior and health education and their application to varied public health problems and settings. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: graduate standing or consent of instructor.

172:160 Substance Use and Misuse in America 3 s.h.

Same as 031:173.

172:161 Substance Abuse and Mental Health 3 s.h.

Prevalence and defining characteristics of substance-related and mental health disorders; gender, cultural, ethnic, life-span, and socioeconomic differences, at individual and community levels; implication for primary and secondary prevention. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: graduate standing and substance abuse course, or consent of instructor.

172:163 Tobacco Use: Prevention and Control 3 s.h.

Tobacco use, particularly cigarette smoking, as a major public health concern; key factors contributing to tobacco use; strategies to reduce smoking in communities.

172:170 Special Topics arr.

Didactic material in community and behavioral health that may include tutorial, seminar, or faculty-directed independent work (e.g., literature search, project, short research project). Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

172:173 Medical Anthropology 3 s.h.

Same as 113:185, 152:185.

172:181 Evaluation I: Theory and Applications 3 s.h.

Program evaluation methods in public health; overview of evaluation theory and models of program evaluation, examples of public health program evaluation, criteria for judging evaluation methods and products. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: public health student standing or consent of instructor.

172:183 Qualitative Research for Public Health 3 s.h.

Introduction to methods and theories of qualitative research that facilitate description and explanation of social phenomena related to health behavior, illness, prevention, and treatment in the public health domain. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: graduate standing or consent of instructor.

172:185 Communicating with the Community 3 s.h.

Communication skills for research and practice settings, taught from a cultural perspective with reference to gender, age, ethnicity; individual and constructive interviewing, public speaking, conducting focus groups. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: graduate standing or consent of instructor.

172:202 Ethnographic Field Methods 3 s.h.

Same as 113:202.

172:240 Health Communication 3 s.h.

Theories, concepts, research associated with health communication; interpersonal and mass communication approaches. Same as 036:270.

172:242 Persuasion and Health 3 s.h.

Theories of persuasion and social influence; attitude formation, relationship between attitudes and behavior, persuasion theories and their applications across health topics.

172:246 Health Communication Campaigns 3 s.h.

Design and analysis of health campaigns; theory, practice, methods; mass media, community, organization, and interpersonal approaches. Same as 036:379.

172:270 Independent Study in Community and Behavioral Health arr.

Pursuit of an interest in community and behavioral health requiring substantial creativity and independence. Repeatable.

172:271 Research in Community and Behavioral Health arr.

Advanced research in community and behavioral health. Repeatable.

172:282 Evaluation II: Design and Methods 3 s.h.

Research design and methodology for evaluation of public health and related programs; causality, evaluation theory, threats to validity, selection and comparison of research designs, sample selection and size, survey and scale construction, quantitative and qualitative data collection and analysis, data management, reporting; based on case study of an infant mortality prevention program. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 172:181 and a course in biostatistics or statistics.

172:285 Research Methods in Community and Behavioral Health 3 s.h.

Overview of quantitative research methods for community and behavioral health; major elements of behavioral and social science research, critical evaluation of research related to community and behavioral health, application of research methods in public health practice; opportunities for students to build skills for evaluation of research and application of quantitative research methods. Prerequisite: 171:161 or 173:140.

172:300 CBH Thesis/Dissertation arr.

Work on M.S. thesis or Ph.D. dissertation in community and behavioral health, with thesis/dissertation advisor.

Epidemiology

Head: James C. Torner

Professors: Trudy Burns (Pediatrics), Elizabeth Chrischilles (Pharmacy), Michael Cohen (Pathology/Urology), Gary Doern (Pathology), Claibourne Dungy (Pediatrics), Laurence Fuortes (Occupational and Environmental Health), Greg Gray (International Programs), Loreen Herwaldt (Internal Medicine), Kathleen Janz (Health and Sport Studies), Susan Johnson (Obstetrics and Gynecology), Louis Kirchoff (Internal Medicine), Steve Levy (Preventive and Community Dentistry), Charles Lynch (Pathology), Larry Mahoney (Pediatrics), Jeffrey Murray (Pediatrics/Biological Sciences/Pediatric Dentistry), Corinne Peek-Asa (Occupational and Environmental Health), Gary Rosenthal (Internal Medicine), Audrey Saftlas, Elaine Smith (Preventive and Community Dentistry), Linda Snetselaar (Internal Medicine), James Torner (Surgery/Neurosurgery), Don VanDyke (Pediatrics), Robert Wallace (Internal Medicine), Mary Wilson (Internal Medicine), Craig Zwerling (Occupational and Environmental Health)

Professors emeriti: Herman Hein (Pediatrics), Ronald Lauer (Pediatrics), Michael Pfaller (Pathology), Helmut Schrott (Internal Medicine), Robert Woolson (Biostatistics)

Adjunct professors: James Cerhan, Bradley Doebbeling, Susan Joslyn, Paul Pomrehn, M. Patricia Quinlisk, James Roth

Associate professors: John Brooks (Pharmacy), Leslie Dennis, R. William Field (Occupational and Environmental Health), David Katz (Internal Medicine), Jennifer Robinson, Wayne Sanderson (Occupational and Environmental Health)

Adjunct associate professors: Caroline Carney Doebbeling, Neal Kohatsu, Jose Sanchez

Assistant professors: Catherine Bradley (Obstetrics and Gynecology), Elizabeth Clark (Family Medicine), Valerie Forman Hoffman (Internal Medicine), Philip Polgreen (Internal Medicine), Paul Romitti, Tara Smith

Adjunct assistant professors: Patrick Blair, Radford Davis, Lucy DesJardin, James Gill, Jesse Hostetter, Badrinath Konety (Urology), Maureen McCue, Michael Pentella, Christine Petersen, Shannon Putnam, Sheila Riggs, Mario Schootman, Anne Tabor

Graduate degrees: M.S., Ph.D. in Epidemiology; M.S. in Clinical Investigation

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/epi>

The Department of Epidemiology focuses on surveillance for disease, risk factors for disease in the general population, behavioral factors in disease, use and outcome of health interventions and care, and the establishment and evaluation of disease control measures in the community. Students are guided by faculty members whose research interests include epidemiology of communication disorders, pharmacoepidemiology, cancer epidemiology, infectious disease epidemiology, adverse reproductive outcome epidemiology, anatomic pathology, genetics, cardiovascular disease, nutrition, smoking cessation, epidemiology of reproduction, dental epidemiology, clinical epidemiology, neuroepidemiology, meta-analysis, intervention trials, international health, and effects of aging.

Graduate Programs

The department offers three graduate degrees: Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy in epidemiology, and Master of Science in clinical investigation. In addition, an epidemiology subtrack is available in the M.P.H.; see Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

Master of Science in Epidemiology

The Master of Science in epidemiology prepares graduate students for professional careers in which specialized knowledge of epidemiological methods and analytic techniques are essential. Graduates find employment in local, state, and federal health agencies, academic institutions, and private enterprise.

The M.S. in epidemiology requires 38 s.h. of graduate credit and is offered with or without thesis. Students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Those who receive a grade of C on 7 s.h. or more of course work may be dismissed from the program. Students who choose to complete the degree without thesis are required to pass a comprehensive examination.

Students are required to attend departmental seminars and journal club. They also must present one scientific poster at an international, national, regional, state, university, or department poster session.

The following courses are required.

|---|--------|
| All of these: | |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies | 3 s.h. |

|--|--------|
| 171:241 Applied Categorical Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles (web-based course cannot be used) | 3 s.h. |
| 173:160 Introduction to Epidemiologic Data Analysis With Computers | 2 s.h. |
| 173:240 Epidemiology II: Advanced Methods | 4 s.h. |
| One of these: | |
| 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology | 4 s.h. |
| 069:270 Pathogenesis of Major Human Diseases | 3 s.h. |
| One of these: | |
| 173:255 Epidemiology of Infectious Diseases | 3 s.h. |
| 173:260 Epidemiology of Chronic Diseases | 3 s.h. |
| One of these: | |
| 172:150 Health Behavior and Health Education | 3 s.h. |
| 173:280 Introduction to Health Care Organization and Policy | 3 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |

|---|--------|
| One of these: | |
| 173:195 Preceptorship in Epidemiology (for nonthesis students) | 3 s.h. |
| 173:300 Thesis/Dissertation (for thesis students, may be taken twice) | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

Students must earn a minimum of 5 s.h. in electives, which must be selected from courses offered by the Department of Epidemiology (prefix 173).

Students also must earn at least 2 s.h. in course work pertinent to their educational goals and background. Students may choose an epidemiology course or another graduate course, with their advisor's approval. The following courses are recommended.

|---|--------|
| 171:164 Research Data Management | 3 s.h. |
| 171:174 Introductory Longitudinal Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 171:242 Applied Survival and Cohort Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |

Master of Science in Clinical Investigation

The Master of Science in clinical investigation is offered by the Department of Epidemiology in cooperation with the interdisciplinary Iowa Scholars in Clinical Investigation program, which is coordinated by the Department of Internal Medicine, Carver College of Medicine. The program is designed for clinicians interested in pursuing careers in clinical research.

The M.S. in clinical investigation requires 30 s.h. of graduate credit. It includes in-depth training in biostatistics, epidemiology, research ethics, and academic survival skills as well as didactic training applicable to clinical research careers.

Graduates of the program are able to critically evaluate clinical literature, write competitive grant proposals, design and conduct clinical research projects, work effectively with other researchers and support staff, and disseminate research results through manuscripts and presentations.

Applicants to the program must have completed at least 6 s.h. of pathology, physiology, and/or pharmacology. Those lacking this preparation are required to take courses that fill this requirement during their enrollment in the program.

The M.S. in clinical investigation requires the following course work.

REQUIRED COURSES

Students earn a minimum of 15 s.h. as follows.

|--|--------|
| All of these: | |
| 173:150 Introduction to Clinical Epidemiology | 2 s.h. |
| 173:152 Clinical Research Career Development | 1 s.h. |
| 173:163 Seminar in Clinical Research (four semesters, 1 s.h. each) | 4 s.h. |
| 173:211 Grant Writing for Clinical Investigators | 1 s.h. |
| 173:295 Clinical Research Ethics | 2 s.h. |

|--|--------|
| One of these: | |
| 173:160 Introduction to Epidemiologic Data Analysis With Computers | 2 s.h. |
| 173:161 Patient-Oriented Research-Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |

|---------------------------------------|----------|
| One of these: | |
| 173:195 Preceptorship in Epidemiology | 3-6 s.h. |
| 173:300 Thesis | 3-6 s.h. |

EPIDEMIOLOGY CORE

Students earn a minimum of 12 s.h. as follows.

|--|--------|
| Both of these: | |
| 171:241 Applied Categorical Data Analysis or approved substitute | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |

|---------------------------------------|--------|
| One of these: | |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 171:201 Biostatistical Methods I | 4 s.h. |

One of these:

| | |
|---|--------|
| 171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies | 3 s.h. |
| 171:202 Biostatistical Methods II | 4 s.h. |

FOCUS AREA ELECTIVES

Students earn a minimum of 3 s.h. from one focus area.

General (Applicable to More Than One Focus Area)

|---|--------|
| 06J:269 Meta-Analysis in the Behavioral and Social Sciences | 3 s.h. |
| 171:242 Applied Survival & Cohort Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 171:266 Statistical Methods in Clinical Trials | 3 s.h. |
| 172:183 Qualitative Research for Public Health | 3 s.h. |
| 173:210 Writing a Research Protocol | 3 s.h. |
| 173:290 Intervention and Clinical Trials | 3 s.h. |
| 174:221 Evaluation and Outcomes in Health Care | 2 s.h. |

Patient-Oriented Research

| 173:276 Health Care Utilization Outcomes | 3 s.h. |
| 173:280 Introduction to Health Care Organization and Policy | 3 s.h. |
| 174:204 Quantitative Management in Health Care | 2-3 s.h. |
| 174:212 Health Economics I | 3 s.h. |
| 174:228 Cost Effectiveness and Decision Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 174:261 Analytic Issues in Health Services Research I | 3 s.h. |
| 174:268 Health Care Utilization | 3 s.h. |

Doctor of Philosophy in Epidemiology

The Doctor of Philosophy in epidemiology prepares graduate students for careers as scientists, teachers, and practitioners of epidemiologic methods. Employment opportunities exist in academic institutions; local, state, and federal health agencies; and in commercial enterprises.

The Ph.D. requires a minimum of 75 s.h. of graduate credit. Doctoral students must maintain a g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Those who receive a grade of C on 7 s.h. or more of course work may be dismissed from the program.

All doctoral students must successfully complete a qualifying examination, a comprehensive examination, and a dissertation—a substantial scholarly treatise. The research topic and content, which vary depending on the program of study, must be approved by the student's dissertation committee. Other degree requirements include approved electives chosen from Department of Epidemiology courses and other University of Iowa courses.

Students are required to attend departmental seminars and journal club. They also must present one scientific poster at an international, national, regional, state, university, or department poster session.

The following courses are required.

|--|--------|
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies | 3 s.h. |
| 171:164 Research Data Management | 3 s.h. |
| 171:241 Applied Categorical Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 171:242 Applied Survival and Cohort Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles (web-based course cannot be used) | 3 s.h. |
| 173:160 Introduction to Epidemiologic Data Analysis With Computers | 2 s.h. |
| 173:205 Research in Epidemiology | 3 s.h. |
| 173:210 Writing a Research Protocol | 3 s.h. |
| 173:240 Epidemiology II: Advanced Methods | 4 s.h. |
| 173:340 Epidemiology III: Theories | 3 s.h. |
| One of these: | |
| 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology | 4 s.h. |
| 069:270 Pathogenesis of Major Human Diseases | 3 s.h. |
| One of these: | |
| 027:130 Human Physiology | 3 s.h. |
| 072:153 Graduate Physiology | 6 s.h. |

Ph.D. students also must earn 3 s.h. in epidemiology courses outside their emphasis area.

ELECTIVES

Each student must declare an emphasis area and, working with the emphasis area coordinator, develop a plan of study that ensures the student will develop knowledge in a specific area sufficient to support important original research. At the discretion of the emphasis area coordinator and study plan committee, the student may organize emphasis area course work into required emphasis area courses and electives.

DISSERTATION

All doctoral students must successfully complete a Ph.D. thesis.

|----------------|------------|
| 173:300 Thesis | 10-18 s.h. |
|----------------|------------|

Admission

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

M.S. and Ph.D. in Epidemiology

The epidemiology faculty considers several factors when evaluating applications for admission, including GRE scores, grade-point average, letters of recommendation, intent and motivation for graduate study, and research interests. A student with deficiencies in one area may be admitted if all other components of his or her application are very strong.

All M.S. program applicants must hold a baccalaureate degree and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Undergraduate preparation must include two semesters of biological sciences, and mathematics through algebra.

Ph.D. program applicants must hold a baccalaureate degree (an M.S. or M.P.H. usually is required), and must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Courses in the biological, physical and mathematical sciences provide important background; one semester of calculus and two semesters of biological sciences are highly recommended. Computing skills also are desirable.

All applicants to the M.S. or Ph.D. program must have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General Test.

International applicants who do not hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada (except Quebec), Australia, or New Zealand must score at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). International applicants who score 550-599 (paper-based), 213-249 (computer-based), or 81-99 (Internet-based) are required to take English fluency courses. Applicants who score below those ranges are not considered for admission. The department accepts International English Testing System (IELTS) scores of 7.0 or higher, with no subscore below 6.0, in place of TOEFL scores.

All M.S. and Ph.D. applicants and students are required to have strong written and oral communication skills.

Application deadlines for fall entrance to the M.S. in epidemiology are July 1 for U.S. citizens,

April 15 for international applicants. Application deadlines for spring entrance are April 15 for U.S. citizens, March 1 for international applicants.

Application deadline for fall entrance to the Ph.D. in epidemiology is April 1. Application deadline for spring entrance (not encouraged) is October 1.

M.S. in Clinical Investigation

Applicants to the M.S. program in clinical investigation must hold a doctoral-level degree in a clinical discipline (e.g., M.D., D.O., D.D.S., Ph.D., Pharm.D., D.V.M) or be enrolled in the Medical Scientist Training Program, Carver College of Medicine. They must hold a baccalaureate degree with a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00; foreign-trained applicants must have an outstanding doctoral training record.

All applicants must have taken the Graduate Record Examination (GRE), Medical College Admission Test (MCAT), or Dental Admissions Test (DAT). International applicants who do not hold a degree from an accredited English-speaking college or university must have taken the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

Applicants are considered based on their credentials, prior training, and research training plans. An applicant with deficiencies in one area may be admitted if all other components of his or her application are strong.

The M.S. in clinical investigation accepts students only for summer entrance. Application deadlines are April 15 for U.S. citizens, March 1 for international applicants.

Financial Support

A limited number of graduate research assistantships are available for advanced M.S. and Ph.D. students; for information, consult the department. For information on financing education through jobs, grants, and loans, contact the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Opportunities for funded predoctoral fellowships are available. Funded positions sponsored by federal agencies are available only to U.S. citizens.

Resources

Department of Epidemiology resources and activities include the State Health Registries of Iowa, the Preventive Intervention Center, the Lipid Research Clinic, the Health Effectiveness

Research Center, the Center for Emerging Infectious Diseases, and the Nutrition Center.

The State Health Registries of Iowa, which encompasses the Iowa Cancer Registry and the Iowa Registry for Congenital and Inherited Disorders, works in cooperation with the Iowa Department of Public Health to collect medical data on Iowans. It is one of 10 registries nationwide that report data to the National Cancer Institute.

The Preventive Intervention Center conducts population-based intervention trials to prevent occurrence and recurrence of disease and to promote wellness, with a focus on the elderly. The Lipid Research Clinic specializes in research promoting prevention of cardiovascular disease and provides an interdisciplinary approach to risk factor interventions. The Health Effectiveness Research Center is a collaborative research enterprise with the College of Pharmacy that studies whether particular health care treatments or services are over- or underutilized. The Center for Emerging Infectious Diseases employs epidemiological methods, laboratory technologies, and clinical evaluations to achieve a better understanding of emerging infectious diseases. The Nutrition Center provides expertise in nutrition and dietary assessment, dietary interventions, and nutrition lifestyle change strategies.

Courses

173:099 Evidence-Based Public Health Methods 3 s.h.
How to choose, conduct, and evaluate evidence-based programs and policies in public health; finding and using scientific evidence, implementing and evaluating interventions that produce new evidence. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisite: Certificate in Public Health enrollment.

173:111 International Health arr.
Urgent health problems in the developing world and among disadvantaged populations in developed countries; biological, social, cultural, political aspects of international health problems; applications of research methods from epidemiology, environmental health, social sciences. Offered fall semesters. Same as 152:111, 175:111.

173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles 3 s.h.
Epidemiological concepts and methods; design of descriptive and analytic studies, such as aggregate, case series, cross-sectional, case-control, cohort studies, clinical trials; application of epidemiology to public health practice; communication and dissemination of epidemiological findings.

173:145 Public Health Data 2 s.h.
Concepts and methods of obtaining and using public health data in community settings; how public health data are used for epidemiologic investigations and prevention programs. Offered spring semesters. Pre- or corequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

173:150 Introduction to Clinical Epidemiology 2-3 s.h.
Epidemiologic applications and methods used in clinical settings to evaluate clinical medicine and other health profession disciplines, including health measurement, health outcome determination, diagnostic process, risk assessment and communication, prognosis, study design, patient surveys, clinical trials, decision analysis and meta-analysis, health services research. Offered fall semesters. Pre- or corequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

173:152 Clinical Research Career Development 1 s.h.

173:155 Diagnostic Microbiology for Epidemiology 3 s.h.
Introduction to microbiological culture, antigen detection, immunological and molecular amplification laboratory techniques for bacteria, viruses, parasites, fungi. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 061:103 or 061:112 or 061:157 or 061:164.

173:156 Introduction to Molecular Epidemiology 3 s.h.
Introduction to basic techniques of molecular biology (DNA, RNA, protein techniques) and their use in epidemiological research (e.g., diagnosis of disease, biomarker discovery and validation). Pre- or corequisite: 173:140.

173:157 Zoonotic Diseases 2 s.h.
Introduction to the epidemiology and control of zoonotic diseases; zoonoses endemic to the midwestern United States. Offered summer sessions. Prerequisite: 061:103 or 061:112 or 061:157 or 061:164 or 173:155 or 173:255.

173:160 Introduction to Epidemiologic Data Analysis With Computers 2 s.h.
Organization, collection, management, and analysis of epidemiological data using computer programs. Offered fall semesters. Pre- or corequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

173:161 Patient-Oriented Research Data Analysis 3 s.h.

173:163 Seminar in Clinical Research 1 s.h.
Presentation of ongoing clinical research projects, grant applications, and methodological articles, with emphasis on works in progress.

173:170 Injury and Violence Prevention 3 s.h.
Theory, research, and practice of injury control; unintentional and intentional injuries; local, national, international injury issues. Offered fall semesters. Same as 175:170.

173:175 Research Methods in Disaster Studies 3 s.h.
Epidemiologic study of disasters and their health consequences; research to identify and reduce health effects, research in context of response and preparedness. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Same as 175:175.

173:190 Problems and Special Topics in Epidemiology arr.
Didactic material in epidemiology; may include tutorial, seminar, faculty-directed independent work (e.g. literature search, project, short research project).

173:195 Preceptorship in Epidemiology arr.
Quantitative research-oriented project performed with a preceptor; preparation of prospectus, presentation of research results in a scientific poster session.

173:199 Practicing Evidence-Based Public Health 3 s.h.
How epidemiologic and other scientific studies underlie public health practice; relationship between evidence and action; controversies at interface of science and policy. Offered spring semesters.

173:200 Independent Study in Epidemiology arr.
In-depth pursuit of an area of special interest in epidemiology requiring substantial creativity and independence. Repeatable.

173:205 Research in Epidemiology arr.
Research that may lead to a dissertation. Repeatable.

173:210 Writing a Research Protocol 3 s.h.
Small group projects to develop research protocols using epidemiological study designs; presentation and defense of proposals before faculty site visitors. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 171:161, 173:140, and 173:240.

173:211 Grant Writing for Clinical Investigators 1 s.h.
Development of skills for writing effective, scientifically sound applications for external research grants; for students who have completed the literature review section for their topic. Prerequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

173:215 Writing for Medical Journals 1 s.h.
Skill development in writing medical journal articles for publication. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

173:225 Genetics and Epidemiology 4 s.h.
Basic human genetic and population genetics principles; methods of integrating genetic principles into epidemiological studies; analytical methods for case control and family data. Prerequisites: 171:161 and 173:140, or consent of instructor.

173:230 Principles of Dietary Assessment 1 s.h.
Overview of current dietary assessment methods; evaluation of dietary records, dietary recall, food frequency questionnaires, brief dietary scanners, nutrient database, nutrient intakes standards. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 3 s.h. of college nutrition courses.

173:235 Nutritional Epidemiology 2 s.h.
Application of epidemiology study designs to nutrition variables and chronic disease; analysis of nutrition epidemiology studies; research protocol design. Offered spring semesters. Recommended: a basic nutrition course.

173:236 Nutrition Intervention in Clinical Trials Research 2 s.h.
Nutrition interventions in clinical trials; disease related to nutrition variables; research that links effects of diet on chronic diseases. Offered fall semesters. Recommended: a basic nutrition course.

173:237 Nutrition Intervention in Research Lab 3 s.h.
Development, demonstration of group counseling skills in ongoing nutrition research projects at The University of Iowa. Offered fall semesters. Pre- or corequisite: 173:236 or consent of instructor.

173:240 Epidemiology II: Advanced Methods 4 s.h.
Epidemiologic study design and analysis; bias, confounding, effect modification; case-control studies; cohort studies; field methods; measurement principles; exposure and disease classification; acute and chronic disease examples. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 171:161, 173:140, and 173:160.

173:245 Epidemiology of Physical Activity 3 s.h.
Same as 028:249.

173:251 Injury Epidemiology 3 s.h.
How epidemiology can be applied to injury prevention and control: epidemiology literature, specific methodological problems involved in the epidemiology of injuries, critical evaluation of research articles. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: 173:140 or consent of instructor. Same as 175:251.

173:253 Epidemiology of Occupational Injuries 3 s.h.
Epidemiological literature on occupational injuries and their prevention; focus on research methods. Offered spring semesters of even years. Prerequisite: 173:140 or consent of instructor. Same as 175:253.

173:255 Epidemiology of Infectious Diseases 3 s.h.
Underlying epidemiological concepts of infection disease, including causation and surveillance; prevention and control; case studies. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: 173:140 or equivalent. Same as 152:257.

173:256 Hospital Epidemiology 2 s.h.
Health care-associated infections; surveillance, investigative methods, resistant organisms, molecular epidemiology; methods for preventing spread of pathogens, including isolation precautions; environmental issues, construction, sterilization; interactive exercises. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: 173:140 or equivalent.

173:257 Infectious Causes of Chronic Disease 3 s.h.
Evidence linking various infectious agents with the development of different types of chronic disease. Pre- or corequisite: 173:140.

173:260 Epidemiology of Chronic Diseases 3 s.h.
Chronic disease epidemiology; survey of leading chronic diseases, including measurement of disease, lifestyle, nutrition, occupation, family history. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 173:140 or consent of instructor.

173:261 Epidemiology of Aging 1-2 s.h.
Epidemiologic methods for studying health and social problems of older persons; applications including research and public health practice and policy. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 173:140. Same as 153:261.

173:262 Neuroepidemiology 2 s.h.
Basic epidemiologic concepts applied to neurologic disease; concepts, methods, examples of neuroepidemiology; various diseases, methods. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisites: 173:140 and 173:160.

173:263 Epidemiology of Reproductive Diseases 2 s.h.
Evaluation of methodological issues and current findings for reproductive diseases and conditions; etiological mechanisms, including behavioral and genetic. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: 173:140.

173:265 Cardiovascular Disease Epidemiology 3 s.h.
Natural history of atherosclerotic disease in humans and risk factors affecting its development; atherosclerotic disease by age, sex, and in varied populations worldwide; recent guidelines and clinical trials to delay onset, reduce incidence, improve outcome of cardiovascular disease. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

173:267 Psychiatric Epidemiology 3 s.h.
Population-based studies of psychiatric disorders and associated etiologic tools; diagnostic criteria used in psychiatric research, common structured interviews and rating scales; recent research relevant to common psychiatric disorders; experience writing a research idea using NIH PHS grant form. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 173:140 or consent of instructor. Recommended: 173:240 or two years of resident training in psychiatry. Same as 073:255.

173:270 Cancer Epidemiology and Control 3 s.h.
Incidence, mortality, survival; risk factors, cancer control options for major cancer sites; principles and methods of cancer registration; research examples by type of study design. Offered spring semesters of even years. Prerequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

173:276 Health Care Utilization Outcomes 3 s.h.
Research tools to assess changes in health care use and cost as outcomes of treatment; evidence-based medicine, meta-analysis, decision trees, cost-of-illness analysis, cost effectiveness models. Offered fall semesters. Same as 174:268.

173:280 Introduction to Health Care Organization and Policy 3 s.h.
Basic arrangements of services in the United States; social, political, psychological, economic forces that shape health services; determinants of use, amounts, types of health resources available, financing methods, government regulation; current issues. Offered fall semesters. Same as 174:200.

173:290 Intervention and Clinical Trials 3 s.h.
Methodologic introduction to rationale, design, conduct, analysis, and presentation of clinical trials; basics of clinical trial design, variety of designs, examples from clinical trials; biostatistical methods, including sample size determination. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisites: 171:161 and 173:140, or equivalents.

173:291 Pharmacoepidemiology 3 s.h.
Drug approval process, methods for identification and attribution of adverse drug events, current understanding of the epidemiology of adverse drug events; study designs, data sources for pharmacoepidemiology, pharmacoconomics. Offered fall semesters of even years. Prerequisite: 173:140.

173:295 Clinical Research Ethics 2 s.h.
Ethical and regulatory aspects of clinical research; historical background, current regulations, Institutional Review Board requirements related to human subjects protection issues. Prerequisite: K30 training grant or enrollment in degree program with clinical research project.

173:300 Thesis/Dissertation arr.
Repeatable.

173:320 Teaching in Epidemiology 3 s.h.
Teaching methods in epidemiology; guided practicum experience in teaching epidemiology, in preparation for academic careers. Prerequisites: 173:140, 173:160, and 173:240.

173:340 Epidemiology III: Theories 3 s.h.
How epidemiology fits into the wider context of scientific inquiry. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisites: 171:241, 173:140, and 173:240.

Graduate degrees: M.H.A., Ph.D. in Health Services and Policy

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/hmp>

The Department of Health Management and Policy educates health care executives to assume leadership roles in an increasingly complex and dynamic health care system. Graduates hold key positions in all areas of health management and policy, both in the United States and abroad.

The department's degree programs rank among the foremost in the field. They include the Master of Health Administration (M.H.A.), which is accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Management Education, and a Doctor of Philosophy in health services and policy. The Ph.D. program offers core training in health services research and a range of specializations, including health economics, health outcomes, health policy, and management and organizations.

The department's faculty also presents the policy and administration subtrack of the Master of Public Health (M.P.H.), which prepares students to lead public health organizations; see Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

The department also offers joint degree programs with the Tippie College of Business (M.H.A./M.B.A.), the College of Law (M.H.A./J.D.), and the department of Urban and Regional Planning (M.H.A./M.A.). Students who wish to pursue an integrated program combining an M.H.A. with a master's degree in another field should discuss their plans with both academic units and indicate their interest when they apply to the M.H.A. program.

Master of Health Administration

The Master of Health Administration program prepares students for a wide variety of positions in health care management. The curriculum is designed to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of issues encountered by health care delivery organizations, and strong business skills.

The M.H.A. requires 60 s.h. of graduate credit (usually two academic years of full-time study). Transfer credit and course waivers may be accepted, but all students are expected to complete a minimum of 54 s.h. during their course of study.

Core courses in management, economics, law, managerial finance, and financial accounting provide students with necessary business skills. Students also may take course work in other areas, such as business, urban and regional planning, and aging studies.

Students work with their advisors to create a plan of study that incorporates required courses and elective course work that supports their career goals in areas such as operations management, managed care, or financial management.

During the first year, students are introduced to the social, political, economic, and financial environments of health care organizations. The concepts, tools, and techniques of effective managerial decision making, planning, and control also are presented.

During the second year, students pursue in-depth applications of management concepts and develop skills in areas relating to their special interests and career objectives.

ELECTIVES

Students choose 14 s.h. of course work, which must include 8 s.h. in Department of Health Management and Policy courses.

Summer Internships, Fellowships, Residencies

The department facilitates placement of M.H.A. students in summer internships between the first and second years of study. Internships offer opportunities for practical experience outside the classroom, observing and interacting with executives in a health care setting. Internships are full-time positions that usually last 10-12 weeks. Students normally receive a salary or stipend, and in some cases, assistance with living arrangements. Internships may carry up to 3 s.h. of credit.

Many M.H.A. students complement their academic training with a postgraduate fellowship or residency. Such experiences provide opportunities to observe, develop, and demonstrate practical management techniques and skills and to develop connections with colleagues. The department takes an active role in helping students identify and secure fellowship and residency positions.

Joint M.H.A./M.B.A.

Students interested in combining the traditional strengths of health management and policy with greater exposure to advanced management techniques may pursue the joint master's degree program with the Tippie College of Business.

This combination leads to an M.H.A. in health management and policy and an M.B.A. (Master of Business Administration). It requires 75 s.h. of graduate credit and normally is completed in two-and-a-half to three years. Separate admission to each degree program is required.

Joint M.H.A./J.D.

The joint program with the College of Law is highly individualized, allowing students to gain in-depth exposure to and training in both health care management and law.

The program leads to an M.H.A. in health management and policy and a J.D. in law. It requires a minimum of 126 s.h. of postbaccalaureate credit and usually takes four years to complete, although students who enroll in the accelerated law program may complete it in less time. Separate admission to each degree program is required. Students register only for law courses during their first year.

Joint M.H.A./M.A. in Planning

Students interested in developing special expertise in community and health planning may pursue a joint master's degree with the program in Urban and Regional Planning. The M.A. in urban and regional planning prepares students to develop public policy alternatives that help improve the quality of life in cities and throughout regions.

The program leads to an M.H.A. in health management and policy and an M.A. in urban and regional planning. It requires 76 s.h. of graduate credit and can be completed in three years. Separate admission to each degree program is required.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy program, established in 1950, was the nation's first doctoral program in health care management. Students earn a Ph.D. in health services and policy, which prepares them for careers in health services research, education, and policy leadership in universities, government agencies, and health organizations. The program's faculty members are committed to interdisciplinary scholarly inquiry and research. Individual plans of study allow students to prepare for specific careers, and small class size encourages frequent student-faculty interaction, including participation in research projects as well as scholarly publications.

The program is oriented toward applied, interdisciplinary research. Students develop mastery of theories and research methodologies necessary to study the complex American health system.

The Ph.D. requires at least 90 s.h. of graduate credit. Students may apply up to 30 s.h. of credit earned for master's degree work toward the Ph.D.

REQUIRED COURSE WORK

Ph.D. students take course work in core content areas covering health care systems, health care management, health economics, and health policy. Courses in research design and statistical analysis are required. Students may waive specific courses, depending on their background.

EXAMINATIONS

All Ph.D. students must pass a preliminary examination that tests the student's mastery of core material covered during the first year in the department, including American health systems and health services research methods.

Students take the comprehensive examination at or near the end of their formal course work. The comprehensive exam focuses on the student's specific area of research and theoretical interest.

DISSERTATION

Doctoral candidates prepare dissertations based on original research that tests, extends, or applies concepts or principles to a problem in health care. Students may choose to complete a traditional dissertation or may complete a dissertation based on three publishable papers.

Admission

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Students from a variety of academic backgrounds are admitted to the department's graduate programs.

Applicants to the M.H.A. program should hold a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university. No specific undergraduate major is required, but prospective applicants are strongly advised to complete introductory courses in accounting, economics, and statistics and to gain facility in using spreadsheet and presentation software. A cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00 is required. M.H.A. program applicants must submit scores on the Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test (a combined verbal and quantitative score of 1100 or above is preferred) or the Graduate Management Admission Test (a score of 600 or above is preferred); official MCAT, VAT, LSAT, or DAT scores are accepted in place of GRE or GMAT scores. Previous work experience in health care is preferred.

Applicants to the Ph.D. program should have a bachelor's or master's degree. Experience in health care and a master's degree in health administration, public health, or health planning are excellent preparation for the program. A graduate degree in social science, management, economics, or law is acceptable, depending on the applicant's background and career goals. A cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.25 is usually required. All Ph.D. applicants must submit GRE scores (a combined verbal and quantitative score of 1100 or above is preferred).

All applicants must submit academic transcripts, three letters of recommendation, and a statement of objectives form (contact the Department of Health Management and Policy). Applicants to the Ph.D. program also are required to submit a sample of scholarly writing.

International applicants to the M.H.A. or Ph.D. program who do not hold a baccalaureate or more advanced degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada (except Quebec), Australia, or New Zealand must score at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). International applicants who score 550-599 (paper-based), 213-249 (computer-based), or 81-99 (Internet-based) are required to take English fluency courses. Applicants who score below those ranges are not considered for admission.

Students begin the program in fall semester. Campus visits are encouraged, and personal interviews are required before admission. The admissions committee conducts telephone interviews with applicants unable to interview on campus.

Financial Support

A variety of financial assistance is available, including scholarships and awards, student loans, and research assistantships. Every effort is made to provide financial support to students who demonstrate need and maintain satisfactory academic standards. Some awards are offered in recognition of outstanding scholarship and experience, regardless of need.

Research assistantships generally are awarded on the basis of student merit and the department's need. Assistantships afford valuable experience in health services research and management projects. Research assistants work 10-20 hours per week and must apply for reappointment each year. Research assistantships provide a stipend and some tuition assistance and entitle students to resident tuition.

Opportunities also exist for part-time employment both on and off campus. For information and financial aid application forms, contact the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Alumni Association

An active alumni association supports the program in a number of ways, including scholarships, consultation on curriculum, continuing education, research, and fund development. The association also functions as a network for graduates entering the profession. Alumni serve as visiting faculty, consultants, mentors, and preceptors for summer internships, residencies, and fellowships.

Graduates maintain their Iowa connection and learn about news of their classmates, the department, and faculty members and students through the Alumni Newsletter.

The Department of Health Management and Policy and its alumni association jointly sponsor the Annual Iowa Health Care Executive Symposium each fall. Renowned speakers from across the country present a variety of symposium topics. Health care leaders, alumni, educators, students, and friends of the department attend the symposium, which offers students a high quality educational experience in addition to the opportunity to network with faculty and alumni.

Resources

The Center for Health Policy and Research is the research arm of the Department of Health Management and Policy and a University-wide interdisciplinary research facility. The center collaborates with health provider associations, policy and planning groups, insurance organizations, health delivery institutions, and other members of the health services research community. It also sponsors educational activities, including an annual policy symposium and weekly seminars.

Department of Health Management and Policy faculty members are involved in a wide range of research topics and methodologies and have research grants and contracts of $7 million in the center. This large research portfolio provides excellent training opportunities for students.

Courses

174:100 Executive Seminar Series 0 s.h.

Issues in the health care industry; talks by executives from academic health centers, health-related associations, multihospital systems, government agencies, health maintenance organizations, community hospitals, health insurance industry. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

174:102 Introduction to the U.S. Health Care System 3 s.h.

The U.S. health care system; socioeconomic, political, and environmental forces that influence the organization, financing, and delivery of personal and public health services; health services, policy, concepts, terminology. Same as 06J:159.

174:140 Mental Health Services and Policy I 3 s.h.

Contemporary mental health services and policy; characteristics of mental health services, historical background, evolution, future prospects. Same as 096:100.

174:144 Medicare and Medicaid Policy 3 s.h.

Health policies most pertinent to Americans over age of 65. Same as 153:144.

174:200 Introduction to Health Care Organization and Policy 3 s.h.

Organization of U.S. health care system, health policies that shape its development; historical, socioeconomic, political, environmental forces that influence the organization, financing, and delivery of personal and public health services; health services, policy concepts, and terminology, including health determinants, access to care, system integration, policy development, federalism. Same as 173:280.

174:201 Health Care Management 3 s.h.

Application of basic management principles such as leadership, goal setting, decision making, human resource management, to health care organizations. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

174:202 Hospital Organization and Management 2-3 s.h.

Role of hospitals, governance, organizational structure, medical staff organization, departmental operations. Prerequisites: 174:200 and 174:201, or consent of instructor.

174:203 Strategic Planning and Marketing 3 s.h.

Management, marketing. Prerequisite: 174:201.

- 174:204 Quantitative Management in Health Care 2-3 s.h.
Quantitative analysis techniques used by managers in health care settings to assist with planning, decision making, resource allocation. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.
- 174:205 Issues in Health Management and Policy 3 s.h.
Integration and application of theories, concepts, principles; case studies. Prerequisites: 174:201 and consent of instructor.
- 174:206 Leadership in Health Care Organizations 2-3 s.h.
Management and leadership concepts and their application in health care organizations. Prerequisite: 174:201.
- 174:207 Group Practice and Ambulatory Care Administration 3 s.h.
Delivery of ambulatory health care services, for-profit, and not-for-profit organizations; emphasis on structures, payment mechanism, compensation, effects of managed care, other internal issues. Prerequisites: 174:200, 174:201, and 174:202; or consent of instructor.
- 174:208 Health Services Information Systems 2-3 s.h.
Conceptual, practical aspects of analysis, development, and use of computer-based information systems; emphasis on application to the health sciences environment.
- 174:212 Health Economics I 3 s.h.
Microeconomic principles applied to health care, health insurance, information and uncertainty, models of physician and hospital behavior, theory of the firm, market structure, regulation, competitive reform, managed care. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.
- 174:213 Health Economics II 3 s.h.
Economic theory and its application to health behavior, markets for health care and health insurance, public policy related to health. Prerequisite: 174:212 or consent of instructor.
- 174:214 Financial Accounting for Health Care Organizations 3 s.h.
Introduction to financial accounting practices in health care delivery organizations.
- 174:216 Financial Management of Health Institutions 3 s.h.
Issues in working capital management, capital financing, cost analysis and rate setting, budgeting, reimbursement, managed care contracting and health reform initiatives; emphasis on use of information from accounting, financial management systems. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.
- 174:217 Health Insurance and Managed Care 3 s.h.
History and theory of insurance, comparative health systems, health systems and networks, HMOs, public health insurance, care for uninsured; emphasis on public policy. Prerequisites: 046:263 or 174:212 or equivalent health economics course, and 174:200 or equivalent U.S. health care system course; or consent of instructor. Same as 152:217.
- 174:218 Topics in Health Administration 1-3 s.h.
Topics related to contemporary problems that concern health care students, administrators. Repeatable.
- 174:220 Advanced Topics in Managed Care 3 s.h.
Skill development for managed care; risk management, rate setting, contracting, equity evaluation, mergers and acquisitions, regulatory issues; for advanced students. Prerequisite: 174:216 or consent of instructor.
- 174:221 Evaluation and Outcomes in Health Care 2 s.h.
Qualitative and quantitative methods for evaluating health care quality, effectiveness; program evaluation, health outcomes, clinical and cost effectiveness, evaluation across health care delivery systems. Prerequisite: 174:102 or 174:200 or consent of instructor.
- 174:223 Seminar in Health Care Ethics 2-3 s.h.
Biomedical and organization ethics in the contemporary health care environment; ethical concepts and principles, ethical issues that confront executive, clinical, and governance leaders in context of complex health organizations. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.
- 174:224 Human Resources for Health Organizations 2-3 s.h.
Overview of human resource management theories and practices for health care organizations; strategic human resource management, equal employment, staffing, training and development, appraisal, compensation. Prerequisite: 174:201 or consent of instructor.
- 174:225 Project Management and Decision Modeling 1-3 s.h.
Basic project management skills to ensure benefits from health care projects; quantitative decision modeling for a scientific approach to decision making. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.
- 174:226 Health Informatics I 3 s.h.
Technological tools that support health care administration, management, and decision making. Same as 021:275, 050:283, 051:187, 056:186, 074:191, 096:283.
- 174:228 Cost Effectiveness and Decision Analysis 3 s.h.
Methods of cost-effectiveness analysis and decision analysis; applications to resource allocation decisions in public health and medicine.
- 174:229 Lean Sigma Principles: Applications in Health Care 1, 3 s.h.
General lean and six sigma principles (1 s.h.); application to health care situations (3 s.h.); examples from University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, other institutions.
- 174:234 Administrative Internship arr.
- 174:235 Administrative Residency/Fellowship arr.
- 174:236 Administrative Practicum 3 s.h.
Experience with operational and planning matters in a health care setting. Prerequisites: second-year standing and g.p.a. of at least 3.00 for two consecutive semesters.
- 174:237 Legal Aspects of Health and Medical Care 3 s.h.
Statutory, common law frameworks applicable to health care system; court decisions that illustrate applications of general legal doctrines in hospital, health settings. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.
- 174:242 Federalism and Health Policy 3 s.h.
How American government's organization shapes development and implementation of health policy, programs, services.
- 174:243 Health Policy 1-3 s.h.
Policy process, policies and programs that shape provision of health care in the United States; health policies such as Medicare, Medicaid, Older Americans Act.
- 174:245 Seminar in Health Policy 3 s.h.
Contemporary health policy issues; theoretical and applied perspectives; social justice and health care for vulnerable populations (e.g., mental health, nursing homes); readings, discussion. Prerequisite: 174:242 or consent of instructor.
- 174:247 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness I 3 s.h.
Operational and financing aspects of nonprofit management; mission and governance of organization; strategic planning for effective management, including finance, budget, income generation, fund raising. Same as 06J:247, 021:263, 024:247, 028:257, 032:227, 042:247, 091:320.

174:248 Nonprofit Organizational Effectiveness II 3 s.h.

Qualities for leadership of nonprofit organizations, including relationships with staff and volunteers; relationship of nonprofits to outside world; marketing, public relations, advocacy strategies for nonprofits. Prerequisite: 06J:247 or 024:247 or 174:247. Same as 06J:248, 021:265, 024:248, 028:258, 032:228, 042:248, 091:322.

174:252 Advanced Organizational Behavior in Health Care 3 s.h.

Key concepts of organizational behavior and their application to health organizations; theoretical writings, empirical studies. Prerequisites: Ph.D. standing, knowledge of human services organizations, and consent of instructor.

174:253 Seminar: Health Systems Management arr.

Case studies highlighting management as the primary integrative force in health organizations; major areas of executive action in the development of policy, organization, planning, information systems, control.

174:254 Advanced Organizational Theory in Health Care 3 s.h.

Key concepts and their application to health care organizations and health services; perspectives from theoretical writings, empirical studies. Prerequisites: Ph.D. standing and consent of instructor.

174:255 Seminar in Contemporary Health Issues 0 s.h.

Review of relevant literature on methodological substantive issues in health care, presentations by researchers on health services and policy research. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

174:257 Ph.D. Guided Research 1-3 s.h.

Experience with empirical research, guided by a faculty mentor; structured and supervised research activities. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

174:259 Design Issues in Health Service Research 3 s.h.

Design and causal inference reliability and validity in measurement; rules of evidence; research design for randomized-control trials, observational studies, meta-analysis. Prerequisite: graduate standing.

174:260 Ph.D. Independent Research 1-3 s.h.

Experience in empirical research through one or more substantive research experiences, with faculty mentor; authorship or coauthorship of at least one manuscript suitable for publication in peer review journal. Prerequisite: satisfactory completion of Ph.D. preliminary exams.

174:261 Analytic Issues in Health Services Research I 3 s.h.

Analytic tools used in health services research; focus on applications in nonexperimental research settings, such as analyses using administrative claims data or preexisting public use data sets. Prerequisites: 171:162 and consent of instructor. Same as 046:261.

174:262 Analytic Issues in Health Services Research II 3 s.h.

Continuation of 174:261; advanced applications, including panel data and qualitative response models. Prerequisite: 174:261. Same as 046:262.

174:266 Advanced Case Management: An Interdisciplinary Approach 3 s.h.

Management of health care outcomes for cost, quality: advanced topics in health care coordination, interdisciplinary case management; managed care; financial, legal, ethical considerations; outcomes of case management practice. Prerequisite: consent of instructor. Same as 096:266.

174:268 Health Care Utilization Outcomes 3 s.h.

Research tools to assess changes in health care use and cost as outcomes of treatment; evidence-based medicine, meta analysis, decision trees, cost-of-illness analysis, cost effectiveness models. Prerequisite: consent of instructor. Same as 173:276.

174:270 Seminar in Health Research and Instruction 1-3 s.h.

Opportunity for Ph.D. students to develop research and teaching skills through presentations, readings, workshops. Prerequisites: Ph.D. student standing and satisfactory completion of Ph.D. preliminary exams.

174:280 Independent Study and Research arr.

Supervised tutorial. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

174:285 Ph.D. Dissertation arr.

Research for preparation of dissertation; seminar presentation. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

Occupational and Environmental Health

Head: Craig Zwerling

Professors: Thomas Cook (Physical Therapy and Rehabilitation Science/International Programs), Kelley Donham (Nursing), Laurence Fuortes (Internal Medicine/Epidemiology/International Programs), Vicki Grassian (Chemistry), Fredric Gerr (Internal Medicine), Paul James (Family Medicine), Joel Kline (Internal Medicine), James Merchant (Internal Medicine/Nursing), Gene Parkin (Civil and Environmental Engineering), Corinne Peek-Asa (Epidemiology/Nursing), Larry Robertson (Radiation Oncology), Jerald Schnoor (Civil and Environmental Engineering), Nancy Sprince (Internal Medicine/Nursing), Peter Thorne (Civil and Environmental Engineering), Craig Zwerling (Internal Medicine/Epidemiology)

Professors emeriti: Clyde Berry, William Hausler, L.W. Knapp Jr., Keith Long, Donald Morgan

Adjunct professors: Vijay Goel, John Frederic Green, Nelson Moyer

Clinical professor: Patrick Hartley (Internal Medicine)

Associate professors: Kenneth Culp (Nursing), William Field (Epidemiology), William Heitbrink, Keri Hornbuckle (Civil and Environmental Engineering), John Lee (Mechanical and Industrial Engineering), Patrick O'Shaughnessy (Civil and Environmental Engineering), Wayne Sanderson (Epidemiology), Thomas Schnell (Mechanical and Industrial Engineering), David Wilder (Biomedical Engineering)

Associate professor emeritus: Franklin Kilpatrick

Adjunct associate professors: Kevin Kelly, Burton Kross, Daniel McGehee (Public Policy Center), James McClothlin, Kenneth McMains, Michael Rossmann

Clinical associate professors: Craig Bainbridge, Henri Cuddihy (Internal Medicine), Monty Menhusen (Anesthesiology), David Osterberg (Geography)

Assistant professors: Daniel Anton (Physical Therapy and Rehabilitation Science), Gabriele Ludewig, Thomas Peters

Assistant professor emerita: Pamela Willard (Nursing)

Adjunct assistant professors: Chandran Achutan, Danelle Bickett-Weddle, Seong Woo Choi, Gregory Couser, Christine Deignan, Gregory Flamme, Dian Gottlob, Daniel Holub, Carrie LaSeur, Hans-Joachim Lehmler, Murray Madsen, Shannon Marquez, John Rosecrance, Donald Simmons, Laurie Taylor, Roberta Till-Retz, John Vargo, Peter Weyer, Michael Wichman, Catherine Zeman

Clinical assistant professors: Edward Bottei, George Phillips, Risto Rautiainen

Graduate degrees: M.P.H.; M.S., Ph.D. in Occupational and Environmental Health

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/oeH>

The Department of Occupational and Environmental Health focuses on assessment of risk factors in the physical environment and their relationship to disease—particularly health problems of agricultural and industrial workers. Students are guided by faculty members whose research interests include rural health care delivery, agricultural health, environmental health, occupational medicine, occupational lung disease, mammalian toxicology, inhalation toxicology, ergonomics, indoor air quality, occupational injury, injury epidemiology, injury prevention programs, aerosol physics, air and water quality, environmental chemistry, analytical toxicology, and environmental health in developing countries.

Graduate Programs

The department offers three graduate degrees: Master of Public Health, which includes an optional subtrack in ergonomics or focus in global health; and Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy in occupational and environmental health, both of which include optional subtracks in agricultural safety and health and in industrial hygiene. The department also offers a joint M.S./M.A. with the Graduate College's Urban and Regional Planning Program.

Individuals who are not enrolled in one of the department's degree programs but wish to take departmental courses may apply for professional improvement status. The department also offers an occupational medicine residency training program.

Master of Public Health

See Master of Public Health Program in the Catalog.

Master of Science

The Master of Science in Occupational and Environmental Health requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit. It is offered with two optional subtracks: agricultural safety and health (requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit) and industrial hygiene (requires a minimum of 43 s.h. of graduate credit). All M.S. students are required to complete a thesis, except industrial hygiene professional option students, who must complete a preceptorship.

The following courses are required for all M.S. students.

REQUIRED COURSES

All of these:

| | |
|---|--------|
| 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 0 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |
| 175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar (taken three times, twice for 0 s.h. and once for 1 s.h.) | 1 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:230 Occupational Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:260 Environmental Toxicology | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

|--|--------|
| 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology | 4 s.h. |
| 096:114 Human Pathophysiology: Organ Systems | 3 s.h. |
| 096:115 Human Pathophysiology: Cellular/Neurology/Immunology | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

Elective courses are chosen to fill the 38 s.h. requirement for the degree. Students work with their advisors to select electives appropriate for their professional goals.

THESIS

All M.S. students, except those who choose the industrial hygiene professional option, must complete a master’s thesis that is accepted for degree credit. Students may earn a maximum of 6 s.h. for the thesis. Additional thesis credit may be allowed for students who take more than 38 s.h.

Agricultural Safety and Health Subtrack

The M.S. with agricultural safety and health subtrack prepares students for professional careers in education, health care, insurance, and agribusiness as specialists in agricultural safety and health.

The M.S. with agricultural safety and health subtrack requires a minimum of 38 s.h. of graduate credit.

Requirements are as follows.

|---|--------|
| 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 0 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |
| 175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar (taken three times, twice for 0 s.h. and once for 1 s.h.) | 1 s.h. |
| 175:196 Agricultural Safety: Theories and Practice | 2 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:203 Preceptorship in Occupational and Environmental Health | 1 s.h. |
| 175:209 Rural Health and Agricultural Medicine | 3 s.h. |
| 175:210 Current Topics in Agricultural Health (seminar, taken two times, once for 0 s.h. and once for 1 s.h.) | 1 s.h. |
| 175:230 Occupational Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:260 Environmental Toxicology | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

| | |
|--|--------|
| 096:114 Human Pathophysiology: Organ Systems | 3 s.h. |
| 096:115 Human Pathophysiology: Cellular/Neurology/Immunology | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

Agricultural safety and health subtrack students must complete required electives from one of five focus areas; the semester-hour requirement varies by area.

Industrial hygiene: 9 s.h.

Ergonomics: 9 s.h.

Occupational and environmental health: 9 s.h.

Occupational epidemiology: 11 s.h.

Occupational injury prevention: 8 s.h.

THESIS

All M.S. students must complete a master’s thesis that is accepted for degree credit. Students must earn a minimum of 3 s.h. for the thesis.

Industrial Hygiene Subtrack

The M.S. with industrial hygiene subtrack prepares students for professional careers in industrial hygiene as well as the broad field of occupational and environmental health. Career opportunities are available in health and safety departments of industries; in consulting firms; in academic institutions; and in local, state, and federal public health agencies.

The M.S. with industrial hygiene subtrack requires a minimum of 43 s.h. of graduate credit. Two options are available: a research option, which requires a master's thesis, and a professional option, which requires a semester-long practical experience (preceptorship).

|---|--------|
| 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 0 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |
| 175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar (taken three times, twice for 0 s.h. and once for 1 s.h.) | 1 s.h. |
| 175:190 Occupational Ergonomics I | 3 s.h. |
| 175:192 Occupational Safety | 3 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:220 Environmental and Occupational Epidemiology | 3 s.h. |
| 175:221 Aerosol Technology | 3 s.h. |
| 175:230 Occupational Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:231 Industrial Hygiene Fundamentals | 3 s.h. |
| 175:232 Assessing Physical Agent Hazards | 3 s.h. |
| 175:233 Control of Occupational Hazards | 3 s.h. |
| 175:260 Environmental Toxicology | 3 s.h. |

RESEARCH (THESIS) OPTION

Industrial hygiene subtrack students who choose the research (thesis) option must complete a master's thesis that is accepted for degree credit. Students may earn a maximum of 6 s.h. for the thesis.

|-----------------------------|------|
| 175:300 Thesis/Dissertation | arr. |

PROFESSIONAL (NONTHESIS) OPTION

Industrial hygiene subtrack students who choose the professional (nonthesis) option must complete a preceptorship in industrial hygiene. Students may earn a maximum of 3 s.h. for the preceptorship.

|--|------|
| 175:203 Preceptorship in Occupational and Environmental Health | arr. |
|--|------|

Students also must complete at least one 3 s.h. elective course to fill the 43 s.h. requirement for the degree.

Joint M.S./M.A. in Planning

The Department of Occupational and Environmental Health and the Urban and Regional Planning Program offer a joint master's degree program. Students who choose this option earn an M.S. in occupational and environmental health and an M.A. in planning. Separate admission to each program is required. The combined degree requires a minimum of 65 s.h. of graduate credit.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy in occupational and environmental health prepares students for professional and academic careers in environmental and occupational health. It is offered with two optional subtracks: agricultural safety and health, and industrial hygiene.

The Ph.D. requires 72 s.h. of graduate credit. All doctoral students must complete a dissertation—a substantial scholarly treatise. Ph.D. requirements are as follows.

|---|--------|
| All of these: | |
| 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 0 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |
| 171:162 Design and Analysis of Biomedical Studies | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |
| 175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar (taken three times, twice for 0 s.h. and once for 1 s.h.) | 1 s.h. |
| 175:197 Environmental Health | 3 s.h. |
| 175:230 Occupational Health | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

|--|--------|
| 069:133 Introduction to Human Pathology | 4 s.h. |
| 096:114 Human Pathophysiology: Organ Systems | 3 s.h. |
| 096:115 Human Pathophysiology: Cellular/Neurology/Immunology | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

Students must earn a minimum of 24 s.h. in non-research-related courses, including classroom courses or equivalent web-based courses. Students work with their advisors to select courses appropriate for their professional goals.

RESEARCH CREDIT

Students earn the remaining credit for the Ph.D. by completing any combination of the following courses or other classroom courses. All Ph.D. students must complete a dissertation.

|--|------|
| 175:172 Independent Study in Occupational and Environmental Health | arr. |

Agricultural Safety and Health Subtrack

The Ph.D. with agricultural safety and health subtrack prepares doctoral students for academic, research, and policy-making careers in occupational and environmental health, with speciality in agricultural safety and health.

Requirements are as follows.

|---|--------|
| 050:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 0 s.h. |
| 171:161 Introduction to Biostatistics | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

Agricultural safety and health subtrack students must complete required electives from one of five focus areas; the semester-hour requirement varies by area.

Industrial hygiene: 24 s.h.

Ergonomics: 15 s.h.

Occupational and environmental health: 24 s.h.

Occupational epidemiology: 13 s.h.
Occupational injury prevention: 11 s.h.

RESEARCH CREDIT

Students earn the remaining credit for the Ph.D. by completing any combination of the following courses or other classroom courses. All Ph.D. students must complete a dissertation.

Admission

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

The occupational and environmental health faculty takes several factors into consideration when evaluating applications for admission, including Graduate Record Exam (GRE) General Test scores, grade-point averages, letters of recommendation, intent and motivation for graduate study, and research interests. A student with deficiencies in one area may be admitted if all other components of his or her application are very strong.

All M.P.H., M.S., and Ph.D. program applicants must hold a baccalaureate degree and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00 (M.P.H. and M.S. applicants) or at least 3.25 (Ph.D. applicants). All applicants must have taken the GRE General Test. A minimum GRE score of 1050 (verbal plus quantitative) is recommended for master's applicants, 1100 for doctoral applicants.

International applicants who do not hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada (except Quebec), Australia, or New Zealand must score at least 600 (paper-based), 250 (computer-based), or 100 (Internet-based) on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). International applicants who score 550-599 (paper-based), 213-249 (computer-based), or 81-99 (Internet-based) are required to take English fluency courses. Applicants who score below those ranges are not considered for admission.

Undergraduate preparation for M.P.H. and M.S. applicants must include course work in mathematics, biological sciences, chemistry, and either physical sciences or engineering, depending on the applicant's chosen specialty area.

M.S. applicants who intend to pursue the industrial hygiene subtrack also must have taken physics and mathematics through calculus; course work in biological sciences, microbiology, and computer programming is highly recommended.

Completion of the M.S. program before beginning Ph.D. study is recommended. Undergraduate preparation for doctoral applicants must include at least two semesters of chemistry, one semester of physics, and one semester of calculus. Course work in biological sciences, microbiology, and computer programming are highly recommended, particularly for students interested in some specialized areas.

Application deadlines for fall entrance for graduate study are July 1 for U.S. citizens and permanent residents, April 1 for international applicants. Application deadlines for spring entrance are December 1 for U.S. citizens and permanent residents, October 1 for international applicants.

Financial Support

Several graduate student awards, including tuition and stipend support, are available for individuals interested in industrial hygiene, agricultural safety and health, ergonomics, occupational epidemiology, or occupational injury prevention. Both stipend and tuition support are available for all occupational medicine residents. Full-time graduate students in good academic standing (those not admitted on conditional status) are eligible for a stipend and tuition support. All other students are eligible for tuition support only; requests are considered case-by-case. All recipients must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents.

Postdoctoral Positions

The College of Public Health's Environmental Health Sciences Training Program offers postdoctoral positions in environmental health/toxicology. Appointments are made for two years with the possibility of an additional year. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents.

Residency Program

In cooperation with University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, the department offers residency training in occupational medicine for physicians seeking specialty training in occupational medicine. For information contact the director of the Occupational Medicine Residency Program.

Resources

The Heartland Center for Occupational Health and Safety, one of 16 education and research centers funded by the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), provides training, education, and outreach. Its program areas are occupational health nursing, industrial hygiene, occupational medicine, ergonomics, agricultural safety and health, occupational injury prevention research, occupational epidemiology, and continuing education/outreach.

Facilities

The Department of Occupational and Environmental Health is housed on the University's Oakdale Research Campus in the Institute for Rural and Environmental Health. College of Public Health-based laboratory facilities give researchers and students access to cutting-edge technologies for the study of occupational and environmental health.

The Inhalation Toxicology Facility (ITF), provides a full array of inhalation toxicology, aerosol science, and bioaerosol assay services. A primary focus of the ITF is the study of toxicants found in the agricultural environment and related exposure situations. The facility is particularly well-equipped for studying organic dusts and bioaerosols.

The Occupational Hygiene Laboratory (OHL) provides expertise and equipment for exposure assessment in occupational settings. The OHL provides a range of sample collection capabilities and an extensive inventory of sampling equipment. The field and laboratory services available through the laboratory support exposure-response studies and control technology development studies in a variety of occupational arenas, including agriculture, construction, and indoor environments (home and office).

A computer laboratory is available for student use, and a library collection is located in the Institute for Rural and Environmental Health.

Courses

175:101 Health, Work, and the Environment 3 s.h.
Current topics in occupational and environmental health; how the United States protects workers, protects people from environmental agents, and reduces environmental harm. Same as 044:174.

175:111 International Health arr.
Urgent health problems in the developing world and among disadvantaged populations in developed countries; biological, social, cultural, political aspects of international health problems; applications of research methods from epidemiology, environmental health, social sciences. Same as 152:111, 173:111.

175:170 Injury and Violence Prevention 3 s.h.
Theory, research, and practice of injury control; unintentional and intentional injuries; local, national, international injury issues. Same as 173:170.

175:171 Problems in Occupational and Environmental Health arr.
Didactic material in occupational and environmental health; may include tutorial, seminar, faculty-directed independent work (e.g., literature search, project, short research project).

175:172 Independent Study in Occupational and Environmental Health arr.
In-depth pursuit of an area in occupational and environmental health requiring substantial creativity and independence.

175:175 Research Methods in Disaster Studies 3 s.h.
Epidemiologic study of disasters and their health consequences; research to identify and reduce health effects, research in context of response and preparedness. Same as 173:175.

175:180 Occupational and Environmental Health Seminar 0-1 s.h.
Contemporary topics in occupational health, agricultural and comparative medicine, environmental health.

175:185 Occupational Health Research Seminar 2 s.h.
Tools necessary for making critical assessment of published scientific research reports from a methodological perspective; examples from recently published research studies in occupational and environmental health. Corequisites: 171:161 and 173:140.

175:190 Occupational Ergonomics I 2-3 s.h.
Principles of ergonomics, with focus on physical capabilities of workers and their interactions with their work environment; physiological basis of work, patterns of work, occupational risk factors for musculoskeletal and neurovascular disorders, workplace and equipment design, integration of ergonomics in manufacturing processes.

175:192 Occupational Safety 3 s.h.
Principles and practices of occupational safety; applications in industrial and other occupational settings; interactions with other disciplines.

175:193 Environmental Health Law 3 s.h.
Legal foundation of environmental health protection; federal, state, local regulation; police powers; tort liability; investigations and inspections, air and water pollution, biotechnology. Prerequisite: 175:197 or consent of instructor.

175:195 Global Environmental Health 2 s.h.
Current problems, including transboundary movement of pollutants, vectors of infectious agents, global warming and climatic change. Prerequisite: 175:111 or 175:197 or consent of instructor.

175:196 Agricultural Safety: Theories and Practice 2 s.h.
General theories and practice of injury prevention from varied fields, including industrial safety, engineering, regulation, education, epidemiology, social psychology; strategic application in agriculture.

175:197 Environmental Health 3 s.h.
Survey of the field; assessment of contemporary human health issues associated with biological, chemical, physical factors of environment; critical review of environmental factors that affect health; public policies governing recognition, intervention, control.

175:198 Solid and Hazardous Wastes 3 s.h.
Sources, characteristics, collection and disposal of solid and hazardous wastes; environmental impacts of hazardous waste management; resource recovery systems. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: 175:197 or consent of instructor. Same as 053:158.

175:201 Research in Occupational and Environmental Health arr.

Research that may lead to a dissertation. Repeatable.

175:203 Preceptorship in Occupational and Environmental Health arr.

Work experience using knowledge and skills acquired in the classroom; arranged in conjunction with departmental or collegiate activities or with governmental agencies or private industry. Repeatable.

175:205 Public Health Law 2 s.h.

Introduction to legal principles and case law relevant to public health policy making; constitutional, administrative, and tort law as applied to public health; fluency with legal analysis and terminology. Pre- or corequisite: 175:197.

175:209 Rural Health and Agricultural Medicine 3 s.h.

Clinical orientation of specific health problems of rural residents, agricultural workers; rural health care delivery, socioeconomic issues in agriculture and their effects on health and safety of the agricultural population; occupational health problems, environmental health hazards in rural areas. Prerequisite: 173:140 or medicine enrollment or consent of instructor.

175:210 Current Topics in Agricultural Health 1 s.h.

Issues that affect the health of agricultural populations, such as agro-terrorism, antibiotic resistance, genetically modified organisms; current scientific literature.

175:211 Veterinary Public Health: The Profession 1 s.h.

History and overview of veterinary public health and the American College of Veterinary Preventive Medicine (ACVPM); preparation for ACVPM board of certification.

175:220 Environmental and Occupational Epidemiology 3 s.h.

Environmental and occupational epidemiologic study designs; basic and novel methods of exposure assessment; methodologies to improve study validity. Prerequisite: 173:140. Corequisites: 171:161 and 175:197.

175:221 Aerosol Technology 3 s.h.

Particle statistics and physics of aerosols, including inertia, diffusion, nucleation, evaporation, condensation, optics, electrical properties; relationship to fields such as agriculture, nanotechnology, environmental and occupational health, atmospheric chemistry, drug delivery.

175:230 Occupational Health 3 s.h.

Principles, practice of occupational medicine, fundamentals of industrial hygiene and safety, occupational health management, ergonomics, occupational health nursing. Offered fall semesters.

175:231 Industrial Hygiene Fundamentals 3 s.h.

Principles, with emphasis on recognition of chemical health hazards, physical health hazards at work. Pre- or corequisite: 175:230.

175:232 Assessing Physical Agent Hazards 3 s.h.

Basic principles of recognizing and evaluating hazards presented by physical agents in occupational environments. Prerequisite: 175:230.

175:233 Control of Occupational Hazards 3 s.h.

Physical science concepts applied to control of occupational hazards ranging from dusts to mists to vapors; strategies, management issues, personal protective equipment, implementation skills; in-depth instruction on local exhaust ventilation system design. Prerequisite: 175:230 or 175:231 or consent of instructor.

175:251 Injury Epidemiology 3 s.h.

How epidemiology can be applied to injury prevention and control; specific methodological problems involved in the epidemiology of injuries; epidemiology literature, critical evaluation of research articles. Offered spring semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: 173:140 or consent of instructor. Same as 173:251.

175:252 Environmental Health Policy 3 s.h.

Major concerns in environment and human health, legislation enacted to deal with these concerns; emphasis on contemporary issues. Offered fall semesters of odd years. Prerequisite: 175:197 or consent of instructor. Same as 053:204, 152:252.

175:253 Epidemiology of Occupational Injuries 3 s.h.

Epidemiological literature on occupational injuries. Offered spring semesters of even years. Prerequisite: 173:140 or consent of instructor. Same as 173:253.

175:260 Environmental Toxicology 3 s.h.

Sources, routes of absorption, effects of environmental toxicants affecting man; pathophysiology of toxicant actions, including those of air and water pollutants, metals, pesticides, solvents, food toxicants, chemicals. Prerequisite: college organic and inorganic chemistry, or physiology, or biochemistry.

175:265 Advanced Toxicology 4 s.h.

Hepatic metabolism and toxification mechanisms, pulmonary and immunotoxicology, nervous system poisons and their mechanisms of action, general and molecular concepts of chemical carcinogenesis. Prerequisite: 175:260 or equivalent or consent of instructor.

175:270 Special Topics in Toxicology 2 s.h.

Genesis of toxicology as the science of poisoning, its application to murder, magic, medicine; use of natural products for gaining power, hunting, warfare, religion, witchcraft. Offered spring semesters of even years. Pre- or corequisite: 175:260.

175:285 Advanced Topics in Occupational Medicine 2 s.h.

Skills and knowledge for evaluating and treating patients with work-related illness.

175:294 Occupational Ergonomics II 3 s.h.

Application of ergonomic principles in varied work settings, through case study approach; participatory ergonomics, economics of ergonomics, workforce issues, psychosocial factors, shift work, integration of ergonomics into business models, current legislative issues, legal aspects of ergonomics, international perspectives; biomedical instrumentation used for risk factor exposure measurements.

175:295 Clinical Ergonomics 3 s.h.

Clinical orientation to specific ergonomic problems and issues; preparation for conducting independent on-site ergonomic evaluations in occupational settings; experience developing and evaluating ergonomic interventions in an occupational setting; rotation through an occupational medicine clinic. Prerequisite: 175:190 or consent of instructor.

175:300 Thesis/Dissertation arr.

Repeatable.

175:996 Occupational Medicine arr.

In-depth study of an area in occupational and environmental medicine, with clinical experience in an outpatient community setting. Four-week course. Prerequisite: M.D. enrollment.

Public Health Genetics

Interim head: Leon Burmeister

Graduate degree: Ph.D. in Statistical Genetics

Graduate nondegree program: Certificate in Statistical Genetics

Web site: <http://www.public-health.uiowa.edu/pphg>

The Program in Public Health Genetics focuses on statistical genetics with applications to medical research, especially mapping and understanding genes related to common, complex human diseases. It also focuses on public health implications of genetics and genetics research.

Graduate Programs

The program offers the Doctor of Philosophy and a graduate certificate, both in statistical genetics.

Admission to the Ph.D. in statistical genetics has been suspended.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Ph.D. in statistical genetics prepares students for professional and academic careers in statistical genetics. It provides training in the development and evaluation of new statistical methods for analyzing human genetic data, and the application of those methods to discovering and understanding the genes underlying human disease. The program also prepares students to contribute to collaborative clinical research by providing them with training in genetics and with opportunities to participate in research involving collaboration with molecular and clinical geneticists and genetic epidemiologists.

The Ph.D. requires a minimum of 82 s.h. of graduate credit. Students complete a 42 s.h. core; 9-12 s.h. in a concentration area outside statistical genetics (biostatistics/statistics, computer science/bioinformatics, biology/bioinformatics, or epidemiology/biostatistics); up to 25 s.h. of elective course work chosen in consultation with the student's advisor; and at least 6 s.h. of dissertation credit. They also must successfully complete a comprehensive examination and a dissertation—a substantial scholarly treatise for which they must earn at least 6 s.h. The dissertation research topic and content must be approved by the student's dissertation committee.

Ph.D. requirements are as follows.

REQUIRED CORE

All Ph.D. students must complete the following courses (42 s.h.).

|--|--------|
| 22S:153 Mathematical Statistics I | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:154 Mathematical Statistics II | 3 s.h. |
| 070:110 Medical Genetics | 2 s.h. |
| 171:201 Biostatistical Methods I | 4 s.h. |
| 173:225 Genetics and Epidemiology | 4 s.h. |
| 185:102 Introduction to Genetic Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 185:104/22C:104 Introduction to Informatics | 3 s.h. |
| 185:272 Population and Quantitative Genetics | 3 s.h. |
| 185:274 Theory of Statistical Genetics | 3 s.h. |
| 185:276 Statistical Genetics Laboratory | 9 s.h. |
| 185:278 Computing Algorithms in Statistical Genetics | 3 s.h. |
| 185:285 Clinical Genetics Practicum | 1 s.h. |
| 650:270 Responsible Conduct in Research | 1 s.h. |

CONCENTRATION AREA

All Ph.D. students complete one of the following concentration areas.

Biostatistics/Statistics

Both of these:

|------------------------------------|--------|
| 171:251 Theory of Biostatistics I | 4 s.h. |
| 171:252 Theory of Biostatistics II | 4 s.h. |

One of these:

| | |
|---------------------------------------|--------|
| 22S:138 Bayesian Statistics | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:161 Applied Multivariate Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:248 Computer Intensive Statistics | 3 s.h. |
| 171:261 Survival Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |

Biology/Bioinformatics

Both of these:

|------------------------------|--------|
| 002:128 Fundamental Genetics | 4 s.h. |
| 002:170 Bioinformatics | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

| | |
|---|--------|
| 002:131 Evolution | 4 s.h. |
| 002:162 Population Genetics and Molecular Evolution | 3 s.h. |
| 127:191 Human Molecular Genetics | 3 s.h. |

Computer Science/Bioinformatics

All of these:

| | |
|--------------------------------------|--------|
| 002:170 Bioinformatics | 3 s.h. |
| 06K:272 Database Analysis and Design | 3 s.h. |
| 06K:275 Knowledge Discovery | 3 s.h. |

Epidemiology/Biostatistics

Both of these:

| | |
|---|--------|
| 171:241 Applied Categorical Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 173:140 Epidemiology I: Principles | 3 s.h. |

One of these:

| | |
|---|--------|
| 173:255 Epidemiology of Infectious Diseases | 3 s.h. |
| 173:265 Cardiovascular Disease Epidemiology | 3 s.h. |
| 173:267 Psychiatric Epidemiology | 3 s.h. |
| 173:270 Cancer Epidemiology and Control | 3 s.h. |

ELECTIVES

Students select up to 25 s.h. of elective courses from this list. They also may substitute other courses with written approval of the program's director and their advisors.

|--|--------|
| 22S:138 Bayesian Statistics | 3 s.h. |
| 22S:161 Applied Multivariate Analysis | 3 s.h. |

| 171:261 Survival Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 171:262 Analysis of Categorical Data | 3 s.h. |
| 171:264 Longitudinal Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 185:101 Introduction to Genetics and Public Health | 3 s.h. |
| 185:281 Independent Study in Statistical Genetics | arr. |
| 185:282 Special Topics in Statistical Genetics | arr. |
| 185:295 Research in Statistical Genetics | arr. |

DISSERTATION

Students must earn at least 6 s.h. for the dissertation and must be in residence a minimum of two years.

|--|--------|
| 185:300 Dissertation in Statistical Genetics | 6 s.h. |
|--|--------|

Certificate

The Certificate in Statistical Genetics prepares students for careers as data analysts on research projects involving human genetic data. The certificate is designed to complement an M.S. in biostatistics or a related field, such as statistics. It can be completed either in conjunction with or after completing an M.S. The certificate cannot be awarded before completion of an M.S.

The certificate requires the following course work (16 s.h.) with a g.p.a. of at least 3.00.

|--|--------|
| 070:110 Medical Genetics | 2 s.h. |
| 173:225 Genetics and Epidemiology | 4 s.h. |
| 185:102 Introduction to Genetic Data Analysis | 3 s.h. |
| 185:276 Statistical Genetics Laboratory | 3 s.h. |
| *185:280 Preceptorship in Statistical Genetics | 3 s.h. |
| 185:285 Clinical Genetics Practicum | 1 s.h. |

*The preceptorship in statistical genetics must be approved by the head of the Program in Public Health Genetics.

Admission

Admission to the Ph.D. in statistical genetics has been suspended.

For detailed information about Graduate College policies, including application requirements and procedures, see the Manual of Rules and Regulations of the Graduate College or the Graduate College section of the Catalog.

Resources

The Center for Statistical Genetics Research supports research on complex human inherited disease through basic methodological work in statistical genetics and promotion of interdisciplinary, collaborative, clinical-genetic research. The center provides opportunities for graduate students and postdoctoral fellows to be involved in research throughout their training.

University College is home to a wide range of programs for University of Iowa students and precollege students. It includes major college-level programs such as the University of Iowa Honors Program, Study Abroad, and study at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory. Some of its college-level programs are designed to smooth entering students' transition to college life, such as the College Success Initiatives program, or to provide opportunities for populations underrepresented in the sciences and engineering, such as Iowa Biosciences Advantage and Alliances for Graduate Education and the Professoriate. Special courses for student orientation advisors, residence hall assistants, fraternity and sorority leaders, and students who design web sites for University departments and offices are offered through University College, as are Lifetime Leisure Skills courses in a broad range of sport and fitness activities.

The University's Reserve Officer Training Corps programs, Aerospace Studies and Military Science, reside in University College.

Several precollege programs also are under University College's wing: the Belin-Blank Center for Gifted Education, the Iowa Young Writers' Studio, Opportunity at Iowa Summer Programs, the Secondary Student Training Program, and University of Iowa Upward Bound.

Courses offered through University College programs are taught by University of Iowa faculty and staff members.

Aerospace Studies

Head: Col. Nancy Hamel

Assistant professors: Capt. Ben Kent, Capt. Nathan Nealon

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~afrotc>

The Aerospace Studies Program administers the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (AFROTC) at The University of Iowa. AFROTC educates highly qualified students who are working toward a degree and a commission as an officer in the United States Air Force.

AFROTC is voluntary, with courses open to all undergraduate and graduate students. The amount of AFROTC academic credit that may be applied toward a degree varies from college to college at the University. The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, for example, accepts a maximum of 20 s.h.

In order to receive a commission, AFROTC cadets must complete all University requirements for a degree as well as courses specified by the U.S. Air Force.

AFROTC offers programs lasting two and one-half years, three years, and four years. Joining the program early gives students the opportunity to try AFROTC without obligation. It also can give them an advantage in the scholarship selection process.

The AFROTC program's three main components are the general military course, the professional officer course, and field training.

General Military Course

The general military course (GMC) consists of a 1 s.h. course and a leadership laboratory taken each semester for two years. Any student who meets AFROTC qualifications and is in good academic standing with the University is eligible to participate in the GMC. Students normally apply for the GMC up to the time they earn 60 s.h. Students who have earned more than 60 s.h. may enroll in the GMC if they are willing to extend their academic plan by a semester or more.

Professional Officer Course

The professional officer course (POC) consists of four 3 s.h. AFROTC courses. Students accepted into the POC make a commitment to serve a minimum of four years as U.S. Air Force officers. To enter the POC, students must be selected to attend and must successfully complete field training. Students generally take the POC during their last 60 s.h.

Field Training

All POC applicants must successfully complete field training at a U.S. Air Force base. Field training is an intensive, four-week program completed the summer after the sophomore year. It provides a first-hand look at the active duty Air Force and develops military leadership and discipline. Students participate in aircraft and aircrew orientation, junior officer education, marksmanship, survival training, and physical fitness training. When they complete the program, they are ready to return to school and assume a leadership position in the AFROTC program.

Students receive authorized pay and allowances when they attend field training.

Special Activities

Students have the option to compete for acceptance to a variety of optional AFROTC summer training programs. They can shadow a junior officer in a career field of interest, or they can compete to attend the Air Force Academy's free-fall parachute, glider, or combat survival schools. Students can return to field training as cadet training assistants, go to the Pentagon to see how the Air Force operates, or travel to a foreign country for a cultural immersion program. The Air Force provides transportation, meals, lodging, and a daily expense allowance for all summer programs.

Throughout the year, students may learn more about the Air Force by choosing to participate in base visits, aircraft orientation rides, a Dining Out (a formal ball in Air Force tradition), and other activities.

The AFROTC Cadet Corps also sponsors many social events, including informal parties, formal dinners, intramural athletics, and a military ball.

Financial Aid

Merit scholarships are available for one, two, and three years of study. They provide tuition, a $750 stipend for books, laboratory fees, and $250-400 per month, tax-free. Applicants are selected based on objective and subjective factors. Students should apply directly to the head of aerospace studies. Students majoring in certain high-demand disciplines may be eligible for an express scholarship upon acceptance to AFROTC.

All cadets in the last two years of AFROTC are eligible for some financial assistance. They receive $350-400 per month, tax-free. Uniforms are furnished as well as all books for AFROTC classes.

Education Delay

Cadets may request an education delay to postpone entry to active duty until after completion of an advanced degree or professional training program.

Courses

23A:010 Foundations of the U.S. Air Force I 1 s.h.
Introduction to U.S. Air Force: military customs and courtesies, basic oral and written communication techniques, careers available to Air Force officers. Prerequisite: first-year or sophomore standing or consent of instructor.

23A:011 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 100-FA 1 s.h.
A progression of experiences designed to develop leadership ability; military customs and courtesies, drill and ceremonies, military professional development, the life and work of a junior officer; leadership skills in a practical, supervised military lab setting. Offered fall semesters. Prerequisite: first-year or sophomore standing or consent of instructor. Corequisite: 23A:010.

23A:012 Foundations of the U.S. Air Force II 1 s.h.
Continuation of 23A:010; leadership theory and practice, team building, diversity in the work force. Prerequisite: first-year or sophomore standing or consent of instructor.

23A:013 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 100-SP 1 s.h.
A progression of experiences designed to develop leadership ability; military customs and courtesies, drill and ceremonies, military professional development, the life and work of a junior officer; leadership skills in a practical, supervised military lab setting. Offered spring semesters. Prerequisite: first-year or sophomore standing or consent of instructor. Corequisite: 23A:012.

23A:020 Evolution of USAF Air and Space Power I 1 s.h.
Air power from Civil War hot air balloons through World War II; emphasis on developments in U.S. Air Force.

23A:021 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 200-FA 1 s.h.
See 23A:011. Offered fall semesters. Corequisite: 23A:020.

23A:022 Evolution of USAF Air and Space Power II 1 s.h.
Continuation of 23A:020; air power from post-World War II to present; emphasis on developments in U.S. Air Force.

23A:023 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 200-SP 1 s.h.
See 23A:011. Offered spring semesters. Corequisite: 23A:022.

23A:130 Air Force Leadership Studies I 3 s.h.
Emphasis on management, leadership, communication skills required of an Air Force officer. Prerequisite: junior or higher standing or consent of instructor.

23A:131 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 300-FA 1 s.h.
See 23A:011. Offered fall semesters. Corequisite: 23A:130.

23A:132 Air Force Leadership Studies II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 23A:130; leadership topics in counseling, accountability, ethics. Prerequisite: junior or higher standing or consent of instructor.

23A:133 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 300-SP 1 s.h.
See 23A:011. Offered spring semesters. Corequisite: 23A:132.

23A:140 National Security Affairs and Active Duty Preparation I 3 s.h.
America's evolving national security policy; structure of national security agencies, development of national security strategies; global regions and their historical and current importance to U.S. security policies. Prerequisite: junior or higher standing or consent of instructor.

23A:141 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 400-FA 1 s.h.
See 23A:011. Offered fall semesters. Corequisite: 23A:140.

23A:142 National Security Affairs and Active Duty Preparation II 3 s.h.
Continuation of 23A:140; Department of Defense structure, missions, and responsibilities, with emphasis on role of the U.S. Air Force; Air Force standards; preparation for active duty as Air Force junior officers. Prerequisite: junior or higher standing or consent of instructor.

23A:143 AFROTC Leadership Laboratory (LLAB) AS 400-SP 1 s.h.
See 23A:011. Offered spring semesters. Corequisite: 23A:142.

23A:150 Readings in Contemporary Military Issues 1-4 s.h.
Independent research on the U.S. Air Force; historical topics, current missions, future technologies, comparisons to other nations. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

23A:171 AFROTC Leadership Lab AS 700 0 s.h.
Opportunity to use leadership skills acquired in previous AFROTC classes; experience providing leadership to the Cadet Corps, under direction of commandant of cadets. Prerequisites: 23A:141 and 23A:143.

23A:173 AFROTC Leadership Lab AS 700 0 s.h.

Alliances for Graduate Education and the Professoriate Summer Program

Director: Philip Kutzko (Mathematics)
Web site: <http://www.agep.iastate.edu/iowasummer.asp>

Courses

411:001 Summer Research Experience NSF 0 s.h.

The Alliances for Graduate Education and the Professoriate Summer Program (AGEP) prepares students to pursue graduate education in engineering and in the mathematical, physical, and life sciences. The eight-week program offers early research experience by matching students with University of Iowa faculty mentors in the students' interest areas. It also gives participants the opportunity to experience life as a graduate student at a large university.

Students are required to participate in weekly seminars and in social, cultural, and educational activities. They also tour facilities both on and off campus. A final report/project is required. The program ends with a research symposium at which students make oral and poster presentations of their research.

Students accepted to AGEP receive a $2,500 stipend, on-campus room and board, and round-trip airfare to Iowa.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents, and members of an underrepresented minority (African American, Hispanic, or American Indian). They must be undergraduate students pursuing a degree in science, technology, engineering, or mathematics. To enter the program, applicants must have completed their sophomore year in college and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.00. Graduating seniors are not eligible.

Bachelor of Applied Studies

Coordinator: Dian Gottlob

Undergraduate degree: B.A.S.

Web site: <http://continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/bas>

The Bachelor of Applied Studies (B.A.S.) program is designed for nontraditional students who are graduates of community college technical programs and who wish to complete a bachelor's degree without interrupting their careers. Applicants should have a minimum of three years of work experience.

The B.A.S. provides alternatives to traditional majors. Because the program does not have departmental major requirements, students work with an advisor to plan their own emphasis areas.

Students may earn credit toward the degree through several types of courses, including Saturday & Evening Classes, print- and web-based independent study courses, semester-based web courses, extension courses at sites throughout Iowa, interactive and broadcast televised courses, and regular session courses.

At The University of Iowa, the B.A.S. is awarded by University College and administered by the Division of Continuing Education. Since the B.A.S. is a general undergraduate degree without a traditional major, B.A.S. students may not earn minors. However, the degree requirements are sufficiently flexible to allow students, with the assistance of their B.A.S. advisor, to structure a program that meets their individual objectives. B.A.S. students may plan programs designed to help them advance in their chosen careers, begin new careers, or prepare for graduate or professional study. Students who have specific career goals or advanced degree programs in mind should learn what educational background they will need in order to achieve their goals, and they should include appropriate course work in their B.A.S. programs.

Bachelor of Applied Studies

The Bachelor of Applied Studies requires 120 s.h., including at least 30 s.h. earned at The University of Iowa after admission to the B.A.S. program. Students must earn at least 60 s.h. of the required 120 s.h. at four-year colleges, including 45 s.h. in course work defined as upper-level. For the B.A.S., University of Iowa courses are considered upper-level if they are numbered 100 and above. A few courses numbered below 100 may be considered upper-level for the B.A.S.; for a list of these courses, contact the Center for Credit Programs.

The program of study requires that a student complete 12 s.h. in three of the following five distribution areas.

Humanities (e.g., literature, history, philosophy, religion)

Communication and arts (e.g., journalism, speech, drama, art, music)

Natural sciences and mathematics (e.g., geology, biological sciences, statistics, computer science)

Social sciences (e.g., geography, psychology, economics, political science, anthropology)

Professional fields (e.g., business, education, nursing, social work, library science)

Semester hours applied toward completion of the B.A.S. core requirements (see "Admission" later in this section) may not be used to meet the B.A.S. distribution area requirements, but they may be counted toward the required 45 s.h. of upper-level course work, if applicable.

Students must maintain a g.p.a. of 2.00 or higher in all course work attempted, work undertaken at The University of Iowa, and all upper-level course work.

All Division of Continuing Education policies regarding pass/nonpass and satisfactory/fail grading, academic standards, and so forth apply to B.A.S. students (for details, see <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/studservs.htm>).

Students may incorporate one of three online certificate programs into their B.A.S. studies: the Certificate in Entrepreneurship, the Certificate in Nonprofit Management, and the Certificate in Public Health. Or they may use an interdisciplinary approach to plan an individualized focus area.

Entrepreneurship Certificate

The Certificate in Entrepreneurship is offered by the Tippie College of Business. It requires 18-20 s.h. Courses are offered via the World Wide Web. See Entrepreneurship (Tippie College of Business) in the Catalog or contact the Tippie College of Business for details.

Nonprofit Management Certificate

The Certificate in Nonprofit Management is offered by University College in collaboration with the Center for Credit Programs and the Larned A. Waterman Iowa Nonprofit Resource Center. The certificate requires 18 s.h. Courses are offered primarily on the World Wide Web. See Nonprofit Management (University College) in the Catalog or contact the Center for Credit Programs for details.

Public Health Certificate

The Certificate in Public Health is offered by the College of Public Health and is designed primarily for individuals working in public health practice and for those considering public health careers. The certificate requires 12 s.h. Courses are offered via the World Wide Web. Applicants must have substantial relevant work experience. Contact the College of Public Health for details.

Interdisciplinary Approaches

In collaboration with their B.A.S. advisor, students may design a focus in one of a variety of interdisciplinary areas (e.g., aging studies, environmental studies, technical writing, family studies).

Admission

Students who want to graduate with a B.A.S. must make a formal application for admission to the program. Prospective students should contact the Center for Credit Programs office before applying.

All applications to the program are screened. Students who have access to the full range of the University's daytime classes should seek admission to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences in order to pursue a major leading to a degree other than the B.A.S. Non-B.A.S. students interested in tailoring a degree program to their individual interests should consider pursuing the interdepartmental studies major (see Interdepartmental Studies in the Catalog) or the Bachelor of Liberal Studies degree (see Bachelor of Liberal Studies in the Catalog).

To be eligible for admission to the B.A.S. program, students must have earned an Associate of Applied Science (A.A.S.) degree or an Associate of Science (A.S.) from an Iowa area community college that participates in the Iowa Community College/Regents Articulation Agreement. They must have a g.p.a. of at least 2.00 and must have completed the following B.A.S. minimum core requirements.

Rhetoric: total of 4-8 s.h. (the requirement includes two composition courses and one speech course)

Quantitative or formal reasoning (3 s.h.)

Social sciences (3 s.h.)

Cultural diversity (3 s.h.)

Business/management: total of 6 s.h. from these:

|--|--------|
| 06A:001 Introduction to Financial Accounting | 3 s.h. |
| 06A:002 Managerial Accounting | 3 s.h. |
| 06A:020 Accounting for Nonbusiness Students | 3 s.h. |
| 06J:047 Introduction to Law | 3 s.h. |
| 06J:048 Introduction to Management | 3 s.h. |
| 06K:070 Computer Analysis | 3 s.h. |

See a B.A.S. advisor for a list of other acceptable courses.

Contact the Center for Credit Programs for more information about the B.A.S. program.

Career Center Programs

Director: David Baumgartner

Web site: <http://www.careers.uiowa.edu>

The University of Iowa Marvin A. and Rose Lee Pomerantz Career Center administers the University's Career Center Programs. The center helps students explore and plan careers, search for employment and internship opportunities, and prepare for job interviews. Students may use the Pomerantz Career Center's services at any time during their academic careers, but the center encourages entering first-year and transfer students to visit after they arrive on campus and to make use of all of the center's services throughout their study at Iowa.

The center offers online workshops throughout the year on a variety of topics, including résumé writing, job and internship search techniques, employer research, and interviewing skills. It hosts several career fairs each fall and spring, offering students the opportunity to talk with and learn about prospective employers.

The Pearson Library contains career-related books, periodicals, and online resources—some broad in scope, others targeted to specific careers or jobs. Corporate annual reports and employer recruiting brochures join information on salaries, geographical cost of living, resources for jobs and internships, graduate schools, and other topics.

The Pomerantz Career Center facilitates job interviewing with a wide range of employers—regional, national, and international; profit and nonprofit; state and federal government. Employers conduct on-campus job interviews at specific times during the year, and many post immediate openings year-round. On-campus recruiting and job postings are available on the center's web site.

The center also helps students find internships in Iowa, the Midwest, nationwide, and sometimes in other countries. For a list of discipline-related internships (all require course registration), see "Courses"/"Internships" below.

For more information about the center's services and facilities, contact the Pomerantz Career Center.

Successful search strategies for jobs and internships; how to write successful cover letters and résumés; interview skills; company research.

409:106 Career Leadership Academy—Phase 1 1 s.h.
Concepts in leadership and employee development; how to gain skills that employers want; leadership theory and the work world. First in a four-semester sequence.

409:107 Career Leadership Academy—Phase 2 1 s.h.
Concepts in leadership and employee development; how to gain skills that employers want; leadership theory and the work world. Second in a four-semester sequence. Prerequisite: 409:106.

409:108 Career Leadership Academy—Phase 3 1 s.h.
Concepts in leadership and employee development; how to gain skills that employers want; leadership theory and the work world. Third in a four-semester sequence. Prerequisites: 409:106 and 409:107.

409:109 Career Leadership Academy—Phase 4 1 s.h.
Concepts in leadership and employee development; how to gain skills that employers want; leadership theory and the work world. Last in a four-semester sequence. Prerequisites: 409:106, 409:107, and 409:108.

409:110 Career Planning 2 s.h.
Self-assessment, networking, locating and using resources related to choosing a career.

409:111 Art Career Fundamentals 1 s.h.
Opportunity for creative artists to explore career goals; student insights into their own creative process; how process affects career opportunities.

Internships

Students must register before beginning an internship in order for the internship to be noted on the transcript.

409:001 Internship in Art 0 s.h.

409:002 Internship in Biological Science 0 s.h.

409:003 Internship in Speech Pathology and Audiology 0 s.h.

College Success Initiatives

The College Success Initiatives program is designed to enrich students' experiences at The University of Iowa. College Success initiatives offers the following courses focused on helping first-year and entering students make a successful transition to the University: a traditional first-year experience course (407:001), a transition course for transfer students (407:011), a web-based course offering an introduction to electronic tools and resources at The University of Iowa (407:007), and a course for first-year students who have been placed on academic probation (407:002).

College Success Initiatives is administered by the associate provost for undergraduate education. For more information about College Success Initiatives courses, contact the Academic Advising Center. Other programs designed especially for first-year students at Iowa include Courses in Common (contact the Academic Advising Center), First-Year Seminars (contact the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences), and Learning Communities (contact the Office of the Provost).

Courses

- 407:001 The College Transition 2 s.h.
College culture, University of Iowa resources, refinement of study skills, test taking, identification of personal values, self-motivation, goal setting; taught in small sections with emphasis on classroom discussion. Prerequisite: entering first-year student standing.
- 407:002 College Success Seminar 1 s.h.
Skills, habits, and attitudes essential for college success; self-assessment, goal setting, problem solving, motivation, time management, study skills, preparing for and taking tests; campus resources, including the Pomerantz Career Center, University Counseling Service; emphasis on class participation and completion of assignments related to course topics. Prerequisite: selected students with first-year standing in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.
- 407:005 HSLC Seminar 1 s.h.
- 407:007 Online at Iowa 1 s.h.
Web-based introduction to electronic tools and resources at The University of Iowa; web sites, e-mail, databases; how to research courses, register for classes, and review grades; computer security; virtual campus tour.
- 407:011 The Transfer Transition 2 s.h.
University of Iowa resources, career and major selection, identification of personal values, self-motivation, goal setting, study and test-taking skills; small sections with classroom discussion. Prerequisite: first-year transfer student standing.
- 407:015 Diversity Awareness: Discussion About Differences 1 s.h.
Multicultural and diversity awareness developed through group interaction, dialogues, and reflection on topics such as race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, and socioeconomic status.
- 407:020 Teamwork Practicum 1-3 s.h.
Participation on a University committee, completion of associated activities; effective team membership skills; how complex organizations function.

Intercollegiate Athletic Participation

Students who are members of University of Iowa intercollegiate athletics teams and are certified to participate in their sport may register for 408:021. Each section of the course represents a specific sports team; students register for the appropriate section. Registration requires approval from the director of athletic student services. Qualified students may repeat the course. Members of University of Iowa sport clubs are not eligible to enroll in 408:021.

Iowa Biosciences Advantage

Director: Sarah K. England (Molecular Physiology and Biophysics)

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/iba/>

Iowa Biosciences Advantage (IBA) is a highly competitive undergraduate research and academic enrichment program funded by the National Institutes of Health. The program identifies academically talented undergraduates who are members of underrepresented minorities and who aspire to careers in research, and gives them first-rate training that facilitates their entry into doctoral programs in biomedical, behavioral, and biophysical sciences.

Iowa Biosciences Advantage students have opportunities to work in research laboratories with faculty mentors during the course of their undergraduate careers. The program's faculty represents a broad range of disciplines in the basic and biomedical sciences. IBA students also benefit from specialized course work, career workshops, and academic advising for biomedical and bioscience careers.

Students selected for IBA must maintain good standing in academics and research. Good academic standing requires a g.p.a. of at least 3.00 and is evaluated at the end of each semester. Good research standing is determined by each student's research mentor.

Students work with their mentors throughout the academic year and summer. They present their research in August at the Annual IBA Scholar Research Symposium.

STUDENTS ACCEPTED FROM HIGH SCHOOL

Students admitted to IBA from high school spend their first year at The University of Iowa establishing good academic standing and conducting laboratory rotations.

During fall semester, IBA students enroll in a special section of 407:001 The College Transition (2 s.h., graded satisfactory/unsatisfactory), which covers topics such as defining college culture, discovering University resources, refining study skills, taking tests, and setting goals.

During spring semester, IBA students enroll in two courses. They take 168:041 IBA Student Development Seminar (1 s.h.), an extension of subject matter introduced in The College Transition. They also take a special section of 168:047 IBA Research in Biomedical Science (0 s.h.) and complete two research rotations. The rotations, which are set up by IBA staff, introduce students to laboratory research at the University.

At the end of the first year, each student is evaluated for admission to the IBA Scholar Program. Students selected as IBA scholars remain on campus for the eight-week summer session. They earn wages for laboratory work with their research mentors, live in the IBA Summer Learning Community, and participate in IBA events.

STUDENTS ACCEPTED FROM COLLEGE

Applications also are accepted from current University of Iowa undergraduates majoring in the sciences as well as students transferring to Iowa as sophomores or juniors. Students accepted to IBA during their first, second, or third year of college join the appropriate class of IBA scholars. During their first semester of participation, new undergraduates complete lab rotations and establish good academic standing. They also enroll in 168:041 IBA Student Development Seminar. Once students are matched with a research mentor, they earn wages for their laboratory work during summer and the academic year.

Admission

Students apply to Iowa Biosciences Advantage during their senior year of high school or once they are undergraduate students.

Applicants must:

- have a strong interest in pursuing a research career;

- have a qualifying academic major;

- be in good academic standing (grade-point average of at least 3.00);

- submit an IBA application, including short essays and a release for IBA to obtain the applicant's transcripts; and

- submit one letter of recommendation from a science or math instructor.

Admission requires an interview. Admission decisions are made throughout the year.

Faculty

Faculty members from the University's broad range of basic and biomedical science disciplines serve as teachers and mentors to IBA students. They represent many departments, including anatomy and cell biology, biochemistry, biological sciences, biomedical engineering, chemistry, integrative physiology, microbiology, molecular physiology and biophysics, neuroscience, and psychology.

Courses

168:039 Introduction to Laboratory Techniques 2 s.h.

Exercises that teach basic laboratory techniques through experimentation with biological materials; preparation for conducting research in the mentor's laboratory.

168:041 IBA Student Development Seminar 0-1 s.h.

Academic and professional development; presentations by faculty researchers, admissions representatives, or students in graduate bioscience programs; discussions about succeeding at the University; talks by professional educators on topics such as effective study skills.

168:047 IBA Research in Biomedical Science arr.

Registration in a section taught by the student's research mentor. Prerequisite: enrollment in IBA.

Iowa Lakeside Laboratory

Director: Chet Rzonca (University of Iowa)
University of Iowa coordinator: Diana Horton (Biological Sciences)

Iowa State University participating faculty: Bonnie S. Bowen (Ecology, Evolution, and Organismal Biology), Lee Burras (Agronomy), C. Arthur Croyle (Art and Design), Clay A. Pierce (Natural Resource Ecology and Management)

University of Iowa participating faculty: John F. Doershuk (Anthropology)

University of Northern Iowa participating faculty: Thomas Hockey (Earth Science), Michael J. Shott (Sociology, Anthropology, and Criminology), Daryl D. Smith (Native Roadside Vegetation Center)

Web site: <http://www.lakesidelab.org>

Iowa Lakeside Laboratory is a field station run cooperatively by the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Consortium, whose members include The University of Iowa, Iowa State University, the University of Northern Iowa, and Drake University. Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses can be taken for credit through all consortium member schools. Students should check with their advisors to determine whether Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses can be used to satisfy requirements of their academic majors or minors, or college or university general education requirements.

The laboratory was established in 1909 for the conservation and study of the rich flora and fauna of northwest Iowa, especially the numerous lakes, wetlands, and prairies of the Iowa Great Lakes region. The campus is located on approximately 140 acres of restored prairie, wetland, and gallery forest along the west shore of West Okoboji Lake. Lakeside's mission is to provide undergraduate and graduate students an opportunity for hands-on experience in a variety of natural and human environments through its field-oriented summer courses, and to provide research facilities and support for graduate students and faculty members working on research projects in northwestern Iowa.

Each summer Iowa Lakeside Laboratory offers students a unique educational experience—small, full-immersion, field-oriented courses in the natural sciences (archaeology, ecology, environmental science, evolution, geology, hydrology, soils, taxonomy). All courses meet all day Monday through Friday. The majority of courses last four weeks. Enrollment in most courses is limited to eight to ten students. Courses are taught at the undergraduate level (sophomore and junior) and the senior/graduate level. Students earn 1 s.h. for each week (40 hours) in class. One- and two-week courses also are available, including courses designed especially for teachers.

Weather permitting, students normally spend at least part of each day doing fieldwork, either as part of their class work or for individual or group projects. Because some courses are offered alternate summers, the current Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Bulletin or the University of Iowa's summer course offerings on ISIS (Iowa Student Information Services) should be consulted for the courses being offered in a particular summer session. The Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Bulletin also contains additional information about the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory and about each course being offered.

Research projects by undergraduates, graduate students, and faculty members can be completed either on the campus or at many nearby natural areas. Undergraduate and graduate students are strongly encouraged to do independent projects at Iowa Lakeside Laboratory, and graduate students are welcome to use Lakeside as a base for their thesis and dissertation research. Laboratory space and other facilities are available for long-term or short-term research projects.

Teaching and research facilities include eight laboratory buildings, a library, and a lecture hall. Living accommodations include cottages, motel-style units, and a large mess hall. All students are encouraged to stay at Lakeside while they are taking courses to derive full advantage of its educational, professional, and social life.

Registration

Students can enroll in Iowa Lakeside Laboratory courses only by submitting an Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Registration and Scholarship Form and the Lakeside housing form to the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Administrative Office. These forms are included in the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Bulletin and in The University of Iowa's online course schedule on ISIS. Information on registration and current courses is available in the bulletin and on the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory web site. The Iowa Lakeside

Laboratory Bulletin is available on the University of Iowa campus from the Department of Biological Sciences, the Department of Chemistry, and the Department of Geoscience.

Early registration is advisable. Because enrollment in Lakeside courses is limited, students should register before May 1 for the following summer session. Housing is limited at Lakeside. When students register for courses, they must either apply for housing or state that they plan to live off campus.

Financial Support

Iowa Lakeside Laboratory scholarships are available to undergraduates and graduate students. Scholarships cover room and board. Information about how to apply for Iowa Lakeside Laboratory scholarships is included in the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory Bulletin and on Lakeside's web site. Students also should consult the Office of Student Financial Aid for information about other scholarships, work-study, and loan programs.

The University of Iowa provides Thomas H. Macbride Scholarships in Natural Science for qualified graduate students attending Lakeside. The scholarships cover Iowa Lakeside Laboratory tuition costs. Application deadline is April 1.

Courses

- 00L:005 Flora of the Iowa Lakes Region 2 s.h.
 Overview of life sciences disciplines: ecology and evolutionary biology, molecular, cellular, and developmental biology; hands-on experience with one or more of these disciplines. Prerequisites: a biology course and high school enrollment.
- 00L:015 Introduction to the Life Sciences 1 s.h.
 Overview of life sciences disciplines: ecology and evolutionary biology, molecular, cellular, and developmental biology; hands-on experience with one or more of these disciplines. Prerequisites: a biology course and high school enrollment.
- 00L:031 Ecology 4 s.h.
 Introduction to the principles of ecology at the population, community, ecosystem levels; field studies of local lakes, wetlands, and prairies used to examine factors that control distributions, interactions, and roles of plants and animals in native ecosystems.
- 00L:035 Physical Geology 4 s.h.
 Landscape development as a product of geologic materials and processes; field studies of the earth's composition, glaciation, weathering, erosion, sedimentation. Offered summer sessions of even years.
- 00L:040 Archaeology 4 s.h.
 Nature of cultural and environmental evidence in archaeology, how such evidence is used to model past human behavior and land use; emphasis on Iowa prehistory; basic reconnaissance surveying, excavation techniques.
- 00L:043 Illustrating Nature—Sketching 2 s.h.
 Sketching plants, animals, terrain; visual communication, development of a personal style, integration of typographic and visual elements on a page.
- 00L:044 Illustrating Nature—Photography 2 s.h.
 Beginning/intermediate technique and composition in color photography of natural areas, their plants and animals.
- 00L:050 Undergraduate Internship 1-5 s.h.
 Placement with county conservation boards, camps, parks, and other agencies for experience as interpreters, rangers, technicians. Prerequisites: sophomore standing and consent of instructor.
- 00L:064 Biology of Aquatic Plants 4 s.h.
 Field-oriented introduction to the taxonomy and ecology of aquatic plants in lakes, wetlands, rivers; individual or group projects. Offered summer sessions of odd years.
- 00L:100 Techniques for Biology Teaching 1-2 s.h.
 Development and implementation of laboratory exercises suitable for inclusion in elementary, middle, high school, and community college biology and environmental courses; exercises built around common organisms and ecosystems in Iowa; animal biology, plant biology, fungi and lichens, aquatic ecology, prairie ecology, wetland ecology, limnology, animal behavior, insect ecology, biology of invertebrates, noninvasive use of living organisms, Project WET; field trips.
- 00L:101 Iowa Natural History 4 s.h.
 Biological diversity and its causes examined through lectures and field trips to native lake, marsh, forest, and prairie habitats; measuring the environment, sampling and identifying organisms, experimenting with the ecosystem, understanding species interactions, appreciating influences of past and present climates and geological events on natural ecosystems of the region. Prerequisite: one biological sciences course.
- 00L:102 Plant-Animal Interactions 4 s.h.
 Introduction to ecology and co-evolution of plants and animals; emphasis on dispersal, pollination, plant-herbivore interactions; field and laboratory work, reading, discussion. Prerequisite: one biological science course.
- 00L:103 Aquatic Ecology 4 s.h.
 Analysis of aquatic ecosystems; emphasis on basic ecological principles; ecological theories tested in the field; identification of common plants and animals. Prerequisites: ecology, chemistry, and physics courses.
- 00L:105 Plant Taxonomy 4 s.h.
 Principles of classification and evolution of vascular plants; taxonomic tools and collection techniques; use of keys; field and laboratory studies emphasizing identification of local flowering plants, recognition of major plant families.
- 00L:109 Freshwater Algae 4 s.h.
 Structure and taxonomy of freshwater algae based on field material collected; emphasis on genus-level identifications; habitat visits to lakes, fens, streams, rivers; algal ecology.
- 00L:113 Undergraduate Independent Study 1-4 s.h.
 Prerequisites: junior or senior standing and consent of instructor.
- 00L:115 Field Mycology 4 s.h.
 Identification and classification of the common fungi; techniques for identification, preservation, and culture practiced with members of the various fungi groups.
- 00L:117 Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms 4 s.h.
 Field and laboratory study of freshwater diatoms; techniques in collection, preparation, and identification of diatom samples; study of environmental factors affecting growth, distribution, taxonomic characters; project design and execution, including construction of reference and voucher collections; data organization and analysis.
- 00L:119 Evolution 4 s.h.
 Mechanisms and patterns in microevolution, macroevolution; field exercises emphasizing studies of natural selection, adaptation, genetic variation, and population genetics of local plant, animal populations.

- 00L:120 Freshwater Invertebrates 4 s.h.
Field-oriented introduction to identification, life history, and ecology of common, free-living freshwater invertebrates of north-temperate lakes, rivers, wetlands; emphasis on invertebrates' role in aquatic food chains and litter processing. Prerequisite: an ecology course.
- 00L:121 Plant Ecology 4 s.h.
Principles of plant population, community, and ecosystem ecology illustrated through studies of native vegetation in local prairies, wetlands, forests; group or individual projects.
- 00L:122 Prairie Ecology 4 s.h.
Basic patterns, underlying physical and biotic causes of regional and local distributions of North American prairie plants and animals; field and laboratory analysis and projects. Prerequisite: familiarity with basic principles of biological sciences and ecology.
- 00L:124 Wetland Ecology 4 s.h.
Ecology, classification, creation, restoration, and management of wetlands; field studies on composition, structure, and function of local natural wetlands, restored prairie pothole wetlands; individual or group projects. Prerequisite: 00L:031.
- 00L:126 Ornithology 4 s.h.
Biology, ecology, and behavior of birds; emphasis on field studies of local avifauna; group projects with focus on techniques of population analysis and methodology for population studies.
- 00L:127 Introduction to Insect Ecology 4 s.h.
Insects; their diversity and life history; emphasis on ecology and behavior; field, laboratory study. Offered summer sessions of odd years.
- 00L:128 Fish Ecology 4 s.h.
Basic principles of fish interaction with biotic and abiotic environments; field methods, taxonomy, and biology of fish with emphasis on the fish fauna of northwestern Iowa.
- 00L:129 Vertebrate Ecology and Evolution 4 s.h.
Field and laboratory study of representative vertebrates of northwestern Iowa; observations and experimentation emphasize ecological histories by integrating concepts of functional morphology, behavioral ecology, evolutionary biology.
- 00L:130 Natural History Workshop 1-2 s.h.
A specific aspect of the upper Midwest's natural history, or techniques for studying natural history; amphibians and reptiles, birds and birding, nature photography, mushrooms and other fungi, Iowa's trees and forests, fish biology, prairies, common algae, common insects, aquatic plants, life in rivers, life in lakes, mosses and liverworts, natural history of Iowa Great Lakes region, field archaeology, scuba diving, astronomy, nature sketching; five-day, nontechnical introductions.
- 00L:141 Statistical Methods for Field Biologists 4 s.h.
Design and implementation of ecological and environmental field studies and statistical analyses; interpretation, presentation of field data; fundamentals of experimental design, hypotheses testing with continuous and discrete data, simple and multilinear regression and correlation, introduction of analysis of variance, data presentation; individual and/or group projects to collect field data.
- 00L:142 Watershed Hydrology and Surficial Processes 4 s.h.
Effects of geomorphology, soils, and land use on transport of water and materials (nutrients, contaminants) in watersheds; fieldwork emphasizing investigations of the Iowa Great Lakes watershed. Prerequisites: four courses in physical or biological sciences or engineering.
- 00L:144 Ecosystems of North America 2-4 s.h.
Extended field trip for study of an ecosystem type (e.g., prairie, coastal wetland, forest, alpine, coral reef) or the ecosystems of a specific region (e.g., Rocky Mountains, Gulf Coast, Appalachian Mountains, deserts of the Southwest, Central America); pre-trip orientation, post-trip review and synthesis. Field trip fee. Prerequisites: an ecology course and consent of instructor.
- 00L:145 Introduction to Environmental Planning 4 s.h.
Environmental planning theories and methods, emphasis on environmental planning using geographic information system (GIS) modeling approaches and public participation in the planning process; individual or group environmental planning projects. Offered summer sessions of even years. Recommended: basic familiarity with ArcView and database programs.
- 00L:150 Watershed Modeling and GIS 4 s.h.
Geographic information system (GIS) techniques for watershed hydrology and water quality modeling, water resource management; approaches to watershed analysis, modeling, management; analytical tools for modeling watershed hydrology, water quality; case studies in modeling and managing rural and urban watersheds.
- 00L:151 Analysis of Environmental Data 2 s.h.
Theory and application of statistical techniques for analysis of ecological and paleoecological data.
- 00L:156 Advanced Field Ornithology 2 s.h.
Field study of birds of the upper Midwest; extended field trip to Minnesota, Wisconsin; individual or group project. Field trip fee. Corequisite: 00L:126.
- 00L:160 Restoration Ecology 4 s.h.
Ecological principles for restoration of native ecosystems; establishment (site preparation, selection of seed mixes, planting techniques) and management (fire, mowing, weed control) of native vegetation; evaluation of restorations; emphasis on prairie restoration, wetland vegetation. Prerequisite: an ecology course.
- 00L:161 Introduction to GIS 4 s.h.
Descriptive and predictive geographic information system (GIS) modeling techniques, spatial statistics, map algebra; application of GIS modeling techniques to environmental planning and resource management.
- 00L:163 Conservation Biology 4 s.h.
Population- and community-level examination of factors influencing viability of plant and animal populations from demographic and genetic perspectives; assessment of biodiversity; design, management of preserves. Offered summer sessions of odd years. Prerequisite: 00L:031.
- 00L:165 Behavioral Ecology 4 s.h.
Ecological and evolutionary theories of animal behavior examined through field studies of animal coloniality, courtship, territoriality, predator defense, habitat selection, foraging, mating systems, parental care. Offered summer sessions of even years. Prerequisites: two biological sciences courses.
- 00L:166 Amphibians and Reptiles 4 s.h.
Ecology, behavior, and conservation biology of amphibians and reptiles, with focus on their anatomy, morphology; temperature and water regulation, locomotion, life history, reproduction, population and community ecology, conservation. Offered summer sessions of even years. Prerequisites: two biological sciences courses.
- 00L:170 Vegetation Restoration and Management 4 s.h.
Theoretical and practical considerations for development and implementation of vegetation management plans; hands-on experience with varied techniques for restoring and managing natural vegetation, including mowing, burning, grazing, thinning, mechanical and chemical weeding, planting techniques. Prerequisite: an ecology course.
- 00L:175 Soil Genesis and Landscape Relationships 4 s.h.
Relationships between soil formation, geomorphology, environment; soil description, classification, geography, mapping, interpretation for land use. Offered summer sessions of even years. Prerequisite: 00L:142.
- 00L:199 Undergraduate Research 1-4 s.h.
Prerequisites: junior or senior standing and consent of instructor.

00L:213 Graduate Independent Study 1-4 s.h.

Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

00L:217 Ecology and Systematics of Diatoms 4 s.h.

00L:240 Natural History Workshop 1-3 s.h.

An aspect of the upper Midwest's natural history, or techniques for studying natural history. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

00L:250 Graduate Internship 1-5 s.h.

Experience as interpreters, rangers, technicians, and teachers through placement with county conservation boards, camps, parks, schools, other agencies. Prerequisite: consent of instructor.

00L:299 Research 1-4 s.h.

Lifetime Leisure Skills

Director: Wayne Fett

Web site: <http://www.recserv.uiowa.edu/programs/TTE/earth.htm>

Lifetime Leisure Skills courses are open to University of Iowa undergraduate and graduate students. Undergraduates in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may count credit earned in Lifetime Leisure Skills toward the 120 s.h. required for a bachelor's degree. Students should consult with their academic advisors.

Military Science

Head: LTC Randall Millers

Professor: LTC Randall Millers

Assistant professors: MAJ Dave Pinter, LTC Tony Wolf, CPT Christopher Barker

Web site: <http://armyrotc.com/edu/univia/index.htm>

The Military Science Program administers Iowa Army ROTC. It gives students who wish to serve on active or reserve status in the U.S. Army the opportunity to earn commissions as army officers. It also administers merit scholarships from the United States government to qualified students.

Although the Military Science Program does not offer degrees, its courses provide education in the military's role and instruction in leadership and management. The program's courses are an essential part of the Iowa ROTC program, which competes annually in national leadership assessments.

Military Science courses are open to all students. Course credit that counts toward graduation varies by college. Students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences may count up to 20 s.h. toward graduation.

Basic Course

The ROTC basic course is designed primarily for first- and second-year students. It provides the fundamentals of leadership and management and introduces the roles of the military as influenced by national and foreign policy. Students incur no obligation to the military for participation in the basic course.

The following courses satisfy the basic course requirement. Some of these courses are prerequisites to others, so students must be careful to take courses in the correct order. Courses 023:101 and 023:102 are prerequisite to 023:103; courses 023:101, 023:102, and 023:103 are prerequisite to 023:104.

|--|--------|
| 023:101 Leadership and Personal Development MSL101 | 1 s.h. |
| 023:102 Introduction to Tactical Leadership MSL102 | 1 s.h. |
| 023:103 Innovative Team Leadership MSL201 | 2 s.h. |
| 023:104 Foundations of Tactical Leadership MSL202 | 2 s.h. |

The basic course requirements may be taken over a one- or two-year period or during a four-week paid summer camp, the Leader's Training Course (LTC), at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Students with prior military training normally are exempt from the basic course requirements.

Advanced Course

The ROTC advanced course is open to any student who meets the prerequisites, but is designed primarily for cadets who wish to pursue a commission as a lieutenant in the U.S. Army upon graduation. It is open to both undergraduate and graduate students. Most cadets in the advanced course incur an obligation to the military that can be satisfied in the Active Army, Army Reserve, or Army National Guard.

To enter the advanced course, students must satisfy the basic course requirements, earn at least 54 s.h., and have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 2.00. In order to become U.S. Army officers, cadets must complete the Leadership Development and Assessment course (LDAC), a five-week session held at Fort Lewis, Washington. Cadets normally attend LDAC during the summer between their third and fourth years. With the military science professor's permission, cadets may delay LDAC until the summer after their final ROTC class.

A tax-free monthly stipend is provided to cadets who enter a contractual agreement with ROTC to serve in the armed forces. Additional financial assistance may be provided through scholarships.

The following courses are the academic requirements for completion of the advanced course. Some of these courses have prerequisites and corequisites, so students must be careful to take courses in the correct order. Prerequisites and corequisites for each course are listed with course descriptions; see "Courses" at the end of this section.

023:108 Leadership in a Complex World
MSL402 3 s.h.

Additional Course Work

Cadets whose aim is a commission must satisfy a Professional Military Education (PME) requirement. They must complete at least one course in military history from the following list. This course may be the same as one used to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program. Cadets may use other courses to meet the requirement, with the military science professor's approval.

- 016:011 Issues in Human History: The Vietnam War in Historical Perspective 3 s.h.
- 016:014 Issues in Human History: Europe's Expansion Overseas 3 s.h.
- 16A:153 U.S.A. in a World at War 1931-1945 3 s.h.
- 16A:162 American Revolutionary Period 1740-1789 3 s.h.
- 16A:164 Civil War and Reconstruction 3 s.h.
- 16A:166 The Progressive Era in America 3 s.h.
- 16A:168 The Contemporary U.S. 1940-Present 3 s.h.

Financial Aid

Military Science offers two-, three-, and four-year ROTC scholarships for students who enter the ROTC program. These scholarships pay tuition at The University of Iowa, an allotment for books and supplies each semester, most mandatory educational fees, and a tax-free monthly stipend during the academic year. Scholarships also are available for nursing students who wish to become Army nurses.

Courses

Museum Studies

Director: Pamela Trimpe

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in Museum Studies

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/museumstudies/>

The University of Iowa has offered courses in museum studies continuously since 1910. Museum Studies Program students have become directors, curators, educators, and exhibit specialists in museums throughout the country. University College provides administrative and program support for museum studies. Both graduate and undergraduate students may take courses offered by the Museum Studies Program; the Certificate in Museum Studies is offered for undergraduate students.

A major in one of the natural sciences (e.g., biological sciences or geoscience), anthropology, science education, art history, American studies, or history is recommended for students preparing for museum careers; see the appropriate department sections (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences) in the Catalog. Undergraduate students may add the museum studies certificate to any of these majors or use the interdepartmental studies major (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences) to design their own plan of study by coordinating course work relevant to their academic concentration areas and professional interests.

Courses offered by the Museum Studies Program provide an introduction to fundamental museological subjects, including background in the history, organization, function, and management of museums as well as experience in exhibition planning and design, collection management, and education outreach development.

Museum studies courses are of value not only to students intending to pursue careers in museums but also to those with related interests in the arts, sciences, or humanities. Museum studies is useful in many career areas, including archaeology, anthropology, history, American studies, communication studies, elementary and secondary education, historic preservation, library science, recreation and leisure, art history and studio art, and science education.

Certificate

The Certificate in Museum Studies requires a minimum of 18 s.h., including 15 s.h. of foundation course work and an internship (3 s.h.).

All students take 024:102 Introduction to Museology (3 s.h.), which provides a historical overview of museum development and function and introduces students to issues such as museum governance and financing, ethics and law, collection management, exhibition and educational programming, interpretation, and audience research. Ideally, this is the first course students take in the certificate program.

Students select three courses (minimum of 9 s.h.), typically one from each of three of the following categories, and one additional course (minimum of 3 s.h.) from any of the categories.

Museum administration and management
History, theory, and culture
Exhibition development and public education
Collection management and care

After completing the 15 s.h. of foundation course work described above, students complete an internship (minimum of 3 s.h.). The Museum Studies Program director works closely with students and affiliated faculty members to ensure that internships provide students with the instruction and experience they need.

The Museum Studies Program web site lists courses that count toward the certificate. Students also may request permission to use courses not on the program's list, providing the content of the course and the student's work in the course fits into one of the program's defined areas.

Courses applied toward the museum studies certificate also may be used to complete the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program or requirements for a major or minor. Students may count a maximum of 6 s.h. of course work completed for another major, certificate, or minor toward the requirements of the Certificate in Museum Studies.

Students interested in the museum studies certificate are encouraged to meet with the Museum Studies Program director.

Museum Facilities

The University of Iowa has several excellent museum facilities. The Museum of Natural History, founded in 1858, is the oldest university museum west of the Mississippi River. It houses exhibits on North American and Iowa geology, biological sciences, and Native American cultures.

The University of Iowa Museum of Art houses significant collections of more than 12,000 objects and several outstanding collections, including African and pre-Columbian art, prints, and paintings from the 19th and 20th centuries.

Old Capitol housed Iowa's territorial and state government offices from 1842 until 1857. A National Historic Landmark, the building now is Old Capitol Museum, dedicated to early Iowa and American history.

All three campus museums present public programs and events.

Students can gain first-hand experience through supervised internships. They also can learn from a number of smaller collections that are available on campus and in the Iowa City area.

Nonprofit Management

Coordinator: Lon Moeller

Undergraduate nondegree program: Certificate in Nonprofit Management

Nonprofit organizations play vital roles in our communities and contribute to our quality of life. Nonprofit organizations have unique management, funding, and finance issues that require specialized training. The Certificate in Nonprofit Management is designed to help staff members, board members, and volunteers develop the business and leadership skills necessary for building a successful nonprofit organization. The program provides a balance of academic principles and real-world experience as well as a fundamental understanding of how nonprofit organizations participate in building communities.

Certificate courses cover a wide range of topics and issues, such as community and government partnerships, organizational leadership, planning, human resources, financial accountability, grant writing, and web site creation and maintenance.

Courses are offered primarily on the World Wide Web.

The certificate is available to undergraduate students. Bachelor of Applied Studies and Bachelor of Liberal Studies students may incorporate certificate courses into their degree programs.

The program is presented by the Center for Credit Programs and the Larned A. Waterman Iowa Nonprofit Resource Center, in collaboration with University College.

Certificate

The Certificate in Nonprofit Management requires 17-18 s.h. Students must complete the following course work. They should take 06J:147, 06J:148, and 06T:120 before enrolling in the remaining four courses.

Research Experiences for Undergraduates in Microbiology

Web site: <http://www.medicine.uiowa.edu/microbiology/educational/summer07.htm>

The Department of Microbiology offers 403:030 Undergraduate Research Fellowship Program, a nine-week summer program for qualified undergraduate students who are studying microbiology or other biological sciences and are interested in pursuing careers in science. Participants conduct research on a project they select, under the direct supervision of a faculty member.

Each participant receives a stipend to pay for housing and food.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents who have completed their sophomore or junior year in a bachelor's degree program in the biological sciences. Applications should include a completed application form and two letters of recommendation. Deadline to apply is mid-February for the following summer.

Visit the program's web site or contact the Department of Microbiology, Carver College of Medicine, for more information.

Summer Medical Scientist Training Program

Web site: <http://www.medicine.uiowa.edu/mstp/sumr>

Courses

405:041 Summer Undergraduate MSTP Research 0 s.h.

The Summer Medical Scientist Training Program (MSTP) is an intensive eight-week experience for undergraduates interested in pursuing combined M.D./Ph.D. training. Participants gain experience in research laboratories and exposure to clinical medicine and medically relevant research in preparation for careers as physician-scientists.

Students conduct research in the laboratory of a biomedical sciences faculty member, shadow physician-scientists in clinical settings, participate in career development seminars, and attend a weekly seminar series focusing on the intersection of science and medicine.

Participants receive a stipend for the program and live on campus in University housing.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents who have completed their sophomore or junior year in a bachelor's degree program in the biological or physical sciences. Applicants should submit an application form (available on the program's web site); an official college transcript; and two letters of recommendation. Application deadline is early February for the following summer.

Contact the Medical Scientist Training Program, Carver College of Medicine, for more information.

University Housing

Assistant director: Kathleen A. Fitzgerald
Web site: <http://housing.uiowa.edu/>

University Housing courses are designed to help students involved in the resident assistant (RA) program become effective RAs. Students learn how to establish healthy student communities in the residence halls, how to confront crises and emergencies, and how to develop leadership skills. Enrollment is open only to students who have been selected to serve as resident assistants.

Courses

- 415:001 Issues in College Residence Halls I 1 s.h.
Development of knowledge and skills required for work as a resident assistant; creating community, handling crises and emergencies; leadership.
- 415:002 Issues in College Residence Halls II 1 s.h.
Continuation of 415:001.
- 415:003 Issues in College Residence Halls 2 s.h.
Content of 415:001 and 415:002 in one semester: development of knowledge and skills required for work as a resident assistant; creating community, handling crises and emergencies; leadership.

University Libraries

Coordinator: Kathy Magarrell

Web site: <http://www.lib.uiowa.edu>

University Libraries offers an activity-based course that develops understanding of how library resources can be used to support individual courses of study. Designed primarily for sophomores and juniors, the course introduces students to the basic research process, research conventions in a specific field, and how to integrate information skills and concepts to accomplish course goals.

Subject-specialist librarians use lectures, in-class activities and assignments, and class discussion to present the course material.

Courses

417:001 Library Research in Context 1 s.h.

Academic research, effective use of the library and its resources, basic research methods, process of scholarly communication; content keyed to a discipline-specific course; research conventions of the discipline; students apply concepts and processes to their research projects.

University of Iowa Honors Program

Director: John S. Nelson

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~honors>

The University of Iowa Honors Program enriches the intellectual and personal lives of outstanding University of Iowa undergraduates in all colleges and majors. It provides special academic opportunities, extracurricular programs, and social events, many held in the award-winning Blank Honors Center and the University Honors House.

Honors Program staff members help honors students create their own honors curricula to explore interests inside and outside the classroom. Honors students enjoy course options for team and independent learning-by-doing in research, writing, teaching, leadership, and service. They meet with some of the University's best teachers in small seminars designed especially for first- and second-year students and continue to work closely with excellent professors and other honors students in a variety of courses. Extracurricular activities in foreign relations, the arts, volunteering, and other areas give honors students practical experience and connections beyond the classroom. Above all, the Honors Program engages students in intellectual communities where they explore frontiers of knowledge with many of the most interesting people on campus.

The University of Iowa Honors Program admits students directly and automatically from high school, based on high school rank and ACT or SAT score. National Merit Scholars, Presidential Scholars, Old Gold Scholars, National Achievement Scholars, and National Academy of Arts, Sciences, and Engineering students are admitted automatically, as are other students who show great academic promise for college learning and further achievement.

Entering students who are not admitted automatically may become members through a process that requires a high school transcript, a letter of recommendation from a teacher, and a personal letter describing how the student would gain from Honors Program membership.

Entering transfer students must have a cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.50 and must have earned at least 24 s.h. of college credit in order to be admitted to the University of Iowa Honors Program. Transfer students with less than 24 s.h. of college credit are admitted to the program on the same basis as are students who enter the University directly from high school.

Membership in the Honors Program also is open to undergraduate students enrolled in the Tippie College of Business and the Colleges of Education, Engineering, Liberal Arts and Sciences, and Nursing. Honors Program students must maintain a University of Iowa cumulative g.p.a. of at least 3.33 (B-plus) in order to remain in the program. The Honors Program automatically admits current students if they earn a g.p.a. of at least 3.33 before completing 72 s.h. of course work.

For more information on honors membership requirements, see the Honors Program web site.

Academic Opportunities

The University of Iowa Honors Program recognizes that students have different educational needs and goals. For this reason, the program offers a curriculum that is flexible, broad, and challenging. Honors course options begin as early as the first semester and continue through the last semester of the senior year. The options include a diverse set of academic courses as well as opportunities to work directly with faculty members as research assistants, teaching interns, and writing fellows while earning credit toward graduation.

Students are free to design curricula that best suit their backgrounds and interests. They may select honors options to meet the requirements of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences General Education Program, their major departments, or elective credit. The Academic Advising Center, departmental honors advisors, and Honors Program staff members are all available to help students develop appropriate study plans.

First-year honors seminars are a great way to begin. Choices continue with a variety of honors seminars that introduce students to exciting topics in the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences. Honors seminars are small and highly interactive, and they cover new topics each semester. In addition to seminars, individual departments offer a wide range of courses for honors credit, from laboratory and discussion sections of introductory courses to specialized studies in students' varied disciplines. Finally, students can request honors designation for any regular University of Iowa course. Honors designation allows students to delve more deeply into a topic, under the instructor's guidance, by developing a study plan that goes beyond the course's normal requirements.

Honors Commendation

The Honors Program and the University president join in celebrating students who complete at least 12 s.h. of honors course work with a grade of B or higher in each graded course before completing their second year or their first 59 s.h. (whichever comes last). Students receive a certificate of congratulation signed by the Honors Program director and the University president.

Honors in the Major

Most majors offer upper-level honors courses, honors seminars, independent research, or opportunities to pursue an original honors thesis or senior project under the guidance of a faculty member. Each college and department determines its own requirements for graduation with honors, and faculty members in each department serve as honors advisors.

After students declare a major in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences or enter the Tippie College of Business or the Colleges of Education, Engineering, or Nursing, they should speak with their collegiate or departmental honors advisors about their academic programs. Students who graduate with honors in their majors receive special recognition during commencement, and their permanent academic records note their achievements.

Extracurricular Programs

The University of Iowa Honors Program provides honors students with a rich variety of activities outside the classroom. Participation is not required, but many honors students find extracurricular programming a good way to meet people, get involved, and learn more about the world around them.

The Arts Program sends groups of honors students to attend music, dance, and theater events at the University and in the community. Students have opportunities to interact with artists, faculty members, and other honors students through related discussions, lectures, and visits.

The Iowa City Foreign Relations Council hosts luncheon dialogues on relevant international issues. Past speakers include award-winning journalists, Nobel Peace Prize laureates, seasoned diplomats, prominent politicians, and policy analysts. Honors students gain more textured understandings of world affairs by listening to and talking with these expert speakers.

The Volunteer Program provides students with service opportunities at varied organizations in eastern Iowa. Honors students learn more about their communities and related needs, often continuing to volunteer on their own.

The Old Gold and Presidential Scholars Programs emphasize community, cultural, and academic involvement while offering unique team-building components. As part of the programs, scholars may participate in cook-outs, Frisbee games, arts events, canoeing adventures, pizza parties, dinners with faculty members, mentoring programs, and volunteer projects.

The newsletter Honorable Mention is written, edited, and published four times a year by honors students. It informs, educates, and entertains honors students, their families, and University staff and faculty.

The honors web site and electronic mailing list offer resources for honors students. These also tell about past, present, and future honors activities, scholarships, courses, and other opportunities.

The Honors Program advises five major national and international honor societies: Phi Eta Sigma, National Society of Collegiate Scholars, Golden Key, Mortar Board, and Omicron Delta Kappa. The societies provide select students with opportunities to lead, serve their communities, and cultivate academic excellence.

For more information about honors extracurricular programs, see Extracurriculars on the Honors Program web site.

Scholarship Advising

The Honors Program helps students apply for many scholarships, awards, and prizes. The program offers its own scholarships of $1,000 to $2,500 to selected continuing honors students in all colleges. It also provides research stipends for students completing honors projects and travel grants for those who present work at conferences. These awards are made possible in part by a bequest from Professor Rhodes Dunlap, the program's founder and director for more than 20 years. Announcements about honors scholarships and other awards appear in the Honors Program newsletter and electronic mailing list. Honors Program scholarships are not available to incoming first-year or transfer students.

Honors students are awarded national and international scholarships each year. The program provides advising and nominations for Rhodes, Marshall, Gates Cambridge, Truman, Udall, Goldwater, and Jack Kent Cooke Scholarships.

Blank Honors Center

The Honors Program makes its home in the Blank Honors Center, a new facility for fostering community among honors students. The Blank Honors Center offers extended hours, social areas, a kitchenette, quiet study areas, classrooms, a computer lab with 24 workstations, office space for honor societies, honors advising for students, and offices for Honors Program staff. The center also has rooms for meetings, events, presentations, and conversation. Honors staff members are always on hand to help students.

University Honors House

The University Honors House fills Daum Residence Hall and is linked to the Blank Honors Center by a skywalk. This honors learning community sponsors cultural, academic, and social events for honors students living in Daum Hall. It also organizes group outings to arts events, workshops on scholarship and research opportunities, volunteer activities, and dinners with faculty members, and provides a convenient place for residents to socialize and study with each other.

The University Honors House particularly welcomes first-year and transfer students. To learn more about the University Honors House, see the Honors Program web site.

Courses

Honors courses are specifically for honors students.

143:030 Honors First-Year Seminar 1 s.h.
 Small discussion classes taught by faculty members on special topics; may include outside activities (e.g., films, lectures, performances, readings, visits to research facilities, field trips).
 Prerequisite: first- or second-semester standing.

143:040 Honors Studies arr.
 Independent studies arranged with faculty members who certify satisfactory completion of study plans and performance for topics not covered by other UI courses.

143:042 Honors Service Learning arr.
 Service learning projects arranged with faculty members who certify satisfactory completion of study plans and service.

143:050 Honors Seminar in Humanities 3 s.h.
 Small-class learning with a faculty member on humanities topics.
 GE: humanities.

143:060 Honors Seminar in Social Sciences 3 s.h.
 Small-class learning with a faculty member on social science topics. GE: social sciences.

143:070 Honors Seminar in Natural Sciences 3 s.h.

143:090 Honors Research Colloquium 1 s.h.
 Small-class research with faculty members; advanced readings.

143:100 Honors Research Practicum 1-3 s.h.
 Individual research performed in conjunction with a faculty member's research.

 Prerequisite: junior or senior honors standing.

VIGRE Heartland REU

Director: Jonathan Simon (Mathematics)

Web site: <http://www.math.uiowa.edu/VIGRE/index.html>

The University of Iowa Department of Mathematics offers a summer program of research experience for undergraduates. VIGRE Heartland REU is designed for well-prepared students who have completed two years of college, but younger or more advanced students also may be admitted. Preference is given to students from Heartland Mathematics Partnership schools.

The eight-week program begins with a choice of introductory workshops followed by work in a small research group with a faculty member. Students choose one workshop from linear algebra, graph theory, and orthogonal polynomials. The subsequent research projects are connected to background developed in the workshops.

Students participate in hands-on introduction to mathematical writing in LaTeX; experience using computer systems such as Maple, Mathematica, or MatLab; and talks and panels about subsequent research opportunities, graduate school, the Graduate Record Examination, and career opportunities. The program also offers cultural and social activities.

Instruction is provided by Department of Mathematics faculty members, Heartland Mathematics Partnership instructors, VIGRE trainees, and staff members from the University's Alliances for Graduate Education and the Professoriate Summer Program.

VIGRE Heartland REU is supported by the National Science Foundation program Vertical Integration of Research and Education in the Mathematical Sciences. For more information visit the VIGRE Heartland REU web site.

The following programs are presented by the Connie Belin and Jacqueline N. Blank International Center for Gifted Education and Talent Development. For more information about the center's programs, contact the Belin-Blank Center or visit the center's web site.

Blank Summer Institute

The Blank Summer Institute for the Arts & Sciences is a two-week residential summer program for gifted Iowa students in grades 7 and 8. The institute provides exceptionally talented students with an intensive and advanced educational experience designed to enhance their intellectual and social growth. The plan of study complements the regular school curriculum and consists of eight courses that cover advanced science, math problem solving, social sciences, creative writing, invention and innovation, visual arts, performing arts, and global and cultural studies.

Cultural and recreational activities are part of the program, and participants have access to the University of Iowa Libraries, computer facilities, and study areas. Housing and meals are provided at University residence halls.

To be eligible for the institute, students must have finished grade 7 or 8 and must be nominated by their schools. Financial support is available.

International Language & Culture Institute

The International Language & Culture Institute is a one-week residential summer program for gifted students in grades 9 through 11. The institute is a collaborative program of the University of Iowa's International Programs and the Belin-Blank Center. It provides talented students with an intensive, advanced educational experience designed to enhance their intellectual and social growth.

Iowa Governor's Institute

The Iowa Governor's Institute for the Gifted and Talented is a two-week residential summer program that provides exceptionally talented students with an intensive and advanced educational experience designed to enhance their intellectual and social growth. Participants enroll in one course, Leadership for Students Who Want to Make a Difference.

In addition to academic study, participants enjoy a variety of cultural and recreational activities. They also have access to the University of Iowa Libraries, computer facilities, and study areas. Housing and meals are provided at University residence halls.

To be eligible for the institute, students must be from Iowa and must have finished grade 7 or 8. A nomination packet is required, and financial support is available.

Iowa Talent Project

The Belin-Blank Center and the Des Moines School District collaborate in the Iowa Talent Project (ITP) to identify underrepresented talented and gifted students who are taking upper-level or advanced courses as they progress through secondary school. The project's goal is to help students recognize their potential and take advantage of rigorous courses of study that challenge them.

Student participants attend a residential summer program at The University of Iowa, which focuses on college preparation. They also enjoy recreational and cultural experiences while they are on campus. The cost of attending the session is covered by the University. Iowa Talent Project students also complete courses at the Des Moines Central Academy and take at least three AP exams.

Upon finishing high school, successful ITP students are admitted to The University of Iowa and are given financial aid based on need and merit. Once enrolled at the University, students must maintain a designated grade-point average while taking approved courses as full-time students and must meet other specified requirements.

Junior Scholars Academy

Students in grade 6, 7, or 8 may attend the Junior Scholars Academy (JSA), a one-week summer residential academic program at The University of Iowa for Belin-Blank Center students. JSA consists of 10 classes over two one-week sessions. Students take a single advanced course for the entire week and may apply for one or two sessions.

National Scholars Academy

Students in grade 9, 10, or 11 may attend the National Scholars Academy (NSA), a one-week summer residential academic program at The University of Iowa for Belin-Blank Center students. NSA consists of eight classes over two one-week sessions. Students take a single advanced course for the entire week and may apply for one or two sessions.

Visual Arts Institute

The Visual Arts Institute is a one-week residential summer program for artistically talented students in grades 9 through 11. The institute consists of two separate sessions: one in two-dimensional art (e.g., painting, drawing) and one in three-dimensional art (e.g., sculpture, ceramics).

The Visual Arts Institute provides talented artists with an intensive and advanced studio experience designed to enhance their creative and artistic growth. Each student receives a partial scholarship to cover the majority of the institute's cost.

Iowa Young Writers' Studio

Director: Stephen Lovely

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/youngwriters>

Courses

406:001 Iowa Young Writers' Studio

0 s.h.

The Iowa Young Writers' Studio is a two-week summer residential program for high school students who love to write. Students work with experienced writing teachers at the University and build a community of peers.

The studio offers three courses of study: poetry, fiction, and creative writing (a mix of poetry, fiction, and creative nonfiction). Each course consists of a seminar and a workshop. In seminars, students read literature by established writers. In workshops they share their own writing, get feedback from their classmates and teacher, and discuss issues of narrative and form.

The studio offers two 2-week sessions: one in June and one in July.

Young writers who have completed grade 10, 11, or 12 are eligible to attend the studio.

Application materials include an application form, a creative writing sample, a statement of purpose, a high school transcript, and a letter of recommendation from an English teacher or another instructor familiar with the applicant's writing. For complete application information, contact the Iowa Young Writers' Studio or visit its web site.

Opportunity at Iowa Summer Programs

Director: Marcella David

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~provost/oi/index.html>

Opportunity at Iowa offers the following programs for precollege students.

Iowa First Nations

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~provost/oi/ifn>

The Iowa First Nations Comprehensive Enrichment Program was established to encourage Native Americans of secondary school age to aim for professional careers in the sciences, engineering, and related fields. The Iowa First Nations Program brings Native American students entering grade 10 or 11 to The University of Iowa for a two-week residential summer program that focuses on the biological sciences and the relationship between science and Native American cultures. In addition to course work, students participate in varied social and recreational activities. For more information about Iowa First Nations, contact the Opportunity at Iowa Program.

Life Science Summer Program

Web site: <http://www.uiowa.edu/~provost/oi/lssp>

The Life Science Summer Program (LSSP) provides students who are entering grade 9 or 10 the opportunity for hands-on laboratory training and classroom instruction covering a wide range of topics in developmental biology. The curriculum also incorporates health issues and current events. For more information, contact the Opportunity at Iowa Program.

Courses

401:018 Upward Bound Project

0 s.h.

University of Iowa Upward Bound, a division of Support Service Programs, hosts a summer academic program for eligible high school students from five southeast Iowa communities. Upward Bound students who participate in the summer program reside on the University campus for six weeks. They take mathematics, science, language arts, and foreign language courses and participate in extracurricular activities and field trips. Bridge students (those who have graduated from high school) enroll in University course work for the eight-week summer session.

To be admitted to University of Iowa Upward Bound, students must:

- reside in the target area;
- be in grade 9 or 10;
- have a family income that meets U.S. Department of Education low-income guidelines;
- be potential first-generation college students; and
- show need for Upward Bound services.

Upward Bound provides services to students until they graduate from high school and enter a postsecondary education program of their choice. Participants receive all services at no cost.

University of Iowa Upward Bound serves students who attend target schools in Burlington, Columbus Junction, Davenport, Fort Madison, Muscatine, and West Liberty, Iowa. Other postsecondary institutions in Iowa also sponsor Upward Bound programs. High school students who do not attend target schools located in the communities served by The University of Iowa's program should ask their counselors whether an Upward Bound program serves their area.

For more information, contact University of Iowa Upward Bound, The University of Iowa.

Continuing Education

Dean: Chet S. Rzonca

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu>

The Division of Continuing Education increases access to the services and resources of The University of Iowa. In partnership with the University's colleges and departments, the division provides high-quality credit and noncredit courses, workshops, and programs to traditional and nontraditional learners. Using a variety of locations, schedules, and technologies, including audiovisual and video services, the division helps provide a University of Iowa learning environment beyond the physical borders of campus.

The division's organization and services include the following.

Center for Conferences and Institutes

Director: Jo Dickens

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/conferences>

The Center for Conferences and Institutes (CCI) is the University's principal agency for initiating, coordinating, conducting, and supporting noncredit continuing education programs. The center also serves as the University of Iowa's Continuing Education Unit (CEU) database.

CCI coordinates conferences for University faculty, departments, colleges, administrative units, student groups and related academic societies, professional associations, and other groups sponsored by the University.

CCI provides logistical management and administration of conferences; program content is designed by the unit presenting the conference. The center uses conference facilities on the University of Iowa campus as well as facilities located in Iowa City and Coralville, statewide, and nationwide. CCI also manages national and international programs for University faculty members and departments. For more information, visit the Center for Conferences and Institutes web site.

Center for Credit Programs

Director: Doug Lee

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp>

The Center for Credit Programs works with University of Iowa colleges and academic departments to offer for-credit courses in a variety of formats and schedules. Courses are offered on and off campus; formats include distance education and independent study. Courses may be open to University of Iowa students and to persons not formally admitted to a degree program. For more information, contact the Center for Credit Programs or visit its web site.

Saturday & Evening Classes

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/sande>

The Center for Credit Programs sponsors University courses on campus at times convenient for part-time or nontraditional students. Undergraduate and graduate course work is available in a wide range of academic disciplines. For more information, contact the Center for Credit Programs.

Summer and Winter Sessions

Director: Doug Lee

Web sites: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/summer>
<http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/winter>

The University of Iowa conducts a summer session through the Center for Credit Programs with terms of three, six, and eight weeks. Classes also are offered outside these normal summer session terms. A three-week winter session is offered during the break between the fall and spring semesters.

During the summer and winter sessions, students can take undergraduate and graduate course work. Classes during these sessions are taught mainly by University of Iowa faculty members, so students receive the same first-rate instruction provided during the spring and fall semesters. Courses are offered in a variety of formats both on and off campus. They are open to University of Iowa students and to persons not formally admitted to a degree program.

Distance Education Programs and Courses

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/de>

The Center for Credit Programs sponsors courses via several distance education formats.

Guided Independent Study courses are available through some 40 University departments. For a catalog providing course listings (including courses offered via the World Wide Web), procedures, and enrollment information, contact the Center for Credit Programs or visit the Guided Independent Study web site.

University extension classes are scheduled where they best serve off-campus students, at the request of public school officials, and/or where professional, business, industrial, or other qualified groups express a need for instruction. The center also sponsors courses via the Iowa Communications Network, the Internet, and other technologies. For more information, contact the Center for Credit Programs or visit its web site.

Bachelor of Liberal Studies

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/bls>

The Bachelor of Liberal Studies (B.L.S.) is a baccalaureate degree offered by each of the three Board of Regents, State of Iowa universities (The University of Iowa, Iowa State University, and the University of Northern Iowa). It serves adults whose jobs, families, geographic locations, or other personal circumstances prevent them from attending college as full-time, on-campus students. The program does not have a campus residence requirement.

Students may earn credit toward the degree in courses offered through the Center for Credit Programs, via campus-based or distance education formats, or through daytime on-campus courses.

At The University of Iowa, the B.L.S. is awarded by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and administered by the Division of Continuing Education. For a more detailed program description, see Bachelor of Liberal Studies (College of Liberal Arts and Sciences) in the Catalog or visit the Center for Credit Programs web site.

Bachelor of Applied Studies

Web site: <http://www.continuetolearn.uiowa.edu/ccp/bas>

The Bachelor of Applied Studies (B.A.S.) is a baccalaureate degree designed for nontraditional students who are graduates of community college technical programs and wish to complete a bachelor's degree without interrupting their careers. Applicants should have a minimum of three years of work experience.

Students may earn credit toward the degree in courses offered through the Center for Credit Programs, via campus-based or distance education formats, or in daytime on-campus courses.

At The University of Iowa, the B.A.S. is offered through University College and administered by the Division of Continuing Education. For a more detailed program description, see Bachelor of Applied Studies (University College) in the Catalog or visit the Center for Credit Programs web site.

Center for Media Production

Director: Daniel G. Lind

Web site: <http://ui.media.uiowa.edu>

Iowa Administrative Code: Board of Regents

The following is extracted from the Board of Regents section of the Iowa Administrative Code as of April 21, 2006.

Admission Rules Common to the Three State Universities

681—1.1(262) Admission of undergraduate students directly from high school

Students desiring admission to the University of Iowa, Iowa State University, or the University of Northern Iowa must meet the requirements in this rule and also any special requirements for the curriculum, school, or college of their choice.

Applicants must submit a formal application for admission, together with the appropriate application fee as approved by the state board of regents pursuant to Iowa Code subsection 262.9(18) and detailed in rule 681-1.7(262), and have their secondary school provide a transcript of their academic record, including credits and grades, rank in class, and certification of graduation. Applicants must also submit scores from the American College Test (ACT) or the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), or the equivalent, as determined by each university. The Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) is required of foreign students whose first language is not English. Applicants may be required to submit additional information or data to support their applications.

1.1(1) Graduates of approved Iowa high schools who have the subject matter background as recommended by each university and who rank in the upper one-half of their graduating class will be admitted. Applicants who are not in the upper one-half of their graduating class may, after a review of their academic and test records, and at the discretion of the admissions officers:

- a. Be admitted unconditionally,
- b. Be admitted conditionally,
- c. Be required to enroll for a tryout period during a preceding summer session, or
- d. Be denied admission.

1.1(2) Graduates of accredited high schools in other states may be held to higher academic standards, but must meet at least the same requirements as graduates of Iowa high schools. The options for conditional admission or summer tryout enrollment may not necessarily be offered to these students.

1.1(3) Applicants who are graduates of nonapproved high schools will be considered for admission in a manner similar to applicants from approved high schools, but additional emphasis will be given to scores obtained on standardized examinations.

1.1(4) Applicants who are not high school graduates, but whose classes have graduated, may be considered for admission. They will be required to submit all academic data to the extent that it exists and achieve scores on standardized examinations which will demonstrate that they are adequately prepared for academic study.

Students with superior academic records may be admitted, on an individual basis, for part-time university study while enrolled in high school or during the summers prior to high school graduation.

In rare situations, exceptional students may be admitted as full-time students to a regent university before completing high school. Early admission to a regent university is provided to serve persons whose academic achievement and personal and intellectual maturity clearly suggest readiness for collegiate level study. Each university will specify requirements and conditions for early admission.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.9(3).

681—1.2(262) Admission of undergraduate students by transfer from other colleges

Students desiring admission to the University of Iowa, Iowa State University, or the University of Northern Iowa must meet the requirements in this rule and also any special requirements for the curriculum, school, or college of their choice.

Applicants must submit a formal application for admission, together with the appropriate application fee as approved by the state board of regents pursuant to Iowa Code subsection 262.9(18) and detailed in rule 681-1.7(262), and request that each college they have attended send an official transcript of record to the admissions office. High school academic records and standardized test results may also be required. The Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) is required of foreign students whose first language is not English.

1.2(1) Transfer applicants with a minimum of 24 semester hours of graded credit from regionally accredited colleges or universities, who have achieved for all college work previously attempted the grade point required by each university for specific programs, will be admitted. Higher academic standards may be required of students who are not residents of Iowa.

Applicants who have not maintained the grade point required by each university for specific programs or who are under academic suspension from the last college attended may, after a review of their academic and test records, and at the discretion of the admissions officers:

- a. Be admitted unconditionally,
- b. Be admitted conditionally,
- c. Be required to enroll for a tryout period during a preceding summer session, or
- d. Be denied admission.

1.2(2) Admission of students with fewer than 24 semester hours of college credit will be based on high school academic and standardized test records in addition to review of the college record.

1.2(3) Transfer applicants under disciplinary suspension will not be considered for admission until information concerning the reason for the suspension has been received from the college assigning the suspension. Applicants granted admission under these circumstances will be admitted on probation.

1.2(4) Transfer applicants from colleges and universities not regionally accredited will be considered for admission on an individual basis taking into account all available academic information.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.9(3).

681—1.3(262) Transfer credit practices

The regent universities endorse the Joint Statement on Transfer and Award of Academic Credit approved in 1978 by the American Council on Education (ACE), the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO), and the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation (COPA). The current issue of Transfer Credit Practices of Selected Educational Institutions, published by the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO), and publications of the Council on Postsecondary Accreditation (COPA) are examples of references used by the universities in determining transfer credit. The acceptance and use of transfer credit is subject to limitations in accordance with the educational policies operative at each university.

1.3(1) Students from regionally accredited colleges and universities

Credit earned at regionally accredited colleges and universities is acceptable for transfer except that credit in courses determined by the receiving university to be of a remedial, vocational, or technical nature, or credit in courses or programs in which the institution granting the credit is not directly involved, may not be accepted, or may be accepted to a limited extent.

Of the course work earned at a two-year college, students may apply up to one-half but no more than 65 hours of the credits required for a bachelor's degree toward that degree at a regent university. This policy became effective September 29, 1993.

1.3(2) Students from colleges and universities which have candidate status

Credit earned at colleges and universities which have become candidates for accreditation by a regional association is acceptable for transfer in a manner similar to that from regionally accredited colleges and universities if the credit is applicable to the bachelor's degree at the receiving university.

Credit earned at the junior and senior classification from an accredited two-year college which has received approval by a regional accrediting association for change to a four-year college may be accepted by a regent university.

1.3(3) Students from colleges and universities not regionally accredited

When students are admitted from colleges and universities not regionally accredited, they may validate portions or all of their transfer credit by satisfactory academic study in residence, or by examination. Each university will specify the amount of the transfer credit and the terms of the validation process at the time of admission.

In determining the acceptability of transfer credit from private colleges in Iowa which do not have regional accreditation, the regent committee on educational relations, upon request from the institutions, evaluates the nature and standards of the academic program, faculty, student records, library, and laboratories.

In determining the acceptability of transfer credit from colleges in states other than Iowa which are not regionally accredited, acceptance practices indicated in the current issue of Transfer Credit Practices of Selected Educational Institutions will be used as a guide. For institutions not listed in the publication, guidance is requested from the designated reporting institution of the appropriate state.

1.3(4) Students from foreign colleges and universities

Transfer credit from foreign educational institutions may be granted after a determination of the type of institution involved and after an evaluation of the content, level, and comparability of the study to courses and programs at the receiving university. Credit may be granted in specific courses, but is frequently assigned to general areas of study. Extensive use is made of professional journals and references which describe the education systems and programs of individual countries.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.9(3).

Residence

681—1.4(262) Classification of residents and nonresidents for admission, tuition, and fee purposes

1.4(1) General

a. A person enrolling at one of the three state universities shall be classified as a resident or nonresident for admission, tuition, and fee purposes by the registrar or someone designated by the registrar. The decision shall be based upon information furnished by the student and other relevant information.

b. In determining resident or nonresident classification, the issue is essentially one of why the person is in the state of Iowa. If the person is in the state primarily for educational purposes, that person will be considered a nonresident. For example, it may be possible that an individual could qualify as a resident of Iowa for such purposes as voting, or holding an Iowa driver's license, and not meet the residency requirements as established by the Board of Regents for admission, tuition, and fee purposes.

c. The registrar, or designated person, is authorized to require written documents, affidavits, verifications, or other evidence deemed necessary to determine why a student is in Iowa. The burden of establishing that a student is in Iowa for other than educational purposes is upon the student.

A student may be required to file any or all of the following:

- (1) A statement from the student describing employment and expected sources of support;
- (2) A statement from the student's employer;
- (3) A statement from the student's parents verifying nonsupport and the fact that the student was not listed as a dependent on tax returns for the past year and will not be so listed in future years;
- (4) Supporting statements from persons who might be familiar with the family situation;
- (5) Iowa state income tax return.

d. Change of classification from nonresident to resident will not be made retroactive beyond the term in which application for resident classification is made.

e. A student who gives incorrect or misleading information to evade payment of nonresident fees shall be subject to serious disciplinary action and must also pay the nonresident fees for each term previously attended.

f. Review Committee. These regulations shall be administered by the registrar or someone designated by the registrar. The decision of the registrar or designated person may be appealed to a university review committee. The finding of the review committee may be appealed to the state board of regents.

1.4(2) Guidelines

The following guidelines are used in determining the resident classification of a student for admission, tuition, and fee purposes:

a. A financially dependent student whose parents move from Iowa after the student is enrolled remains a resident provided the student maintains continuous enrollment. A financially dependent student whose parents move from Iowa during the senior year of high school will be considered a resident provided the student has not established domicile in another state.

b. In deciding why a person is in the state of Iowa, the person's domicile will be considered. A person who comes to Iowa from another state and enrolls in any institution of postsecondary education for a full program or substantially a full program shall be presumed to have come to Iowa primarily for educational reasons rather than to establish a domicile in Iowa.

c. A student who was a former resident of Iowa may continue to be considered a resident provided absence from the state was for a period of less than 12 months and provided domicile is reestablished. If the absence from the state is for a period exceeding 12 months, a student may be considered a resident if evidence can be presented showing that the student has long-term ties to Iowa and reestablishes an Iowa domicile.

A person or the dependent of a person whose domicile is permanently established in Iowa, who has been classified as a resident for admission, tuition, and fee purposes, may continue to be classified as a resident so long as domicile is maintained, even though circumstances may require extended absence of the person from the state. It is required that a person who claims Iowa domicile while living in another state or country will provide proof of the continual Iowa domicile as evidence that the person:

- (1) Has not acquired a domicile in another state,
- (2) Has maintained a continuous voting record in Iowa, and
- (3) Has filed regular Iowa resident income tax returns during absence from the state.

d. A student who moves to Iowa may be eligible for resident classification at the next registration following 12 consecutive months in the state provided the student is not enrolled as more than a half-time student (6 credits for an undergraduate or professional student, 5 credits for a graduate student) in any academic year term, is not enrolled for more than 4 credits in a summer term for any classification, and provides sufficient evidence of the establishment of an Iowa domicile.

e. A student who has been a continuous student and whose parents move to Iowa may become a resident at the beginning of the next term provided the student is dependent upon the parents for a majority of financial assistance.

f. A person who is moved into the state as the result of military or civil orders from the government for other than educational purposes, or the dependent of such a person, is entitled to resident status. However, if the arrival of the person under orders is subsequent to the beginning of the term in which the student is first enrolled, nonresident fees will be charged in all cases until the beginning of the next term in which the student is enrolled. Legislation, effective July 1, 1977, requires that military personnel who claim residency in Iowa (home of record) will be required to file Iowa resident income tax returns.

g. A person who has been certified as a refugee or granted asylum by the appropriate agency of the United States who enrolls as a student at a university governed by the Iowa state board of regents may be accorded immediate resident status for admission, tuition, and fee purposes where the person:

- (1) Comes directly to the state of Iowa from a refugee facility or port of debarkation; or
- (2) Comes to the state of Iowa within a reasonable time and has not established domicile in another state.

Any refugee or individual granted asylum not meeting these standards will be presumed to be a nonresident for admission, tuition, and fee purposes and thus subject to the usual method of proof of establishment of Iowa residency.

h. An alien who has immigrant status establishes Iowa residency in the same manner as a United States citizen.

i. At the regent institutions, American Indians who have origins in any of the original people of North America and who maintain a cultural identification through tribal affiliation or community recognition with one or more of the tribes or nations connected historically with the present state of Iowa, including the Iowa, Kickapoo, Menominee, Miami, Missouri, Ojibwa (Chippewa), Omaha, Otoe, Ottawa (Odawa), Potawatomi, Sac and Fox (Sauk, Meskwaki), Sioux, and Winnebago (Ho Chunk), will be assessed Iowa resident tuition and fees.

1.4(3) Facts

a. The following circumstances, although not necessarily conclusive, have probative value in support of a claim for resident classification:

- (1) Reside in Iowa for 12 consecutive months, and be primarily engaged in activities other than those of a full-time student, immediately prior to the beginning of the term for which resident classification is sought.
- (2) Reliance upon Iowa resources for financial support.
- (3) Domicile in Iowa of persons legally responsible for the student.
- (4) Former domicile in the state and maintenance of significant connections therein while absent.
- (5) Acceptance of an offer of permanent employment in Iowa.
- (6) Other facts indicating the student's domicile will be considered by the universities in classifying the student.

b. The following circumstances, standing alone, do not constitute sufficient evidence of domicile to effect classification of a student as a resident under these regulations:

- (1) Voting or registration for voting.
 - (2) Employment in any position normally filled by a student.
 - (3) The lease of living quarters.
 - (4) Admission to a licensed practicing profession in Iowa.
 - (5) Automobile registration.
 - (6) Public records, for example, birth and marriage records, Iowa driver's license.
 - (7) Continuous presence in Iowa during periods when not enrolled in school.
 - (8) Ownership of property in Iowa, or the payment of Iowa taxes.
- This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.9(3).

681—1.5(262) Registration and transcripts—general

A person may not be permitted to register for a course or courses at a state board of regents institution until any delinquent accounts owed by the person to an institution or any affiliated organization for which an institution acts as fiscal agent have been paid.

A state board of regents institution may withhold official transcripts of the academic record of a person until any delinquent accounts owed by the person to an institution or any affiliated organization for which an institution acts as fiscal agent have been paid.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.9.

Supplemental Specific Rules to The University of Iowa

681—1.6(262) College-bound program

1.6(1) Definitions.

“Accredited private institution” means an institution of higher education as defined in Iowa Code section 261.9, subsection 5.

“Commission” means the college aid commission.

“Financial need” means the difference between the student's financial resources, including resources available from the student's parents and the student, as determined by a completed parents' financial statement and including any non-campus-administered federal or state grants and scholarships, and the student's estimated expenses while attending the institution. A student shall accept all available federal and state grants and scholarships before being considered eligible for grants under the Iowa minority academic grants for economic success program. Financial need shall be reconsidered on at least an annual basis.

“Full-time student” means an individual who is enrolled at an accredited private institution or board of regents university for at least 12 semester hours or the trimester or quarter equivalent.

“Minority person” means an individual who is black, Hispanic, Asian, or a Pacific Islander, American Indian, or an Alaskan Native American.

“Part-time student” means an individual who is enrolled at an accredited private institution or board of regents university in a course of study including at least three semester hours or the trimester or quarter equivalent of three semester hours.

“Program” means the Iowa minority academic grants for economic success program established in this division.

1.6(2) Policy on college-bound program.

a. The regent institutions will cooperate with other state and local agencies, including the department of education, the college aid commission, and educational institutions in implementing the college-bound program.

b. The universities will develop programs for elementary, middle and secondary school students and their families in the following areas:

- (1) Encouragement to consider attending a postsecondary institution;
- (2) Enrichment and academic preparation;
- (3) Information about how to apply for admission.

c. College-bound program vouchers will be awarded to students on the basis of the participation of the student and the student's family in the college-bound program. One voucher will be awarded for participation in each college-bound program sponsored by a university.

(1) Each university will maintain records concerning those students who participate in the college-bound program, according to its established policies and procedures. The records will include information on those students who have received college-bound program vouchers which are described in Iowa Code section 262.92(2). The University of Iowa will maintain a central record on all students who have received college-bound program vouchers on behalf of all regent institutions and will make appropriate information available to the college aid commission.

(2) College-bound program vouchers may be used by students enrolled at a regent institution or at a private college or university in Iowa.

(3) A student holding vouchers and enrolling at a regent institution will receive priority in the award of funds under the Iowa minority academic grants for economic success (IMAGES) program. Awards under the IMAGES program are made on the basis of financial need. A student may be eligible for an additional award from the institution in which the student is enrolled.

(4) A student holding vouchers and enrolling at a private college or university in Iowa will receive priority in the award of funds under the Iowa minority academic grants for economic success program as provided by the rules of the college aid commission.

(5) The presidents, or their designees, will administer and coordinate the college-bound program at the universities. As part of the coordination, they will establish liaison with the appropriate state and local agencies, serve as the university contact and promote collaborative efforts among the regent universities and other appropriate agencies and institutions. Annual reports to the board of regents shall be prepared by each regent university. The reports shall contain relevant information as to the accomplishments of the program in the past year and a plan of action with goals and objectives for the forthcoming year. Reports shall be submitted to the board of regents on October 1 of each year.

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.92.

681—1.7(262) Application fees

Application fees required for admission to the University of Iowa, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa are as follows:

University of Iowa

Undergraduate domestic student: $40
Undergraduate international student: $60
Graduate/professional domestic student: $60
Graduate/professional international student: $85
Pharm.D. student: $100
Re-entry fee: $20

This rule is intended to implement Iowa Code section 262.9(3).

681—2.1(262) Formal application for admission

All applicants for admission to any college of the University of Iowa must submit a formal application for admission with the required official transcripts and other supporting material as required to the director of admissions. Students may not be registered until they have been issued an admission statement by the director of admissions.

681—2.3(262) College of Business Administration

2.3(1) Application for admission

Applications for admission to the college of business administration should be submitted to the director of admissions.

Applicants are urged to apply as early as possible, since this will give the admissions committee more time to devote to each application. Closing dates for receiving applications will be announced well in advance of the opening date of any session.

2.3(2) Requirements for admission

For admission to the college of business administration an applicant must have—

- a. Completed specific course work as prescribed by the faculty of the college.
- b. Attained satisfactory scores on the university's required admission examinations.

c. Maintained a satisfactory grade-point average on all courses undertaken, and on all courses undertaken at the University of Iowa, and on all courses undertaken in business and economics.

Applications from students who have minor deficiencies in meeting grade-point requirements specified above will be reviewed by the admissions committee of the college, and upon favorable recommendation of the committee, such students may be granted conditional or probationary admissions.

Fulfillment of the minimal requirements listed above, however, does not assure admission to the college of business administration. From those applicants who meet the minimum requirements, the admissions committee will select the applicants who, in their judgment, appear to be best qualified.

681—2.4(262) College of Dentistry

2.4(1) Application for admission

Address all inquiries regarding admission to the Director of Admissions, University of Iowa.

Applicants are urged to apply as early as possible, since this will give the admissions committee more time to devote to each application. Closing dates for receiving applications will be announced well in advance of the opening date of any session.

Applicants for admission to dentistry are encouraged to complete a program leading to a baccalaureate degree before entering dentistry. Applicants should consider a combined program of liberal arts and dentistry which would qualify them for a baccalaureate degree upon the completion of the freshman year in dentistry. Preference will be given to students who have the baccalaureate degree or who have completed the requirements for the degree in a combined program.

Fulfillment of the specific requirements for admission listed does not ensure admission to the college of dentistry. From the applicants meeting the minimum requirements, the admissions committee will select the applicants who in their judgment appear to be best qualified for the study and practice of dentistry.

Each applicant must place on file in the office of the director of admissions the completed application form and an official transcript from each college attended.

The college work outlined below will suffice to meet the minimal academic requirements for admission to the college of dentistry.

The college curriculum must include at least three academic years of accredited work comprising not less than 96 semester hours and including specific required science courses as prescribed by the faculty of the college. Electives should be chosen so as to give the applicant a well-rounded educational background.

In order to meet minimum scholarship requirements, the applicant should attain a cumulative grade-point average of 2.5. Since the quality of course work in pre dental science is basic to success in dentistry, special consideration to such college work is given by the admissions committee. The grade-point average is based upon the University of Iowa's marking system in which a grade of "A" is equivalent to four points. Other marking systems will be evaluated by the office of admissions and the committee on admissions of the college of dentistry.

Applicants who have completed the requirements for admission to dentistry five or more years prior to seeking admission to this college of dentistry will be considered by the admissions committee only under exceptional conditions.

Preference will be given to applicants who are residents of Iowa, but consideration will also be given to outstanding nonresidents.

Personal interviews will be required of applicants for admission to the college of dentistry. Applicants will be notified when they should appear for the required interviews with members of the admissions committee.

All applicants must complete the dental aptitude tests sponsored by the council on dental education of the American Dental Association. Tests are given three times annually. The University of Iowa is a testing center.

To facilitate early selection, applicants for admission to the college of dentistry are urged to complete the aptitude test no later than October to enable the admissions committee to begin its selection in December.

Accepted applicants are required to make the required deposit within two weeks after notification of favorable action on their applications. This deposit is not refundable but is credited toward the first fee payment. The applicant who fails to make the deposit within the time specified forfeits a place in the entering class.

Applicants accepted for admission are required to submit a satisfactory physical examination report to the university student health service within two weeks following notification of acceptance.

All applicants must also complete, through student health service, an X-ray film of the chest and a successful vaccination against smallpox prior to registration.

2.4(2) Advanced standing

Applications for admission with advanced standing are handled as individual cases.

681—2.5(262) College of Engineering

Address all inquiries regarding admission to the Director of Admissions, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa.

Closing dates for receiving applications will be announced well in advance of the opening date of any session.

2.5(1) Admission of freshman students

The applicant must submit a formal application for admission and must have the secondary school provide a certificate of high school credits, including a complete statement of the applicant's high school record, rank in class, scores on standardized tests, and certification of high school graduation. The applicant must also submit any other evidence such as a certificate of health that may be required by this university.

Each applicant must have attained satisfactory scores on the university's required admission examinations, maintained a satisfactory cumulative grade-point average, achieved satisfactory rank in graduating class, and successfully completed all prerequisite courses. The university with the approval of the state board of regents shall establish and periodically review specific minimum requirements for admission to the college of engineering. Among the items to be so determined are test score, grade-point average, class rank and prerequisite courses. These specific determinations will be published in the university catalog.

From applicants who do not meet minimum admission requirements, the director of admissions may after a review of the applicant's record: (a) Admit unconditionally, (b) admit on probation, (c) require enrollment for a tryout period during a preceding summer session, or (d) deny admission.

2.5(2) Admission of undergraduate students by transfer

The applicant must submit a formal application and official transcript of college work. Each applicant should have:

- a. Maintained satisfactory progress in mathematics.
- b. Attained satisfactory scores on the university's required admission examinations.
- c. Maintained a satisfactory cumulative grade-point average on all college work undertaken.

From applicants who do not meet recommended requirements, the director of admissions will review individual records and may offer probationary admission.

681—2.6(262) Graduate College

Graduates of any college or university accredited by regional accrediting associations may if the academic record is satisfactory be admitted to the graduate college. Admission to the graduate college is not the equivalent of acceptance as a candidate for an advanced degree. Such acceptance is given usually after the completion in residence of work at the university and upon recommendation of the major department and approval by the dean of the graduate college. The acceptance of a student as a degree candidate is determined upon the merits of each individual case.

A student who is within four semester hours of having satisfied all the requirements for the bachelor's degree at the University of Iowa may be given a tentative admission to the graduate college.

681—2.7(262) College of Law

2.7(1) Application for admission

Address all inquiries concerning admission to the Director of Admissions, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa. Beginning students may enter the college of law only in the summer session or the fall semester. Closing dates for receiving applications will be announced well in advance of the opening date of any session.

To be considered for admission, an applicant should have attained a cumulative grade-point average of at least 2.3 on all college work undertaken. The grade-point average is based upon the University of Iowa's marking system in which a grade of "A" is equivalent to four points. Other marking systems will be evaluated by the office of admissions.

Applicants for admission must present a baccalaureate degree from an approved college or university prior to commencing work in the college of law.

Each applicant for admission must take the Law School Admission Test administered by the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, and have the score forwarded to the college of law. The test is given several times per year and may be taken at numerous locations in the United States and throughout the world. Applicants are urged to take the test in the fall or winter preceding the fall semester for which they are making application. Except upon a showing acceptable to it, the admissions committee will not consider applications from students who fail to take the test prior to the June 1 preceding the fall semester in which they wish to enter.

Fulfillment of the specific requirements for admission listed above does not ensure admission to the college of law. From the applicants meeting the minimum requirements, the admissions committee of the college of law will select those applicants who, in their judgment, appear to be best qualified for the study and practice of law. The law admissions committee may require personal interviews of applicants.

2.7(2) Admission with advanced standing

A transfer student may be eligible for admission if the student (a) has attended a school approved by the Association of American Law Schools; (b) is in good standing at the time of withdrawal (evidenced by a letter from the dean of the school from which transferring); (c) meets the admission requirements for beginning students; and (d) has done substantially above average work in the law school the student attended. Where an applicant has completed more than one year of law study, advanced standing will be permitted only in exceptional cases. Applicants for admission with advanced standing should comply with the procedures required for admission to the first-year class.

681—2.8(262) College of Medicine

2.8(1) Application for admission

Address all inquiries regarding admission to the Director of Admissions, University of Iowa.

Applicants are urged to apply as early as possible, since this will give the admissions committee more time to devote to each application. Closing dates for receiving applications will be announced well in advance of the opening date of any session.

Fulfillment of the specific requirements for admission listed below does not ensure admission to the college of medicine. From the applicants meeting the specific requirements, the admissions committee of the college of medicine will select those applicants who in their judgment appear to be best qualified for the study and practice of medicine.

Prior to entrance an applicant must:

- a. Have received the baccalaureate degree; or
- b. Have completed three years of a combined baccalaureate-medicine curriculum which qualifies the applicant to receive the baccalaureate degree on completion of the first year in medicine; or
- c. Have completed three years of a baccalaureate program which includes the general graduation requirements of the college of liberal arts of the University of Iowa for the combined baccalaureate degree.

Each applicant must place on file in the office of the director of admissions the completed application form and an official transcript from each college attended.

The college work as outlined below will suffice to meet the minimal academic requirements for admission to the college of medicine.

Applicants who have completed the baccalaureate degree and required courses five or more years prior to seeking admission to this college of medicine will be considered by the admissions committee only under exceptional conditions.

The college curriculum must include at least three years (equivalent to 96 semester hours) including specific required science courses as prescribed by the faculty of the college.

Students planning to study medicine should bear in mind that other college work is required in addition to prerequisite sciences because it offers an opportunity to secure a well-rounded education, which is of special importance to those entering the medical profession. In the selection of applicants, preference will be given to those who give evidence of having obtained such a broad education.

To be considered for admission, an applicant must have attained a grade-point average of at least 2.5 for all college work undertaken. As the quality of work in premedical science is very basic to success in medicine, special attention will be given by the admissions committee to grades in science. The grade-point average is based upon the University of Iowa's marking system in which a grade of "A" is equivalent to four points. Other marking systems will be evaluated by the office of admissions and the committee on admissions of the college of medicine.

Preference will be given to applicants with high scholastic standing who are residents of Iowa, and consideration will also be given to outstanding nonresidents. Applicants for admission are required to take the medical college admissions test which is administered for the Association of American Medical Colleges. Applicants are requested to complete this test in May or October of the year preceding that for which they are applying for admission. Students may make arrangements to apply for this examination through the university examination service, the University of Iowa.

Personal interviews will be required. Applicants will be contacted for the appointment for required interviews.

Applicants accepted for admission are required to submit a satisfactory physical examination report to the university student health service within two weeks following notification of acceptance.

All applicants must also complete, through student health service, an X-ray film of the chest and successful vaccination against smallpox prior to registration.

2.8(2) Admission to advanced standing

If their work preparatory to entering a college of medicine would have met entrance requirements of this college, students from other approved medical colleges may be admitted to advanced standing according to the following conditions:

Only applicants of high scholastic standing will be considered.

They must present certificates showing that they have satisfactorily completed courses equivalent to those already pursued by the class they wish to enter.

The committee on admission to advanced standing will decide in each case whether examinations in the various subjects will be required.

Applications will be considered only upon receipt of a statement from the dean or registrar of the college from which the applicant comes, showing the actual amount of time the student has spent in the study of medicine, the courses taken, and the grades received, together with a statement of the work preparatory to entering upon the course in medicine.

No advanced standing will be granted to students from other than approved medical schools. Students may be granted subject credit upon recommendation of the head of the department concerned, for work taken in other than medical schools.

2.8(3) Unclassified students

Applicants for admission to the college of medicine who are not candidates for a degree but who desire to register for special subjects, will be admitted to any lecture or laboratory course only upon complying with all the regular requirements for admission to such course or by action of the faculty upon recommendation of the professor in charge of the course.

681—2.9(262) College of Nursing

Applications for admission to the college of nursing should be submitted to the Director of Admissions, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa. Applicants for admission to the undergraduate program in nursing must present a minimum of 30 semester hours completed in an accredited college. For admission to the college of nursing an applicant must have:

1. Completed specific course work as prescribed by the faculty of the college. The director of admissions will provide a list of the course work required.
2. Completed the American College Tests.
3. Performed satisfactorily on all courses undertaken.

Applications from students who have minor deficiencies in meeting grade-point requirements specified above will be reviewed by the admissions committee of the college, and, upon favorable recommendation of the committee, such students may be granted conditional or probationary admissions.

Fulfillment of the minimum requirements listed above, however, does not assure admission to the college of nursing. From those applicants who meet the minimum requirements, the admissions committee will select the applicants who, in their judgment, appear to be best qualified.

681—2.10(262) College of Pharmacy

2.10(1) General basis for admission

Fulfillment of the specific requirements for admission does not ensure admission to the college of pharmacy. From the applicants meeting the specific requirements, the admissions committee will select those applicants who in their judgment appear to be best qualified. Applicants for admission to pharmacy should have graduated from an approved high school or have an equivalent amount of training.

2.10(2) College work

The college work as outlined below will meet the minimum academic requirements for admission to the college of pharmacy. The minimum should include 32 semester hours of college level work exclusive of credit in military and air science and physical education. The 32 semester hours must include:

Communication skills. Applicants must have demonstrated satisfactory achievement in communication skills according to the requirements of the college of liberal arts at the state University of Iowa. Applicants from other institutions may meet this requirement by presenting six semester hours of credit in English composition and rhetoric and two semester hours of credit in speech or an eight-semester-hour year course in communication skills.

Inorganic chemistry and qualitative analysis, eight semester hours.

College mathematics, eight semester hours.

Physics or zoology, eight semester hours.

Students from other institutions may substitute a comparable eight-semester-hour course in biology in lieu of zoology.

Military or air science (if available), zero to two semester hours.

Students who present minor deficiencies in meeting the above requirements may be admitted to the college of pharmacy upon the recommendation of the dean of admissions and the college of pharmacy.

2.10(3) Scholarship and application deadline

To be considered for admission to the college of pharmacy, students must have earned a 2.0 or "C" average on all collegiate work undertaken. The minimum grade-point average of 2.0 is based on the state University of Iowa's marking system in which the grade of "A" is equivalent to four points. Applications for admission and the required official transcripts should be filed before March 1 for the class to enter pharmacy in September.

2.10(4) Required tests

Applicants for admission are required to take the American College Testing Program test.

2.10(5) Current requirements

Applicants who have completed work in a college of pharmacy accredited by the American Council on Pharmaceutical Education may if their college academic average is acceptable be admitted and granted advanced standing toward the degree of bachelor of science in pharmacy.

681—2.11(262) College of Liberal Arts and Sciences

Applicants for admission to liberal arts and sciences must meet the rules that are common to the three state institutions in Iowa as listed in 681—1.1(262), 1.2(262) and 1.3(262).

681—2.12(262) College of Education

Students at the university desiring professional work in education are registered in the college of liberal arts and sciences or the graduate college. Requirements for permission to take teacher-training courses are listed in the university catalog.

A nighttime photograph of a classical building, likely the Old Capitol building at the University of Iowa. The building features a prominent dome and classical columns. The scene is illuminated by several streetlights, creating a starburst effect. The sky is dark, and the building's windows are lit from within, casting a warm glow. The overall mood is serene and academic.
